RUN ON BUILDING ASSOCIATION IS STEMMED; REWARD OFFERED TO TRACE FALSE RUMORS

AGED DOWAGER TO GIVE HEALTH UNIT MILLIONS

Mrs. Henderson Disinherits Mrs. Wholean; Fortune Is Divided.

$2,000,000 WILL GOO TO 'HYGIENE TEMPLE'

Wealthy Woman Is Planning Greek Embassy Home and Other Buildings.

The will of Mrs. Mary T. Henderson, who has disinherited Mrs. Beatrice Henderson Wholean from the Henderson millions, bequeaths $2,000,000 to a health sanitarium in Battle Creek, Mich., it was learned last night.

This money, it was learned, is to be used in the propagation of vegetarianism, in which Mrs. Henderson is a firm believer. The "Temple of Hygiea," a sanitarium established by Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, cereal food manufacturer, is the sanitarium named in the will.

In the past, Mrs. Henderson has made frequent contributions to this health center. The widow of the late John B. Henderson, interviewed yesterday, said that the Battle Creek sanitarium "is to be well taken care of."

Gave $200,000 Before.

Jesse Shima, Japanese secretary to the aged multimillionaire, volunteered the information that Mrs. Henderson gave $200,000 in cash and securities to the health sanitarium two years ago.

"No, I didn't," replied Mrs. Henderson.

"Yes you did," said her secretary, "you gave it about two years ago.

"Did I?" she said.

Under the terms of the will, it was learned from an authoritative source, Mr. Shima is to receive a parcel of real estate; William Carter, who told Mrs. Henderson, that Beatrice Henderson was not her grandchild, but a foundling from a home, also receives a parcel of real estate.

Mrs. Wholean Not Named.

In addition to the Battle Creek Sanitarium, other large legatees are Henry Arnold and Frances Arnold, niece and nephew of Mrs. Henderson, and Augusta Arnold, her grandniece. All of these are of New York City.

Mrs. Henderson yesterday said she intends to give away as much of her property as possible while she can, and has made no provision in her will for Mrs. Wholean. In an interview she declared that she would like to erect a building next to her Fifteenth street mansion, for the Greek Legation. "It will be the finest structure in Washington," she said.

Further, she added, if the Government does not want the Fifteenth street house for the use of the Vice President, it can have the Henderson Castle on Sixteenth street. Or if the Government chooses to build a house for the Vice President she will donate the "embassy Lot" next to the French Embassy for that purpose.

The value of the Henderson Castle is estimated by Mr. Shima as $1,000,000. The "embassy lot" is a large parcel of property between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets, skirting the French Embassy.

Mrs. Henderson's relatives yesterday joined her defense against the attempt of Mrs. Wholean to have her supplanted as trustee of the family fortune, "because her illness makes her incapable."

The Arnolds announced that they are coming to Washington today to confer with Mrs. Henderson. Mr. Arnold, who is an attorney, is quoted by the Associated Press as saying: "It is amazing that those people who owe everything to Mrs. Henderson and her son should take any proceedings against her to seek to frustrate her in her desire to give the Government a Vice Presidential residence.

Bureau Man's Stipend Arouses Blanton's Ire

Criticism of the Veterans' Bureau personnel, which passes on claims of World War soldiers, was voiced in the House yesterday by Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, in a speech in which he especially singled out William Wolff Smith, general counsel of the bureau.

That Mr. Blanton's attack on Mr. Smith and others in the Veterans' Bureau represented more than the opinion of one irate member of Congress was revealed in the manner in which his speech was received. Every time he made a point to show one or another bureau official in a poor light there came laughter and applause.

Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), Nebraska, interrupted to say that Mr. Blanton's support had been more silent than vocal in the past when the fight was over privileges for retired emergency officers, but that he was anxious to have the Texan put into the Record a statement of former Army officers who were drawing large salaries and getting in addition considerable amounts because they had claimed this or that disability.

"I'm getting such a list together and I promise the gentleman from Nebraska that I'll put it in the Record so that the whole world can see," Mr. Blanton said.

"I hope you will," Mr. Simmons replied. "I am sure members of the House and the senators will be interested in reading the data."

Mr. Smith was known generally as "Poker Bill" because of his manner of life, Mr. Blanton said, charging that he never had tried an important case as a lawyer and had been admitted to the District bar only by accident.

The maladies which Mr. Smith had advanced as justifying him in drawing a pension of $187.50 a month from the Government, Mr. Blanton listed as:

Bronchitis and an affliction "commonly known as the heaves," laryngitis, chronic tonsilitis, hernia and astigmatism.

"Who in the United States hasn't suffered from tonsilitis, from laryngitis and other things Mr. Smith complains about and which were worth $187.50 a month to him?" inquired Mr. Blanton.

"Gen. Hines, director of the bureau, would get rid of him in a minute if he could, but he can't get rid of him, because one prominent politician, whose name I know and whose name I would like to call, has said 'hands off Mr. Smith.'"

Mr. Smith was not the only one in the Veterans' Bureau who has got himself a soft job at a fat salary and is drawing "large money" from the Government, on the ground they are incapacitated, Mr. Blanton contended.

Mr. Blanton named four other persons, each of whom, he said, occupies a position in which he daily passes on the claims of former war veterans.

CLERICS MAY CLOSE CANNON CASE TODAY

Bishop Asks Night Hearing to Speed Action; Few Witnesses Heard.

DETECTIVE IS CALLED

Bishop James Cannon, jr., may know his fate today, or a decision may not be reached until tomorrow. He is more anxious than anyone else to get through with the hearing. Yesterday he asked the committee to hold a night session and this was agreed to without dissent.

On the opening day of the hearing at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, the bishop's sons were quoted as saying that their father appeared at the investigation over the protest of his physicians and at the risk of serious consequences to his health. The fact that he would ask for a third hearing, after two long and nerve-racking seasions yesterday morning and afternoon indicates that the excitement of the trial is stimulating his vigor and bulwarking his energy.

Bishop Darlington, one of the three Bishops officiating at the investigation, is leaving today or tonight for New York, to sail for Europe. As he is acting purely in an advisory capacity and not in an administrative role, his departure will not affect the case.

Only two or three witnesses were called when the prosecutors began to present their case. None, it is said, will be called by Bishop Cannon. As these witnesses remained but a few moments before the committee, it is understood that they were called to verify records. Among them was George P. Adams, for many years manager of Blackstone College for Women, of which Bishop Cannon was president.

CRAMTON'S CHANCE AT $10,000 JOB DIES

Terming Senator Caraway "Liar" Rings Death Knell of Appointment.

HOUSE TENSION IS HIGH

Representative Louis C. Cramton (Republican), Michigan, whose eighteen years of service in Congress ends with this session, will not be named as associate director of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, it was said by one of the members of the commission last night.

Mr. Cramton was slated to be named associate director of the commission, with an annual salary of $10,000 a year.

Though there were those among District residents who were opposed to the lame-duck representative getting such a lucrative post having to do so directly with Washington affairs, it seemed that the popularity of Mr. Cramton with members of the House would determine the question in his favor.

But the attack launched by Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, on the floor of the Senate on Monday in the course of his drought relief speech, and the reply of Representative Cramton on the floor of the House on Tuesday, in the course of which he called Senator Caraway "a plain and unadulterated liar," rang the death knell of the scheme to appoint Mr. Cramton to the bicentennial post.

Decision of the executive committee was not made final yesterday when there was so much discussion that Senator Simeon Fess (Republican), Ohio, chairman, called another meeting today.

Some one is going to get the $10,000-a-year job as associate director, but

Evidence in Slaying Not Found Sufficient to Indict Suspects.

CHANGE TO BE ASKED IN HOSPITAL METHOD

Internes Would Wait Arrival of Coroner in Death Cases, Under Plan.

The District of Columbia grand jury is in a quandary and will return no indictment in the Beulah Limerick murder case.

This fact was definitely established yesterday when it was reliably reported that instead of indicting any of the four men now held in jail, as a result of the coroner's inquest, the inquisitorial body will return a report which may result in many changes in hospital regulations.

The grand jury, it was understood, would return a report which would include the requirement that internes from hospitals, responding to emergency calls, remain at the scene pending the arrival of the coroner, in cases of death.

Four Are Held.

The four men held in jail pending the outcome of the grand jury investigation, are Patrolman Robert F. Langdon, Vernon Limerick, a brother of the slain girl; Richard Reed, who lived with Limerick at the girl's house, and William E. Paddy, said to be the man who last saw her alive.

Beulah Limerick was found slain on the morning of December 31 at her home on Nineteenth street southeast, near A street. While Dr. Lyman Greene, of Casualty Hospital, certified she had died from a hemorrhage, the undertaker handling the body later discovered a bullet wound in the girl's head.

Far Flung Inquiry.

This discovery led to a far-flung police investigation and subsequently resulted in one of the most ex-

Klein and Clark Tell Hoover "No"

Decline Akerson's Post, but More Than 50 Others Seek It.

At least two men have declined to accept the position of secretary to the President, which is being vacated by George Akerson, who is leaving the White House today for a position with the Paramount-Publix Corporation, it was learned last night. They are Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, and Edward Clark, who was an assistant to Calvin Coolidge when he was President.

No less than 50 men have been suggested for the post, but these 50 either have been frowned upon by the President or themselves have declined to serve.

The prospect is that Akerson's successor will not be selected for three, perhaps four, weeks. Meanwhile, Mr. Akerson's duties will be shared by the other two secretaries—Walter Newton and Larry Richey.

CHARGES HELD SEVERE BY AID TO GEN. BUTLER

Counts May Be Withheld From Public Until Day of Trial.

PAPER STUNS HERO, WITNESSES REPORT

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The charges and specifications against Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler were served yesterday, and the indications were that they contained bad news.

"I can't discuss the charges," said Maj. Henry Leonard, U. S. M. C., retired, Gen. Butler's counsel. "All I can say is this: They are severe."

Through his counsel, Gen. Butler put up to the Navy Department the responsibility of making public the charges, but it was stated on behalf of the department last night that the charges would not be given out until the Marine Corps hero had specifically given his consent. Thus, it is possible that the charges will not be made known until the day of the trial, unless Gen. Butler authorizes the Navy Department to make them public in the meantime.

Rumors of Defiance.

There had been rumors to the effect that President Hoover had stepped in and persuaded Secretary of the Navy Adams to soften the charges somewhat, but what Maj. Leonard said made these rumors seem ridiculous.

When Maj. Leonard revealed that the accusations against Gen. Butler were "severe" there were fresh rumors that President Hoover had asked Secretary Adams to soften the charges, but that the latter had defied him. These, however, were rumors, and nothing more.

Gen. Butler, who was in Washington when the charges and specifications were delivered to him, hurried back to Quantico, and persons who saw him as he was leaving said that he seemed somewhat stunned.

Speech Is Recalled.

Gen. Butler, whose breast can scarcely support the medals and ribbons that have been awarded him, is facing a general court-martial because, in a speech in Philadelphia, he called Premier Mussolini of Italy a hit-and-run driver; said he ran down a little girl and then continued on, saying, "What is one life in the affairs of a state?"

The State Department already has apologized to Mussolini.

Maj. Leonard, who lost an arm while fighting alongside Gen. Butler in the Boxer uprising in China, revealed yesterday that John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President in 1924, would not be able to serve as an associate counsel because he had a case in New Orleans that would be in progress at about the same time that Gen. Butler goes on trial in Philadelphia ten days hence.

Maj. Leonard at the same time scouted reports that former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, would defend Gen. Butler. All he would

FOUR WHO HELPED HALT RUN

Riggs Tenders Half Million; Other Banks Ready With Help.

$1,800,000 IN CASH ON HAND YESTERDAY

FLEMING, POOLE, EVANS ADDISON REASSURING

Direct Evidence Reveals That Anonymous Calls Spread Distrust.

The banking resources of Washington were combined yesterday afternoon and last night to meet a condition created when false rumors started a run on the Perpetual Building Association.

At 8:30 o'clock employes of the Perpetual Building Association paid off the last of several hundred depositors who during the day had milled about its offices at Eleventh and E streets northwest. More than $1,000,000 of the $1,800,000 cash on hand, with which the association opened business in the morning, remained in the vaults, and no use had been made of $500,000 in cash which Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank, tendered as a pledge of confidence from his bank.

An official announcement said $800,000 had been withdrawn during the day and $80,000 deposited or redeposited. The building association will open its offices at 9 o'clock this morning.

Reward Offered.

Last night directors of the building association, as individuals, offered $1,000 reward for information which would lead to the source of the false rumors set afloat about local financial conditions.

During the day Mr. Fleming, John Poole, president of the Federal-American National Bank; Francis E. Addison, president of the Security Savings & Commercial Bank, and Joshua Evans, jr., president of the District National Bank, addressed Perpetual Building Association depositors, who, through the vague channels of underground gossip, had been misled as to actual conditions, and assured them of the safety of the institution to which they had intrusted their money.

Capital bank officials were confident that the day's feeling of panic among individuals had been generated deliberately.

Anonymous Whisperings.

Direct evidence of the spread of malicious rumors reached The Post through George M. Emmerich, of the Northern Liberty Building Association. At least five clients of that institution reported they had received anonymous telephone calls warning them to withdraw their money from Washington banks and building associations. Other bankers said they had received similar information.

A meeting of the Washington Clearing House to consider what additional steps might be taken lasted well into the night. M. Addison, in a radio address reemphasized the soundness of the Perpetual Building Association's condition.

Financiers Confer.

When the withdrawals, which began in the morning, began to assume considerable proportions, Treasury Department officials and presidents

CONGRESS PREFERS REST OVER RELIEF

Leaders Want House to Cool Off and Senators Seek Silence.

HOOVER'S AID ON SCENE

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The opposing sides in what has come to be known as the big food controversy warily watched the other's every move yesterday, with the fire slowly but gradually receding from their eyes.

Publicly, no one would say a word. Privately, there were statements designed to hold up one or the other side's front, and above all there was the confident belief in responsible quarters that if no one "spills the beans" there will be a compromise and everybody will go home on March 4. In these same quarters there was a sort of tacit understanding, too, that the compromise would be on the proposal to appropriate $15,000,000 for loans to the drought-stricken farmers, in the event the President determines they are necessary.

This, it was argued, should square with his desire that any form of relief be toward assisting the farmers to rehabilitate themselves, while the contingent provision would be the answer to his statement that he was willing to have the Government extend relief if private agencies failed, a contingency which he emphasized, incidentally, that he did not think

YOUNG URGES LOANS ON VETERANS' BONUS

OTHERS SEE "DISASTER"

(Associated Press.)

Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Co., yesterday urged the House ways and means committee to enact legislation for new loans to needy veterans at a cost of as much as $500,000,000.

He, however, pronounced immediate redemption of $3,500,000,000 of World War adjusted compensation certificates, payable in 1945, as "unwarrantable."

Mr. Young drew frank praise from a Republican on the committee, Representative Crowther, of New York.

"You are the second witness before this committee to show a tinge of human sympathy," Mr. Crowther told him. "I congratulate you."

"The other witness Mr. Crowther referred to was Rome C. Stephenson, of Indiana, president of the American Bankers Association, who said that one of two suggested plans for advancing cash on certificates could be carried out "without serious injury to business."

A group of other business leaders warned that "disastrous" results to national and private finance would follow any payments on the veterans' certificates.

Says: Present conditions require the people to let the Congress know what they want done. That will usually prevent any need for future alarm. A great English writer has described the contortions that accompany the exorcism of an evil spirit. The same thing takes place in Washington. It is disturbing to the country to see it and hear it. But in spite of all the convulsions the Congress is made up of men and women with a great deal of common sense. After taking second thought and observing the popular reaction, they finally reach a fairly sound conclusion.

We live under constitutional government. All our officers are oath-bound to support the Constitution. One of the duties of the Congress is to make provision for the administration of the laws by granting necessary appropriations. When this is remembered it is not likely to seem morally defensible to attempt to suspend important Government functions to force passage of certain bills. A President has the power of removal, but he could not justify disbanding several departments of the Government to compel the Congress to accept his judgment. The Congress will find some method to avoid disbanding departments by refusing appropriations.

Einstein Sweeps Overboard His Concept of Universe

Tells Savants in California Basis for Relativity Principle Is Unsatisfactory and Offers New Unified Field; Theory Hinging on Americans' Work.

Pasadena, Calif., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Albert Einstein has a new concept of cosmology. The old Einstein universe is a thing of the past. A gasp of astonishment swept through the library of the Mount Wilson-Carnegie Institution of Washington laboratory here today when the Berlin professor, with a few simple words, made this revelation.

World famous astronomers present saw in his words a new field for research.

"Regardless of what field equations are used, space never can be anything similar to the old symmetrical spherical space theory," the professor said in closing an hour and a half talk on his new unified field theory.

With these words he swept aside his original concept of the universe, likewise that of De Sitter, Dutch astronomer.

The new concept of the universe hinges on the work of two California scientists, Dr. Edwin P. Hubble, Mount Wilson astronomer, and Dr. Richard Chace Tolman, physicist at the California Institute of Technology. It comes from the observations of Hubble and the calculations of Tolman.

Hubble, greatest of all explorers in astronomy is, perhaps, the world's most advanced student of the island universes or distant nebulae. Tolman has used Hubble's observations for the basis of his theory of an ever-expanding, nonstatic universe, in which matter is constantly being converted into energy. That concept is

Pitts Are Blamed in Row Over Palm Beach Sea Wall

Washington Couple's Protective Plan Causes Damage to Their Properties, Say Owners of Adjoining Mansions, in Bill Asking Court Injunction.

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Six of Palm Beach's wealthy seaside villa owners and the Atlantic Ocean became parties to a legal battle here today.

The ocean and Mr. and Mrs. G. Bryan Pitts, Washington, D. C., were blamed in a bill for injunction and other relief, for making life miserable in the ornate mansions of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shearson, E. Hope, G. Sister, and Mary P. Laughlin, of Old Westbury, Long Island, Newport and Pittsburgh, respectively. Their winter homes are close to the estate of Edward T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia.

The Shearsons, Sister and Mrs. Laughlin have asked the courts to enjoin Pitts from maintaining a stone wall jutting into the ocean beyond their seawalls.

In attempting to protect their estates from the Atlantic, which has greatly damaged their properties by erosion, all parties to the suit as well as the Stotesburys, have erected seawalls.

All, except the Pitts built walls of the step type which conform generally to the shore line and establish a general seawall line, in accordance with a uniform plan.

The Pitts built a perpendicular seawall. The impact of waves on the Pitts wall creates a roar which annoys the complainants, their petition said. It tends to destroy their enjoyment of their homes, dashes salt spray over their premises and damages shrubbery.

of prominent banking institutions hurried to the association's office to decide what measures to take to stop the run. By this time the lobby was packed and crowds were increasing about the building.

Comptroller of the Currency John W. Pole, Mr. Fleming, Mr. Poole, Mr. Addison, and U. S. Bank Examiners Chorpenning and Stewart, on arriving at the bank, immediately went into conference with Secretary Edward C. Baltz and other association officials.

After a short session, the three bank presidents, in turn, mounted a desk and assured the more than 300 persons crowding the lobby of the soundness of the institution and the folly of their fear.

They asserted plenty of cash was on hand to meet their demands.

Displays $500,000.

In support of this, Mr. Fleming opened a satchel containing $500,000, rushed by messenger from his bank, and displayed its contents to the needlessly stampeded persons.

There was applause before and after the talks of the bankers. When the bank notes were exhibited there were cries of "Let's go home," and a perceptible slackening in the mass jammed against the counters.

The crowd was orderly and, with the exception of a pale or tear-stained face here and there, all were good humored. A woman's shout, "Let's have more air in here," was all that spoke of nerves. Hence, city and Federal police and detectives circulating throughout the building had no trouble.

Business Goes On.

Persons were making deposits while others were withdrawing them. Smiling clerks attended to both classes good naturedly. At the rear, a telephone operator smilingly reassured inquiring patrons.

Mr. Addison was the first to talk to the people. He said he and his conferees had examined in detail the affairs of the institution, under control of the United States Government, and that a Federal examination of its books as of January 10, 1931, showed it has more than $1,800,000 in cash.

Laid to Red Plot.

Emphasizing that in the morning the association had more than this amount in cash, he asserted that inso far as any officer or director is concerned there has been nothing to cause any loss of confidence in the association, and that in examining its records not one thing had been discovered justifying an upsetting of confidence in any instance.

Explaining the soundness of the association's business methods in the handling of investments, cash and first mortgages on homes and improved property within the District, Mr. Addison said it had come to his attention that the situation was the result of a Communist move; that telephone calls spreading disquieting rumors had been circulated. He asked men and women as they withdrew their money to tell association officials what had prompted them to do so.

"The association's money is here and available," he went on, "but if after you get your money, any of you have the slightest clew you will be doing the city a big, decided benefit if the cause of this thing that has been brought on this splendid institution can be traced down."

Messenger Brings Money.

Those back in the mass could not at first hear Mr. Fleming, who raised his voice as calls came for "Louder." Recalling that the Perpetual had maintained relations with the Riggs for many years, he told his listeners there was no need for concern and that in case his hearers wanted money he was having half a million dollars in cash brought to the building at the moment.

A Riggs messenger entered at this time and from his opened bag, the bank's executive drew forth bundles of hundred and thousand-dollar notes, which brought applause.

John Poole, known as a Community Chest leader as well as a financier, was recognized by many when he began speaking, and was warmly applauded.

Poole Also Pledges Cash.

Speaking of having had banking connections with the besieged institution for many years, he declared he had implicit faith in the integrity of its officers, directors and in its soundness.

"I absolutely know of no place where you could leave your money with greater safety than in this institution," he said, showing that it had $22,000,000 in first-trust loans made on home properties in Washington, these being, in the main, seasoned loans on which monthly reduction of principal is being made. He concluded by pledging to make available $300,000, the legal loan limit of his bank, if necessary.

Secretary Baltz told the men and women in the lobby assurances of help had come from every bank in the city and asked them to give a little thought to their action before they closed their accounts.

Not Linked With Bankrupts.

Mr. Addison, the first and last to speak, again called to their attention a statement of Maj. Julius I. Peyser, speaking for himself and Henry P. Blair, receivers for the bankrupt Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co., that the latter's collapse should not concern the Perpetual's depositors. Maj. Peyser said that so far as the investigation had proceeded, no instance had been found of a loan made by the bankrupt firm to the building association. A number of persons making withdrawals reported that the Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey failure had made them uneasy.

Officers and directors of the building association are: James Berry, president; Arthur G. Bishop, vice president; Edward C. Baltz, secretary; Maryin A. Custis, treasurer; Raymond K. Espey, assistant secretary; John C. Scofield, Vernon G. Owen, Franklin W. Harper, Dr. William O. Schafhirt. Its patrons number approximately 28,000.

Addison Talks Over Radio.

"The Perpetual Building Association, Washington's largest, and one of the largest building associations in the country, is experiencing a severe withdrawal of deposits, which started today—without cause. It will be reassuring to their depositors and to the citizens of Washington to know that a meeting this afternoon with bankers and Treasury officials showed that the Treasury Department finished an examination of this building association on January 10, 1931, and the report of this examination was closely examined this afternoon and showed same in excellent condition—they had cash of $1,800,000; they had first trusts of $22,000,000 on loans that are paid on each month on the homes of the people of Washington.

"Their association was in such excellent condition that immediately the Riggs National Bank sent one-half million in cash—and the other banks present will send additional cash if necessary. The Perpetual Building Association will open tomorrow at the usual hour.

"This building association is in excellent condition and every one is at a loss to know upon what rumor confidence was shaken. It apparently was started by telephone calls to various Government departments by those that had some ulterior motive, and it is freely said that it was started by Communists.

VOTE OF CONFIDENCE GIVEN BANKS IN CITY

APPRAISER IS DEMANDED

Expressing its "utmost confidence in the soundness and integrity of banking institutions of Washington," the Central Citizens Association in resolutions adopted unanimously last night urged Congress to name an "official appraiser for the District of Columbia."

The association, meeting in the North Capital Savings Bank Building, took occasion at the same time to deplore "the irresponsible rumors circulated around" regarding banking in this city.

"The association nevertheless thought this would be a most opportune time to ask Congress for appointment of an official appraiser whose opinion of the value of property on which mortgage notes were to be floated would be final and conclusive," the resolution said.

It also expressed "insistance that all firms doing a quasi-banking business be subject to inspection and control of the Comjtroller of the Currency," adding that "this would include investment bankers selling mortgage notes, and stock brokers."

The resolutions were introduced by John G. McMahon, an attorney in the Navy Department, as the association's vice president and secretary. Other speakers included Dr. William P. Kenealy, Charles F. Durand, William Holohan and others.

Other subjects discussed included better police protection and the parking question in the vicinity of the Government Printing Office.

CRAMTON NOT TO GET $10,000 YEAR PLACE

it appears certain that it is not going to be Mr. Cramton.

Asked whether he would take the job yesterday, Mr. Cramton protested that The Post already had made him appear as if he were running around seeking any job he could find and that was a distinctively unfair and untrue picture. So far as the bicentennial commission job went, Mr. Cramton said, he had made his statement on the floor of the House on Tuesday and that would have to stand. It was in that statement that he called Mr. Caraway a liar and told Representative Parks (Democrat), Arkansas, it was none of his business whether or not he would accept the post if offered.

That the tension was more than normal was shown yesterday by the actions of the principals. Their words and attitude revived memories of the days when members of House and Senate might not say what they wished, with a view of the pleasure of the folks back home.

Senator Caraway took notice of the speeches of Representatives Cramton and Allen Treadway (Republican), Massachusetts. He telephoned their offices, he said, and then he went to the Senate floor, and saying that he doubted the good taste of what he was about to do declared that "I have been endeavoring to extend to them an opportunity to tell me personally what they really think about it. They have declined to do it, Mr. President, or to afford me an opportunity to tell them privately what I think about them, I am now extending them this public invitation. At any time that is convenient for them it will be convenient for me to have them tell me privately what they want to say about that speech."

Senator Caraway visited the House. He walked down the center aisle, loitered a few minutes, spoke to one or two Democratic members and left.

Representative Cramton was on the floor, writing at a desk when the senator came in. Representative John C. Schafer (Republican), Wisconsin, a very big man, pushed Mr. Cramton but the Michigan man kept on writing. Representative Treadway was not in the House. He is a larger man than Representative Cramton, and is huskier than Mr. Caraway.

Speaker Nicholas Longworth, however, had persuaded Mr. Cramton to be good and when Representative Treadway proved recalcitrant he sent him home, and so there was no physical encounter.

"I'm sick of it, sick of it," Senator Caraway told reporters as he left the House chamber.

Inquiry to Start Today In Drys' Wire Tapping

(Associated Press.)

Investigation into the practice of wire tapping by the prohibition bureau will get under way today before the House expenditures committee. Attorney General Mitchell, Prohibition Director Woodcock and J. Edgar Hoover, directors of the Bureau of Investigation of the Justice Department, are scheduled to testify.

The inquiry is to be made on the basis of a resolution adopted by the committee sponsored by Representative Schafer (Republican), Wisconsin.

Man, Pronounced Dead, Revived With Adrenalin

Kansas City, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Newman Hershfield, 64, a Kalamazoo, Mich., merchant, was revived by the application of modern science after apparently having died on the operating table in a hospital here last night.

Adrenalin was injected into the heart muscles and in a few minutes heart action was restored. Mr. Hershfield suffers from chronic heart disease. Shortly after the administration of an anaesthetic the patient was pronounced dead by the surgeon in charge of the operation.

YOUNG CRITICIZES BANKING SYSTEMS

Nationalization of Deposit Institutions in Reserve Group Urged.

CALLS FOR DISCIPLINE

(Associated Press.)

Nationalization of all banks of deposit under supervision of the Federal Reserve system was proposed yesterday by Owen D. Young, New York financier, as a major step toward development of a "sound" banking policy to prevent recurring economic disasters.

"Then, for the first time," he said, "we shall be able to fix responsibility somewhere for a sound banking system."

This was included among a series of proposals and suggestions presented by the author of the Young plan for German reparations payments, to the Senate banking investigating committee which is considering changes in existing law to curb large-scale stock market gambling.

The financier told the committee the country could not go along under 49 different banking systems, and if correction measures could not be applied by legislation then an amendment to the Constitution should be enacted.

Too Many Bank Failures.

"We have seen thousands of bank failures," he said, "and it is a reflection on the American people if they can't get protection against this condition. If it finally is decided that the Federal Government hasn't authority to correct this I see no way out except through amendment of the Constitution." He would require all savings banks and trust companies to be State institutions and noncompetitive with national banks.

With control under one authority, he said, this would "at once mobilize all our banking reserves into one central system, which is as it should be."

Mr. Young added that while no law could prevent bank failures, this new system would "minimize them greatly." He said he "bitterly opposed" impairment of the rights of States in their appropriate field, adding it seemed strange that in the face of gravitation toward Federal authority "we should have retained divided rather than unified power over our deposit banking system."

Mr. Young said the Reserve System should have power to examine, discipline and even expel member banks.

Hesitation One Weakness.

"One of the weaknesses of the banking system at present, in addition to the competition between the governments for charters," he said, "is the natural hesitation of the Federal Reserve banks, in the absence of clearly expressed powers, to require the correction of undesirable practices within the law in State banks, particularly lest they withdraw from the system and thereby weaken its resources and general influence."

Mr. Young said the Reserve System should learn to "act more quickly" to check "orgies of speculation," such as occurred in 1927 and 1928. He expressed the opinion the low rediscount rates in the latter half of 1927 and early in 1928 were justified, but he thought they were continued too long.

An indefinite adjournment was taken by the committee after hearing Young.

Maryland Legislature Seat Being Contested

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 4.—Grafton D. C. Dailey, defeated Democratic candidate for the House of Delegates from Calvert County, today filed formal contest of the election of Joseph C. Chaney, Republican. The petition was filed with Delegate Lawrence P. Williams (Democrat), St. Mary's County, chairman of the elections committee.

Chairman Williams immediately called a meeting of the committee for next Wednesday to hear testimony taken before Magistrate J. E. Duvall, of Calvert County, when the original action was filed.

BUSINESS OPPOSED TO EXTRA SESSION

SMALL CITIES UNSCARED

(Associated Press.)

General opposition of business organizations to a special session of Congress was reflected yesterday in communications made public by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Announcing the result of an inquiry it had made of commercial and trade associations, the chamber said, "Of the hundreds of replies received, not more than a score suggested that a special session would be beneficial to business and an even smaller number expressed the opinion that an extra session would make no difference one way or the other.

"The expressions generally do not go into the merits of legislation now pending," it said. "The strongly preponderant view is that before March 4 Congress should pass all measures Congress considers necessary.

Opinion on Recovery Asked.

"The question as put to member organizations was as follows:

"'Would a special session of Congress be an important factor likely to influence business recovery?'"

From the larger cities, the response was particularly hostile to the session.

The San Francisco and Denver Chambers of Commerce voted that it would be "unnecessary and disturbing to business." The Chicago Board of Trade responded: "The legislative uncertainty in Washington is such that an extra session of Congress would have a strong tendency to defer a marked improvement in business."

In behalf of the Detroit Board of Commerce it was held that "an extra session will have a bad effect on business and it should be discouraged." The Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association concurred.

Opposed in New York.

Something like a dozen separate organizations of business men in New York City reported adversely.

The Commercial Exchange of Philadelphia, one of the few metropolitan organizations which had a minority opinion, said, "A special session would be desirable if Congress considered the cancellation of international war debts." All other city trade bodies reporting from that State were in opposition.

Some of the smaller cities in which the special session was favored mentioned particular legislation as being possible in the outcome of such an enterprise.

California and Oklahoma oil producing territories were inclined to favor the session on the ground that a petroleum tariff might result from it.

President Chosen By State Society

John W. Smith was elected president of the West Virginia Society of Washington last night, succeeding Stewart F. Reed, resigned, at a meeting of the society at the Washington Club. Mr. Smith formerly was sixth vice president of the organization.

Representative Joe L. Smith (Democrat), West Virginia, was elected sixth vice president. The society accepted the resignation of Mrs. Guy D. Goff as treasurer and elected Col. J. William DeGrange to succeed her.

Speakers at the meeting included Representative Frank L. Bowman (Republican), West Virginia, and Representative John M. Wolverton (Republican), West Virginia. Mrs. Anne Jarvis, a native of West Virginia, and founder of Mother's Day, was elected to honorary membership. A card party and dance followed the business session.

COUNSEL FOR BUREAU PILLORIED BY BLANTON

His list, which the Texan said was just a beginning, was as follows:

Dr. G. C. Skinner, whose salary is $6,500 and who draws $150 a month for disability.

Dr. E. M. Johnson, salary $4,400, whose compensation from the Government is an additional $150 a month.

Dr. B. A. McDermott, whose salary is $5,000, drawing $125 a month additional for disability.

Dr. Thomas Foster, whose salary is $5,400, draws $150 a month additional on approved claims of war wounds.

"Everybody knows," Mr. Blanton said, "that Mr. Smith gave little war service and what he gave was as a swivel chair officer.

"It little behooves the Veterans' Bureau to come up here and lobby against legislation to pay a just debt to the men who fought in the war."

POWER BOARD FIGHT NARROWS TO SMITH

Senate Again Confirms Two, but Walsh Wants Legal Test on Chairman.

REJECTION VOTE IS 40-33

(Associated Press.)

The contest between President Hoover and the Senate over the Power Commission members narrowed yesterday to Chairman Smith.

Although Mr. Hoover has refused the Senate's request to return the nominations of Chairman Smith and Commissioners Marcel Garsaud and Claude L. Draper, the Senate proceeded to vote on them again.

Smith was rejected, 40 to 33, but Garsaud and Draper were reconfirmed. The vote on Garsaud was 39 to 35, and on Draper, 39 to 36.

Debate Walsh Resolution.

With the controversy thus centered on Smith, the Senate began debate on a resolution by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, to test in the courts his right of office. The issue involved is unprecedented in American history. The Senate recessed without voting on the resolution.

The dispute arose because of the dismissal of Solicitor Charles A. Russell and Chief Accountant William V. King, of the commission. King has been reinstated.

No debate preceded the new vote. Senator Walsh simply said consideration of the nominations was "one step" in the move toward a court decision and called attention to his resolution providing for instituting legal proceedings.

On the Smith vote, ten Republicans and Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, voted with the Democrats to reject his nomination. Four Democrats voted for it.

Voting on Smith.

The Democrats supporting him were Blease, Broussard, Kendrick and Ransdell.

One Republican, Hatfield, and four Democrats, Fletcher, Pittman Trammell and Tydings, who voted against Smith, supported Garsaud. Fletcher and Trammell opposed Draper, but Brookhart, Republican, and Wagner, Democrat, supported him.

Walsh immediately called up his resolution to ask District Attorney Rover, here, to institute legal proceedings and modified it to apply only to Smith.

Senator Shortridge (Republican), California, objected to its consideration, but Vice President Curtis overruled the objection.

"Futile," Says Shortridge.

Shortridge called the resolution "futile," arguing the commissioners had been confirmed legally and commissioned and the Senate had reconsidered the confirmations too late.

He said there could be only one outcome, a decision that Smith's title to office was "absolutely good."

Shortridge also contended Rover would be within his rights if he agreed with President Hoover and Attorney General Mitchell and refused to institute legal proceedings.

Ransdell (Democrat), Louisiana, agreed with Shortridge. He contended the only way the men could be removed was by presidential removal or impeachment.

Walsh said Mr. Rover might refuse to institute the court test, but he did not believe he would, because in a dispute between the President and the Senate it was only "right" that the courts should be called upon to decide the issue.

LEADERS DEMAND REST OVER RELIEF

would arise. In that happy event, under the contingent provision of the loan, none of the $15,000,000 ever would be used.

There were no steps taken toward such a compromise yesterday. Rather, it is the plan to let the House cool off awhile, and to let the realization sink in that, when two such juggernauts clash, as they have in the present controversy, there must be some backing away.

The proposal by Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, that $25,000,000 be appropriated for the Red Cross to be used only if needed, did not gain much support. There is no question that one phase of this proposal would break precedents, and that is the phase extending relief to the unemployed in the population centers.

There would be no departure from precedents in extending loans to the drought-stricken farmers, despite all the confusion there has been on the subject. Similar action has been taken countless times in the past, in fact, virtually every time there has been a major calamity.

The President has been opposed to this proposal in the present controversy, however. He has taken a very strong stand, regardless of how many times it has been done in the past, against the principle of encouraging people to look to the Federal Government.

One of those who have come to be termed "his friends" around here reiterated, too, that there would be no compromise on this principle. If he knows what he is talking about there will not be any compromise.

For that matter, the President was otherwise represented as not being in a compromising mood, as being indignant, in fact, at the compromising interpretation placed upon his statement of Tuesday. Senators Watson and McNary conferred with him at breakfast, and the impression they sought to convey was that he received their suggestions of compromise quite coldly.

Yet the belief persisted that there would be a compromise.

It was argued by the compromisers that, even though Mr. Hoover insisted on the principle he involved in the $15,000,000 proposal originally, he could now accept it on the contingent basis and explain that he did so as the price of avoiding an extra session; and as the Republicans have long insisted that an extra session will retard the country's recovery from the depression, such yielding would be considered a distinct contribution to the return to normalcy instead of yielding on a principle.

The Democrats pricked up their ears when they heard that Col. Campbell Hodges, the President's chief military aid, had been sent to Arkansas for a first-hand report of conditions and how they are being met. It might be, they figured, that his report would be used to justify the President in accepting a compromise, or instead might be used to bolster up his position.

In the meantime the Senate leaders are to try to keep anybody from discussing the matter for a day or so.

Bishop Cannon is said to be war profiteering in the matter of buying flour. This charge was ventilated in the press some months ago, and at that time it was explained by the bishop. Mr. Adams has not hitherto appeared in the case, and it is thought that he was called to verify the books of the school, which the four prosecuting ministers may have in their possession.

This school, some years ago, passed out of Bishop Cannon's hands. He continued on the board of trustee, but since the present investigation has been brewing he has retired from that office.

Shortly after Mr. Adams entered the church, Fred Morgan, a Richmond detective, accompanied by a Mr. Thomas, a lawyer from Richmond, went in. They remained but a few moments and left before Mr. Adams did.

Dr. W. Asbury Christian, one of the leading ministers in Virginia, and for a number of years secretary of the General Conference, had trouble getting in, although he supposedly was a witness. He sent his card in to Dr. Costen J. Harrell, one of the prosecutors, and Dr. W. A. Shelton, pastor of the church, had to vouch for him before the policeman would open the doors.

It has been rumored for two years that during the 1928 campaign detectives were closely following Bishop Cannon's movements, but who they were, who employed them, and for what purpose has never been disclosed. It would have been the natural thing, however, to employ a Richmond detective for this work, for Bishop Cannon had his political headquarters there, lived there for a number of years, and familiar persons could observe his movements without themselves being observed.

Politics Tabooed.

But politics has been tabooed in this investigation, and a political detective, or a detective doing political shadowing, does not fit into the picture of an inquiry into the character of a minister. This, then, makes the mystery of a detective's appearance all the more amazing as an incident in the investigation.

It is said in informed Methodist circles that the four ministers who are conducting this investigation, "have enough incriminating evidence to convict 30 men." This phrase would indicate that they have gone a long way back in their search for evidence, for Bishop Cannon has been more or less of a storm center in Virginia politics and in Southern Methodism for 40 years.

Most of the evidence that is being presented to the committee of twelve ministers is documentary—photostats of ledgers, of hotel registers, of letters, of documents and newspapers and printed public records like the Congressional Record.

Pushing Charges.

From the reports coming out of the committee room, the impression is gained that Drs. Prettyman, Harrell, Masten and Martin are pushing their charges with vigor and courage, and Bishop Cannon is contesting every inch of the ground, objecting to testimony, explaining some of it, and denying other parts of it.

Nothing could better demonstrate Bishop Cannon's self-mastery than the way he is conducting his case. Even those who have known him for a generation say they were unprepared for such rapidity of thought, such complete self-control, such readiness in meeting every situation, as he is displaying in this inquiry. Of course he is fully advised—and has been for some months—of the nature of the charges against him, for he was told by cable last fall that charges "covering everything that had been printed about him in Northern newspapers" formed the indictment the prosecutors were framing against him.

Cannon May Make Statement.

There will probably be argument of the evidence by the ministers who are conducting the case, and Bishop Cannon may make a statement in his own behalf. As he has been given the widest possible latitude, so that no one could say he did not have a fair hearing, a final word from him, if he requested it, would not be denied him.

In such a contingency, if it looks as if the day has gone against him, it is expected that the bishop will do something dramatic or melodramatic as he did at the Dallas general conference. There, after withstanding all pressure, after a prolonged hearing before the committee on episcopacy, after denying that he had done any wrong in speculating in Wall Street, he made a complete volte face, appeared before the conference in tears, confessed his error and asked forgiveness.

Never before in the history of Southern Methodism was a scene just like that enacted. The conference was so stirred that many broke into tears. There were some who said this was carefully staged; but whether it was or not, it carried the day for the bishop; his character was passed, he was forgiven, and then honored with a reelection to the office which has given him his political prominence and political power.

If the closing scene of the present drama in his life is to have a similar ending—which some think is to be—it might have an effect that will upset all of the calculations of those pressing this case against him.

It is rather amusing to see to what lengths still the effort is made to cover up the identity of the presiding bishops and the members of the investigating committee. These grave and dignified Methodist ministers even wear a light-hearted mien and cheerful countenance in their efforts to throw the dogs off the scent.

But back of this masking there is a deep sense of justice. The ministers chosen for this solemn inquiry were instructed not to tell their wives and families where they were going, and not to let any member of their congregation know it, and not to tell anybody else about it. The purpose in this was to keep away all prejudices and passion and outside influence from the committee. Not even Dr. Prettyman and his colaborers even now know all the members of the jury, and Bishop Cannon did not know who they were until he confronted them. No member of the committee knew who any other member was until they all met together, and even then, so far apart do they live and labor, most of them were strangers even by name to each other.

GRAND JURY TO FREE LIMERICK SUSPECTS

tensive inquiries ever carried out before a local coroner's jury.

Last week the grand jury went exhaustively into the case and resumed its inquiry Monday. At that time Dr. Greene appeared a second time and was questioned at great length as to why he did not make more than a superficial examination of the body, even though the girl was dead.

Yesterday members of the grand jury frankly admitted that unless additional information was forthcoming there would be no indictment. This viewpoint was verified from other sources.

YOUNG URGES LOANS ON VETERANS' BONUS

through the afternoon, and dozens of representatives attended.

Uniformed veterans were among the spectators. One placarded veteran in civilian garb was called to the stand after Young. He made a plea for assistance.

Then Jacob S. Coxey, who led an army of unemployed on the Capitol, back in the nineties, was heard, urging issuance of Treasury notes to veterans in the full value of their war grants.

Mr. Young concurred with Secretary Mellon and an array of bankers and brokers in a warning that a $3,500,000,000 bond issue to cover the cost of full payment would disrupt financial conditions.

"There are perhaps 5,000,000 people out of work," he said, "and nearly 50,000,000 people gainfully employed in the United States. That means that 10 per cent are unemployed. In addition there are those whose power has been so diminished as to disable them from meeting their needs and there are those in the drought areas who are suffering distress.

"It would seem on any reasonable calculation, certainly, that not more than one-fourth, or at the most, one-third, of the total number of veterans now need cash to relieve actual distress. If that be so, then the Government might advance to those who are in need a substantial percentage of the face value of their certificates, over and above any loans which may have been made on the certificates under existing law."

The amount of such payments, Mr. Young added, "would probably be not less than $300,000,000 and not more than $500,000,000."

Questioned, Mr. Young estimated that these funds would allow 40 to 50 per cent increase in the allowance for loans on certificates on which veterans would seek cash. He estimated that not more than 30 per cent would ask for additional money and this he termed a "liberal calculation."

Holding to the principle he had advanced, through a maze of cross-questioning, the financier calmly told the committee that he did not believe it would give rise to charges of favoritism against veterans not actually in need.

If it did, "I would pay no attention to it," he said.

Asked for a "constructive thought" on interest to be charged, Mr. Young said, "the United States Government ought to be very generous—perhaps 3 per cent; perhaps 3½."

Representative Crisp (Democrat), Georgia, asked what about allowing county officials, such as probate judges, to pass on neediness and the witness responded, "Very good, sir."

TEACHERS' COLLEGE ADDS 3 TO FACULTY

Woman Kin of Calhoun Gets Post of Librarian in Virginia Institution.

TWO MADE SUPERVISORS

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Three additions to the faculty of the Fredericksburg State Teachers' College were announced today.

The new members are Miss Margaret Calhoun, of Birmingham, who has accepted the post of librarian; Miss Caroline Gaines, of Jasper, Ala., and Miss Lucy Pierce, of Trenton, Tenn., who have assumed their duties as supervisors in the college training school.

Miss Calhoun is the great-great-granddaughter of John C. Calhoun. She studied at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, but took her bachelor of arts degree at Birmingham Southern College. Then she pursued a course in library science at Columbia University.

Miss Gaines received her degree of bachelor of science from Peabody College and was a teacher in the public schools of Birmingham. She is now supervisor of the first grade in the training school at Fredericksburg.

Miss Pierce also studied at Randolph-Macon and received the degree of bachelor of science and master of arts from Peabody College. She was employed in the Teachers College at Florence, Ala. In her new post she will supervise the teaching of languages in the high school department of the college training school.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THE Democrats are getting to be more and more like the unlettered ball player who is taken up by the social elect. Instead of acting natural of conducting himself in the graceful manner of the diamond which caused him to be "accepted," he picks up a lot of broad "A's" and artificial manners which make him a pain in the neck.

Just now the Democrats think society is about to accept them and place them in the White House in 1932 and they are getting so self-conscious that they are not themselves at all.

Every time they embark upon a definite course they get to thinking so much about the Presidency, or catering to the crowd whose favor they think they must have, that they hesitate and falter and stumble all over themselves.

* * * *

THEY got to agitating the bonus not with any serious intent of forcing a $4,000,000,000 bond issue, but in the realization that from their agitation would come some measure of relief, but their Eastern patrons immediately checked them with their "Ah, but that is not the way to carry New York. That is distasteful to our best financial interests." And they immediately backtracked, leaving the very distinct impression that they are just a bunch of devilish children with never a serious thought in their lives.

After much labor and sweat they embarked upon a very definite course and took a very definite stand in the matter of appropriating to relieve distress.

The Eastern patrons again say "Tut, tut, you are not acting just right to gain the favor of old Manhattan." Whereupon, they get so hysterical that it is impossible to tell what they will do.

* * * *

NOW this does not concern the merits of their undertakings or what they will eventually do about them.

It is simply to say that they will gain more favor in the long run by shaping their policies without regard to 1932, but by what they think is right—and above all, as Democrats, as the same kind of Democrats they were when there was no chances whatsoever of getting to the White House and this has been mostly their outlook since the Civil War.

If it is their natural way to say "ain't" they ought to continue to say it as they approach the White House and not try to pick up the manners of the drawing room. We either like them or do not like them as Democrats. They do not register at all as hybrids.

Iodine, Fat, Iron Reported As Vitamin B Substitute

Morgantown, W. Va., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—A synthetic substitute for vitamin A, the growth factor, has been found at the University of West Virginia.

The substance is a combination of iodine, fats and iron. There is nothing mysterious about it. Thus far it has been tried only on rats and the results were obtained simply by giving them along with meals ferrous oxide, which contains the iodine and iron, and linoleic acid, which has the fats.

In reporting the discovery to the American Association for the advancement of Science, Dr. F. E. Chidester says:

"Without forcibly feeding the animal, we have demonstrated that for those that will consume the linoleic acid and ferrous oxide combination there is apparent ability to synthesize vitamin A."

Apparently the chemicals contain about the same substances as vitamin A, for the scientist explains the vitamin is rich in unsaturated fats, iodine, iron and other minerals. He kept alive for ten months rats, which otherwise would have died for lack of vitamin A, by merely feeding them the ferrous oxide. But they failed to grow.

When the fats were added, the response was almost magical. Some of the rats were nearly dead, but they showed improvement in three days.

This ability of a living body to supply its own vitamin by natural chemical synthesis appears closely related to certain fats in diet, Dr. Chidester's report refers particularly to a recent discovery by another scientist, Dr. H. M. Evans, of the University of California, that fatty acids from coconut oil are beneficial in the deficiency of vitamin B. This is the nerve vitamin.

"It is quite evident," the report says, "that we must conclude the behavior of unsaturated fats and iodine in the animal body is worthy of consideration in connection with various diseases classed as vitamin deficiencies."

The West Virginia work gives promise of a second "artificial" field for vitamin supplies. The first is ultra-violet light, which many scientific institutions have found produces certain vitamins.

Dr. Chidester was assisted by A. G. Eaton and N. K. Speicher, of the West Virginia staff.

Bethesda Club Plans Benefits

Two Performances Are Arranged at State Theater Tomorrow.

Two benefit performances by the Bethesda Women's Club will be given at the State Theater in Bethesda tomorrow night at 7 o'clock and 9:15 o'clock. The performances will not be continuous and the theater will be cleared between shows.

"Grumpy," one of the best motion picture shows of 1930, featuring the English actor, Cyril Maude, will be supplemented with a group of exceptional performances. Brooke Johns, formerly with the Ziegfeld Follies, will be master of ceremonies, as well as offering banjo selections. There will also be selections by Ralph Garren and his Carolinians, Esther Melick Ingraham, soprano, and Larry Hendrick, organist.

Youth Found Dead With Shot in Leg

Searching Party Discovers Body of Boy Missing Since Monday.

Special to The Washington Post.

Bluemont, Va., Feb. 4.—Thawley Dinges, 16 years old, son of Milton Dinges, who lives in the short hill mountains above Bluemont, was found dead this morning in the mountains, about 6 miles from Bluemont, with a gun wound in the leg, according to reports received here.

Young Dinges had been hunting with a companion, Mason Reed, on Monday. When they became separated the Reed boy went home. A search was started when Dinges failed to return Tuesday, which resulted in the boy's dead body being found by friends.

According to reports, Dinges fell on his gun accidentally, shooting himself.

RELIEF COMMITTEES IN FAIRFAX SELECTED

LIST OF MEMBERS GIVEN

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 243, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

County Agricultural Agent H. B. Derr announced yesterday that he has received communication from the Extension Bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture giving the names of those persons who had been selected to the general and local drought relief committees, in Fairfax County. These committees will have charge of passing upon the Federal farm relief loans made to farmers of the county. The general committee will be composed of Edgar Littleton, cashier of the Fairfax National Bank; W. H. Elmore, of Floris, and Ronald Blake, of Oakton, both farmers.

The investigation concerning these loans will be taken care of by community committees which will give recommendations to the general county committee. The community committees will be as follows: Forestville, Mark Turner, W. C. Walker, A. Speight, Charles Jenkins; Dranesville, Charles Gardner, O. K. Miller, Frank Hammond and L. Crippen; Floris, B. W. Middleton, R. E. Beard, J. B. Armfield, T. W. Wamsley and Maurice Fox; Colvin Run, J. E. Wheeler, Marvin Saunders, Mark Cockrell and J. L. Money; Andrew Chapel, Harry Leigh, C. C. Pierpont, R. E. Berry, B. B. Iden, Roy Money and Charles Roller.

McLean, G. W. Carper, Dr. J. B. Anderson, J. H. Beattie, J. C. Storm and French Trammell; Oakton, C. T. Rice, H. R. C. Shockey, Franklin Williams, F. H. Curtice and George Speer; Groveton, W. F. P. Reid, Frank Wilkinson, Earl Saum, Parker Richardson and George Smith.

Woodlawn, T. B. Mason, George C. Gillingham, Joseph W. Cox, H. S. Clapp, E. J. Nevitt and Edmund H. Allen; Clifton Station, D. W. Buckley, Clarence Fleming, H. F. Myers, W. H. Richards and R. C. Lewis; Fairfax Station, C. P. Jones, Claude Riggles, C. E. Chesley and D. W. Woodard; Centerville, J. F. DeBell, Dallas Hutchison, G. M. James and George F. Tuberville; Farr, A. W. Hunsberger, A. A. Hampton, James Franklin and Courtland Fairfax.

Lorton, Kyle Davis, B. F. Nevitt, L. L. Demory, W. F. Halley and J. W. Chrisman; Burke, Robert Rice, Henry Stabler, Egbert Watt, A. B. Carter and George White; Baileys Cross Roads, C. H. Powell, Andrew Cornelius, John B. Dowden, J. W. Gaines and W. W. Cleveland.

Falls Church, E. D. Mosbury, H. H. Ankers, Charles Kaiser and John Kearns; Annandale, J. W. Brookfield, Willis Sipes, J. W. Biggers, Mason Hirst and W. N. Miller.

Mr. Derr states that he has the application blanks and necessary papers to be filled out by the farmer for the Federal seed and fertilizer loans in his office at Fairfax. To secure the loan, which will not exceed $600, a farmer must give a chattel mortgage or lien on all crops that he raises. These loans are to be repaid by November 30, 1931. It is believed by many of the farmers in Fairfax County that these loans will be but little help to them. Mr. Derr states that he plans to meet the local community committees some time during next week. The community committees will be organized and the community chairmen selected at each meeting.

The Fairfax County board of supervisors has completed its annual budget for the 1931-32 fiscal year, but the exact figures will not be available for publication for several days. It has been understood that the items show very little or no increase over those of the current year. The total amount of the budget is believed to be slightly lower, as the supervisors endeavored to keep the items as low as possible so that there would be no increase in the tax rate for next year. Before the budget is finally adopted, the tentative budget will be published 30 days prior to a public hearing when the taxpayers will be given an opportunity to express themselves for and against the items contained therein.

At yesterday's meeting of the board Thomas R. Keith appeared for a natural gas pipe line company petitioning the board for a right to lay mains across the county roads at designated places in Centreville and Dranesville districts. This line is to be a 20-inch main for the transportation of natural gases from Kentucky to the north. It will cross the Potomac River near Great Falls. The board granted the petition subject to the county's regulations governing public utilities.

A communication was received from Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Park and Planning Commission, asking the county board to recommend some one for appointment as a member to the board of land appraisers, which will make investigations in connection with the proposed George Washington Memorial Parkway, from Great Falls to Mount Vernon, along the Potomac River. The supervisors decided to recommend Earl Saum, of Mount Vernon district, for the appointment. Mr. Saum was one of the members of the Fairfax County Board of Tax Assessors, which reassessed all the real estate in Fairfax County during the past year.

A certificate was received from Sheriff E. P. Kirby, which stated that it was necessary in the conduct of his office to have another paid deputy as provided by the act passed by the last State Legislature.

The gas tax of $4,542.33 for last month was received from the State and ordered placed in the county road fund and the dog fund of $1,800 was ordered placed in the road fund. The State last month returned to Fairfax County $3,599, which represents one-third of the capitation or poll taxes collected from the county last year. The monthly reports of the county officers were read and ordered filed by the board.

The children's division of religious education in Fairfax County at a recent meeting elected Miss Katherine Doak, of Clifton, as president. Mrs. Harvey E. Hanes, of Herndon, was elected vice president, and Mrs. R. E. Ankers, of Falls Church, secretary-treasurer.

The Southern Methodist Missionary Society at Falls Church will meet this afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. V. Shreve with Mrs. R. P. Shaffer as assistant hostess. Mrs. Henry Knowles will lead the program.

The Society of the Sacred Heart at Falls Church will meet this evening in the rectory.

Commissioner of Revenue James U. Kincheloe and his deputy will be at David Crocket's store at Groveton today to assist taxpayers in making out their income on tangible and intangible property. Tomorrow they will be at Talbert's store at Franconia.

A Home Demonstration Club has been organized at Andrew Chapel with Mrs Roy Money as president; Mrs. Lawrence Leigh, vice president; Mrs. John C. Berry, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Lawrence Leigh and Mrs. John Berry were selected as leaders of the club.

The Annandale Home Demonstration Club at its meeting today will have a demonstration, by their club leader on working surfaces, storage space and labor saving devices in the kitchen.

County Almshouse Additions Planned

Number of Inmates Sets Up Record; Jail Is Also Crowded.

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Feb. 3.—The Page County Almshouse is housing more inmates than at any time in its history. The superintendent of the institution, John A. Cave, is preparing to make extensive additions in order to care for the daily increasing number, who are making applications for admission.

While this is going on the Page County Jail, Luray, is crowded with inmates who are said to have broken such laws as will draw terms in the local jail instead of bringing penitentiary sentences.

Law violators, officials say, are committing misdemeanor offenses, while very few felony charges are heard by the courts. The misdemeanor offenses bring jail terms, while the felony charges usually result in heavier sentences.

INCREASE OF NEEDY TAXES SOCIAL FUND

Montgomery County League Treasury Strained by More Demands.

LAND WILL BE CLEARED

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4206.

Increasing demands on the Montgomery County Social Service League are causing a serious strain on the league's budget, it was announced yesterday by Miss Katherine Kirwan, acting executive secretary. The increase is largely attributable to drought conditions although the cases are not the sort that ordinarily would be classified as drought cases.

The increase is shown in a chart prepared by Miss Kirwan, which shows that in November, the league furnished relief to 38 families at a cost of $496.19. In December the number of families requiring relief totaled 47 at a cost of $642.98, and in January the cases mounted to 81, which cost $979.72. These additional cases largely were not expected when the league's budget was prepared.

The league is now assisting 11 families which are directly suffering from drought conditions. Of the remainder, 50 families require relief because of the lack of employment. Most of these are farm laborers who fail to find employment because of drought conditions.

In November the league's service was given to 246 cases, in December to 271 cases and in January, 316. The increase in appeals has meant proportionate increase in expenditure of the league's income over and above its income.

One of the projects which is to be undertaken under auspices of the Social Service League is that of providing wood and work to unemployed, according to Mrs. Edward I. Stacy, who has been named by the executive committee as chairman.

Property owners in the county who have tracts of land requiring clearing are to be asked to hire county unemployed at a rate lower than the usual price for clearing lands. The wood which is cleared is to be chopped into suitable lengths and distributed among the county needy. In this manner it is planned to provide employment, the means of clearing land at a saving and sufficient wood for this winter.

Two petitions for absolute divorce were filed yesterday in Circuit Court at Rockville, the attorney in both cases being John E. Oxley, of Rockville.

Charles A. Rideout, of Dickerson, asks a divorce from Mrs. Nellie W. Rideout, of Pittsburgh, Pa., alleging desertion. The couple was married October 9, 1919, at Washington. They have one child.

Leo F. Brooks, of Montgomery County, asks a divorce from Mrs. Rosie L. Brooks, of Crittenden street near Fifth street northwest, also alleging desertion. The couple was married April 4, 1923, at New York and has no children.

A business and social meeting will be held tonight at 8 o'clock by the Epworth League of Epworth M. E. Church, Gaithersburg, in the church hall. Miss Elizabeth S. Virts, president, will preside.

Mill Blaze Loss Set at $250,000

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 4.—Loss in today's fire, which wiped out the William A. Danzer & Co. lumber plant here, was placed at $250,000 by the president, William A. Danzer, who said that $75,000 insurance was carried. Approximately 60 men were thrown out of work.

Besides the main plant and storage sheds, 500,000 feet of finished hardwood flooring, ready for shipment, and 500,000 feet of lumber in the drying kilns were destroyed. Two houses adjacent to the plant were destroyed by fire and a number of others damaged.

The fire, of unknown origin, had gained too much headway to be brought under control before the fire companies arrived, according to Fire Chief Jack Byers. The firemen confined their efforts to keeping the flames from spreading. A favorable wind probably saved the Antietam Knitting Mills from being destroyed.

MORE COOPERATION FOR PARKS IS URGED

Arlington Civic Federation in Resolution Points to Nothing Done.

G. O. P. PLANS SMOKER

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Cla. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Closer cooperation with the National Park and Planning Commission in a constructive planning for the development of the National Capital and its environs was urged in a resolution offered by Arthur Orr, of Lyon Park, and adopted by the Arlington County Civic Federation meeting last night in the Lyon Park Community House.

The resolution pointed out the failure of the act adopted at the last session of the General Assembly providing for the creation of the Northern Virginia Park and Planning Commission. This provided that the act should not become effective until ratified by the City Council of Alexandria, and the board of supervisors of Arlington and Fairfax Counties. No action has been taken by any of the bodies.

The executive committee, upon motion by George M. Yeatman, of Ashton Heights, were directed to plan for a Community Chest for Arlington County in 1932.

The federation approved action recently taken by the interfederation conference against billboard advertising within the metropolitan area of Greater Washington.

The federation took steps to clarify the conflicting reports as to the adequacy of the water supply mains across the Chain Bridge, connecting Arlington County with the Dalecarlia reservoir to meet the proposed plan for the expansion of the county's water system.

It was brought out that Asa E. Phillips, engineer under whose supervision the county water system was installed, has contended that the two 8-inch mains which crosses the Potomac River are of sufficient size to take care of the county's needs for many years, while County Engineer C. L. Kinnier is as strong in his contentions that they should be replaced by a 24-inch main.

President Harry A. Fellows called upon the sanitary committee to ascertain just what the situation is and to report at the March meeting. The committee was also instructed to investigate the reduction in the present water rate. It was pointed out some months ago that as soon as 1,000 additional water users had been added there would be a reduction. Reports are that that number had been exceeded.

Meeting last night in the Spaulding Building at Clarendon, the Arlington County Republican Club, with President J. Foster Hagan presiding, discussed plans for the political campaign to be carried on until November to arouse interest in the party's aspirations. To further this interest plans are being made for a smoker to be held the latter part of this month.

The committee in charge of the arrangements are Ray Cogswell, of Ballston; John P. Agnew, of Arlington; S. M. Hedrick, of Glenesariyn; George P. D. Rollings, of Cherrydale, and Joseph MacPherson, of Clarendon.

Sentiment was that those with their eyes on the county offices to be filled will announce themselves prior to the holding of the convention but subject to the convention.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will meet today at the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse. Final plans for the benefit card party to be held the evening of February 13 in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon will be made.

Arlington County has raised one-half of its quota of $1,000 for drought relief, according to returns to date to the Red Cross drought relief committee chairman, George A. Collier.

The Arlington Experimental Farm, with $81; the Clarendon Methodist Episcopal Church with $73, and the Arlington Methodist Episcopal Church with $51 were important contributors during the week. Numerous individual gifts ranging from $1 to $25 have been received, but further generous contributions from other organizations and the local Red Cross membership will be necessary to meet the county's quota. Chairman Collier stated that it is the hope of the committee to reach its goal by February 10, and he urges all who can to make their contributions by that date either through the churches or to the local community chairman.

"Why and What Do Our Children Read," was the subject of an address delivered before the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Robert E. Lee School, held in the schoolhouse yesterday by Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson, president of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County. Mrs. Simpson stressed that too much care can not be taken in the reading of children. She advocated a modern equipped library in every county public school.

The prize for the grade having the largest number of patrons in attendance went to the first grade, of which Miss P. Evans is the teacher. Plans are under way for a play in the early part of March.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Matthew Fontaine Maury School at Clarendon will meet tonight at the schoolhouse.

Mrs. Giles Scott Rafter, one of the prime movers in the organization of the Parent-Teacher Association in the District of Columbia, will speak. A special program in commemoration of Founders Day will be presented.

President H. Zile of the Arlington County Garden Club announces the appointment of the following committee chairmen: Exhibit, Mrs. John Maycock; membership, Frank Hayden, and program, Thomas R. Mechem.

State Senator Frank L. Ball leaves for Lexington, Va., today where tonight he will address the sixth annual conference of the Virginia State highway commission at its annual banquet. Senator Ball will speak on "The Washington Bicentennial—Virginia's Opportunity."

Because of illness of several members of the cast, the play entitled "Anita's Trial," scheduled to be given tonight by the Gamma Rho Girls of the Community Methodist Church of Aurora Heights, has been postponed indefinitely.

The Scout Mothers Auxiliary of the Ballston Boy Scouts, Troop No. 101, will meet in the scout hall tomorrow night.

Plans are being made under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Stonewall Jackson School, for a valentine party to be given at the schoolhouse the evening of February 13.

Suit for a divorce was filed in the county clerk's office yesterday by Miriam G. B. Wunder against John P. Wunder.

FIVE GENERATIONS AT REUNION

MAYOR BACKS SUIT OF HIS SON'S WIFE

IN SUIT FOR ALIENATION

Richmond, Va., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—J. E. Crutcher, 72, Mayor of Drakes Branch, told a jury in law and equity court here today Mrs. Nellie Rudd Crutcher, divorced wife of his son, Willie Crutcher, was "the worst treated woman in the world."

The elder Mr. Crutcher, who said he had been mayor of the town for eighteen years, was a witness for his former daughter-in-law in her $100,000 suit against Cameron Dunlop, retired banker and tobacconist; Mrs. Dallas J. Pettus, of Drakes Branch, and Miss Dorothy Pettus, of Richmond, for alienation of Willie Crutcher's affections.

Mrs. Crutcher's testimony took up most of yesterday's session, the first day of the trial. She returned to the stand and was followed by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Dudley M. Rudd, and her mother, Mrs. L. M. Rudd. Most of the testimony related to the Crutcher household years before the accusations which Mrs. Crutcher says, led to her divorce.

Mayor Crutcher's testimony dealt not only with conditions in the home of his son at various periods, but touched also on what he said was misconduct confessed to him by Mrs. Pettus, and on habits and actions of his son, which caused him to consider his daughter-in-law mistreated and to blame the defendants for her plight.

The court overruled a defense motion for a new trial after a petition to amend the grounds of defense had been denied. The defense wished to show that jealousy on Mrs. Crutcher's part alienated the affections of her husband.

REV. L. R. THORNHILL DEAD AT AGE OF 80

FUNERAL TO BE TODAY

The Rev. L. R. Thornhill, D. D., a retired minister, who was prominent in the Baptist denomination in Virginia for five decades, died Tuesday at his residence, 3162 Seventeenth street northwest. He was in his eightieth year.

Dr. Thornhill was born in Appomattox County, Va., and there spent his boyhood. He completed his education at Richmond College. He began his ministerial work in Appomattox, where from 1874 to 1886 he was pastor of Liberty Church. In 1884 he became pastor of Bainbridge Church in Richmond, remaining there fifteen years. He had other pastorates in Virginia, among which was Jeffersonton, in Culpeper County.

Dr. Thornhill was at one time a trustee of the Southern Baptist Seminary at Louisville, Ky. He was also once chairman of the cooperation committee of the Baptist General Association of Virginia, and was a member of the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention.

In 1875 Dr. Thornhill married Miss Madeline P. Christian, of Appomattox, who died in 1898. Later he married Miss Bettie K. Moody, of Richmond. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Bettie Moody Thornhill; his daughters, Miss Lucy Thornhill, Danville, Va.; Mrs. M. T. Long and Mrs. L. L. Sargent, of this city; his sisters, Mrs. D. A. Christian, of Richmond, and Mrs. E. C. James, of Salem, and a brother, Charles Thornhill, of Appomattox.

Dr. Thornhill was a member of the National Baptist Memorial Church. He was active in the work of the men's Bible class. He had been a Mason since his early manhood.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home. Dr. Cove Johnston will officiate with Dr. W. S. Abernethy, of the Calvary Baptist Church, assisting. Burial will be in Maury's Cemetery, Richmond, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Martinsburg Chosen For Plumbers' Meeting

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Feb. 4.—The West Virginia Master Plumbers' Association, meeting in Parkersburg yesterday, selected this city for its 1932 convention, the dates to be February 1, 2 and 3.

Charles E. Mumford, Fairmont, was elected president. Other officers elected: Vice president, S. O. Johnson, Parkersburg; secretary and treasurer, J. G. Hawkins, Fairmont.

Bay Bridge Plan Committee Named

Prince Georges County Has Representation of Two on Group.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 4.—Prince Georges County will have a representation of two on the subcommittee of the finance committee of the State and the ways and means committee of the House, named today to make a study of a bridge across Chesapeake Bay.

Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer (Democrat), of Prince George, is chairman of the Senate finance committee and majority floor leader of the upper house, has named the following senators in addition to himself: Beauchamp (Republican), floor leader, Somerset; Coblentz (Democrat), Frederick, and Frick (Democrat), Baltimore City.

On the House side Speaker Frances A. Michel heads the subcommittee, and his associates are Lindsay, Baltimore County, chairman of ways and means and majority floor leader; Oliver L. Metzerott, Prince Georges, Republican floor leader, and Lawrence Williams (Democrat), St. Marys County.

5 GUILTY ON COUNTS OF DRUNKEN DRIVING

ROAD CLERK IS BETTER

Sheriff W. C. Hopkins, of Prince Georges County, yesterday appointed his first colored deputy, Prince Washington, of Fairmont Heights. Washington is under a written agreement not to exercise his authority outside of Fairmont Heights, Cedar Heights, and Huntsville.

The last colored deputy in the county, David Jones, of Fairmont Heights, went to jail for four years for assault with intent to rob. He was sentenced with four others for shooting at the son of a Washington policeman.

The trial of seven driving while drunk cases in county police court yesterday resulted in five convictions, one appeal, and two dismissals. One of the men convicted was not formally arrested until he appeared in court yesterday to answer charges against him.

This man was Hugh R. Glower, of Berwyn, whose attorney, J. Wilson Ryon, appealed a fine of $100 for driving while drunk and $5 for reckless driving. Glower was accused of having crashed into another machine on the Baltimore boulevard near Laurel on January 25. The warrant was not sworn out until three days later, and was never served on Glower. He heard that it was out, however, and called on his lawyer to know what he should do to get arrested. Pending a trial of his appeal in circuit court, Glower was released on bond of $1,000.

The judge dismissed a similar charge against W. W. Dunn, of Winchester, Va., when he learned that George W. McCormick, bailiff of Colmar Manor, who brought the charge, had not seen Dunn driving. "Arrests for driving while drunk when the policeman does not see the act must stop," said Judge Sheriff. Policemen can only arrest on a warrant when they do not see the violation."

Dunn, however, paid $10 for driving without a permit and a charge of having no registration card was dismissed.

Clyde Alston, colored, of Bladensburg, was fined $101 for driving while drunk and reckless driving. He was committed to jail in default of the fine. The charge was brought by County Policeman Claude Reese.

John Bruxton, who gave his address as the Y. M. C. A. in Wilmington, Del., was also fined on these two charges. He paid $100 for driving while drunk and $10 for reckless driving. Marvin G. Sampson, of Minnesota avenue near Foote street northeast, forfeited collateral of $110 on the same charges.

Weems L. Lewis, of Bladensburg, who was arrested by Reese, also left $101 with James W. Lauerdale, clerk of the court, on these charges.

Holding that a drunken man cannot do 72 miles an hour in traffic without wrecking his machine, Judge Sheriff dismissed charges of driving while drunk and reckless driving against Nevin O. Barber, 19, of New York avenue near North Capitol street. He pleaded guilty to speeding and was fined $25 and was fined $5 for reckless driving on a plea of guilty.

Walter Parker, colored, was supposed to have been committed to jail in default of a fine of $5 for driving without lights on his wagon, but after court was over it was discovered that he had walked out. His absence was discovered when prisoners were being rounded up to be returned to jail.

The charge against Parker rose out of an accident near Bladensburg when a car driven by George E. Warder ran into the rear of the wagon. Warder was charged with reckless driving, but this charge was dismissed.

Albert Carter, 15, colored, of Washington, was fined $25 for hit and run and $25 for joyriding and was committed to jail in default of the fine.

James Russell, colored, was fined $200 for illegal possession of liquor. He was given the alternative of spending six months in the House of Correction. He appealed his case.

George D. Sheldon was also fined $200 for the same offense. He pleaded guilty. William S. White, of Catonsville, Md., was fined $5 for reckless driving on a charge brought by State Policeman C. W. Cubbage.

N. C. Clary, who said he was from Colorado, was fined $10 for having expired markers, and another $10 for having no permit. He pleaded guilty to both charges.

Suit for absolute divorce was filed yesterday by Theron K. Gravatt, of Brentwood, Md., against Nellie M. Gravatt. He says she left him in September, 1929, and that she gave birth to a child in September, 1930. He charges infidelity.

The couple was married in 1917, his petition states, and lived together until 1929. They have two children, Sophie L., 12, and Edward K., 9. Both children are in the custody of the wife, he says, though he supports them. He asks the court to award them to him. Arthur C. Keefer is his attorney.

Henry St. James L. Briscoe, road clerk to the board of county commissioners, was reported much better at his home today. He was stricken with a heart attack while in the courthouse Tuesday afternoon.

Washington Man Denies Mill Pact

H. W. Morgan Asserts He Made No Agreement With Owners in Danville.

(Associated Press).

H. W. Morgan, Washington business man, said yesterday he had made no agreement with owners of Danville, Va., textile mills toward ending the strike called off last Friday.

He made this statement in commenting on Danville dispatches quoting C. W. Bolick, union organizer, as saying Morgan, on behalf of labor, had reached an agreement with Dr. Carroll Flippen, of Charlottesville, Va., brother-in-law of H. R. Fitzgerald, mill president. Flippen and Fitzgerald have denied it. Morgan said that he had been instrumental in drawing up the statement issued by United Textile Workers leaders in calling off the strike. He expressed the hope that "mill owners will continue to take back old employes, without discrimination, as rapidly as places can be found for them."

He explained that "as a citizen and one sympathetic with the aims of organized labor" he had been intensely interested in finding some way to terminate the Danville strike "in a manner fair to workers and owners."

Church Meeting Opens In Harrisonburg Today

Harrisonburg, Va., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—The Rockingham district board of education of the Baltimore Methodist Conference will meet in Harrisonburg tomorrow and Friday. The attendance will include representatives of the churches in this section.

Matters pertaining to church educational matters in the district will be the subject of discussion and study.

Mrs. Mary Stuart Estes Divorced From Athlete

San Francisco, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Mrs. Mary Stuart Estes, daughter of Henry Carter Stuart, former Virginia governor, was granted an interlocutory divorce decree from Wallace Estes, Pacific Coast football player, in Superior Court here today.

Mrs. Estes married the former Marine Corps officer at Norfolk, Va., September 5, 1927. They separated March 1, 1928. Several months ago Mrs. Estes caused Estes' arrest here while he walked on Market street with Arlene Cooper, whom he also had married in Virginia.

Coolidge Liner's Launching Feb. 21

Vessel Will Be Finished Alongside President Hoover.

Newport News, Va., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—The Dollar liner President Coolidge will be launched into the James River here February 21, to take her berth beside her sister ship, the President Hoover, for finishing touches at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. yards. The two ships are the largest merchant marine vessels ever built in American yards. The President Hoover was christened by Mrs. Herbert Hoover on December 9.

Formal announcement of the President Coolidge's name and launching date was made here today by the Dollar Line officials. The ships are two of four planned by the Dollar Lines.

Both vessels, $8,000,000 turbo-electric liners, are 653 feet in length, with a beam of 81 feet, a displacement tonnage of $33,800 tons, a passenger capacity of 1,260, and with a sea speed of 21 knots.

1,500 Pounds of Papers Hurled Out of Plane

About 1,500 pounds of New York newspapers bound for Florida were thrown overboard by a plane flying over central Virginia early yesterday, when the gas supply gave out and the pilot had to save weight to facilitate an emergency landing. O. J. Whitney, the pilot, set his ship down safely in a cotton patch.

Whitney and two brother pilots, Floyd Cox and Tex Anding, ran into a 56-mile head wind shortly after leaving New York for Washington, where the papers were to be transferred to a south-bound train. All three missed the connection, but Cox and Anding overtook the train at Richmond, although only the former got his papers aboard, as Whitney had the receipt necessary to ship the cargo carried by Anding and Whitney.

Bill on Baltimore's Representation Urged

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Feb. 4.—Baltimore City's bid for increased representation in the Assembly is embodied in a bill offered today by Delegate Alexander Goddman, of the Fourth District. It provides for redistricting the city so that there would be eight legislative districts instead of six, and each additional district would be entitled to one senator and six delegates in the house. The city's representation then would be 8 in the senate and 48 in the house, compared to 6 and 36 under the present law.

The city would have over 40 per cent of the voting strength of the house. The act would require approval by the electorate of the State in the form of a constitutional amendment.

Lynchburg Expects Delay in Tax Dispute

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Feb. 4.—When the ex parte petition of the city to have Judge Don P. Halsey inquire into the legality of the effort of the board of tax equalization to reduce the 1930 realty assessment here 20 per cent is called tomorrow, it is expected postponement will be had for a week to give counsel for the Lynchburg Property Owners Association time to prepare their case to resist the city's move, Col. Aubrey E. Strode has been retained by the property owners.

Conspiracy Is Charged To 3 Asheville Bankers

Asheville, N. C., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Three officials of Asheville banks, which closed last November, were arrested here today and charged with conspiracy to violate the National banking act. They are Wallace Davis, president, Central Bank & Trust Co.; L. L. Jenkins, president, American National Bank, and Russell C. Davis, active vice president of the Central Bank, and brother of Wallace Davis.

A warrant also was issued for J. Charles Bradford, cashier of the Central Bank, but he was out of the city.

Family Narrowly Saved When Fire Razes Home

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 4.—Fire early today destroyed the home of Edward Willis at Cross, near here. The family of seven had barely time to escape, Rose, a daughter, 10 years old, pulling her mother from the blazing building.

The baby, 3 years old, thought to have been trapped in the house, was later found in the meadow playing with a pet dog. The house was on a farm.

Maryland Bill to Ban Purse Nets Introduced

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 4.—A bill prohibiting the use of purse or buck nets for fishing in any of the waters of Maryland made its appearance in the House of Delegates today. Delegate Willing Brown, of Baltimore County, is its sponsor and it would repeal the entire clause of existing law which limits the use of such nets to certain waters.

Legislation of this sort has been sought and backed by various sportsmen's organizations as well as individuals and the pending measure promises to precipitate a lively fight because of the continued increase in the use of nets not only in deep waters of Chesapeake Bay, but also in its many estuaries and waterways elsewhere in the State.

Building Permits Increase.

Lynchburg, Va., Feb. 4 (Special).—Permits issued here during January by the municipal bureau of inspection were for $137,958 worth of work. There were 31 permits against 30 a year ago. Increase this year over January, 1930, was $79,323. There were permits for eight new dwellings.

U. S. Expert Heard By Canners' Group

Special to The Washington Post.

College Park, Md., Feb. 4.—A profit of at least $50 per acre must be assured before it is practical to use irrigation methods, according to G. A. Mitchell, associate engineer, United States Department of Agriculture, who yesterday addressed the annual Canners and Field Men's School, held yesterday and today at the University of Maryland.

Mr. Mitchell, in speaking of "The Drouth Effects of 1930 and the Possibilities of Irrigation for Canning Crops," stated that irrigation in certain truck growing regions of the East is on the increase and pointed out that there is a possibility it might prove profitable in the strawberry sections of Maryland. The cost of spray irrigation is approximately $275 per acre.

Yesterday, at a special luncheon held in the university dining hall, the delegates were addressed by President Raymond A. Pearson, of the university; Dr. H. J. Patterson, director of the university experiment station, and Ralph O. Dulaney, president of the Tri-State Packers Association.

STATE TO OPEN FOUR CAR TESTING DEPOTS

Equipment for Free Service to Be Installed Soon at Alexandria.

WILL DO REPAIR WORK

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 823.

The State division of motor traffic has authorized four adjustment service stations for the accommodation of Alexandria automobile owners, at which inspection of cars will be made free of charge, beginning next Monday. The necessary equipment for testing automobiles will be furnished by the State motor vehicle commissioner's department in Richmond, and is expected to arrive sometime this week.

Tests are to be made of headlights, brakes and steering gears, and any necessary work, in addition to the testing, will be done at a moderate price, it was stated. The work is to continue indefinitely, and State Engineer J. W. Watkins will make inspection visits to check on the undertaking.

The four stations, according to Edward J. McDermott, inspector in the division of motor vehicles, selected for this work are the Central Auto Co., South Washington street, between Wilkes and Gibbon streets; Carter Motor Co., 113 North St. Asaph street; C. Leo McKenney, 1700 King street, and the Belle Haven Garage, Fairfax and Prince streets.

The crusade launched by Game Warden Harry Johnson against the owners of unlicensed dogs resulted in seventeen persons being called into police court yesterday for their failure to obtain the required licenses. A majority obtained the license tags before coming into court, and were fined $1 each, representing the costs. A few who failed to heed the summons were fined $10 each and costs.

Two persons who owned dogs and pleaded their inability to raise the necessary funds to pay the license fee authorized the game warden, with the consent of the court, to destroy the dogs, rather than go to jail in default of payment of the fine, which would otherwise have been imposed.

It was stated at the office of City Treasurer Roger C. Sullivan yesterday that the attaches of the office had been busy all day issuing licenses. Another rush is expected today.

The Westminster Bible class of the Second Presbyterian Church has elected the following officers to serve for the ensuing year: E. C. Carrico, president; L. McWhorter, vice president; R. S. Humphries, recording secretary; L. B. Harris, chaplain; Capt. Wimsor, treasurer; Thomas Hayden, librarian; Frank W. Noxon, teacher; Frank Smith, chairman of entertainment committee, and Frank Latham, kitchen chef.

Dr. Daniel H. Martin, of Washington, field secretary of Lincoln Memorial University, will be the speaker at the weekly luncheon-meeting of the Kiwanis Club at 12:30 o'clock today at the George Mason Hotel, and will be introduced by the program chairman, Forest P. Patteson.

The meeting of the executive committee of the Business and Professional Women's Club will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at the home of the president, Mrs. Mary W. Troth, 116 North Columbus street.

Gen. Edgar Warfield was reelected chairman of the monument committee at a reorganization meeting of that body Tuesday night at Lee Camp Hall, and Mark L. Price was chosen to fill the vacancy on the committee caused by the death of Col. E. C. Graham, with two others added to the group, R. Samuel Luckett and Orlando H. Kirk, who were named secretary and treasurer, respectively.

The committee now is composed of Gen. Warfield, from Robert E. Lee Camp, Confederate Veterans; Mrs. Charles W. Howell and Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, from the United Daughters of the Confederacy; Mr. Luckett, Charles W. Duffey, Mark L. Price and Mr. Kirk, from the Sons of Confederate Veterans Camp.

John H. Gorham, 53 years old, employed as a boilermaker at Potomac Yards, died yesterday at his home, No. 1 Glebe road. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the Cunningham funeral home, 909 Cameron street. He is survived by his widow and several children.

Alex Caporaletti, 45 years old, who lived at 418 North Fayette street, died on Tuesday in a Washington hospital. The body was brought to Demaine's Chapel. The funeral will be held at 9:30 o'clock this morning from St. Mary's Catholic Church, and burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery. The deceased was employed as a car repairer at Potomac Yards.

The funeral of Horace L. Allen, originally planned for 2 o'clock this afternoon, will be held at 1:30 from the home, 1419 Prince street. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery. Pallbearers will be members of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion.

Grove's Laxative BROMO QUININE Tablets

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 10 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.—Adv.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Mr. Akerson Soon to Visit Hollywood

With Wife to Stay Till Spring; Will Retain Capital Home.

THE call of Hollywood's brilliant boulevards, which prompted Mr. George Akerson to retire as secretary to President Hoover, finally has found its echo in the hillside home of Mr. and Mrs. Akerson, for the popular couple will leave within a week or two for the West Coast. This week marks their temporary departure from Washington. Mr. Akerson will leave this morning for New York, where at the last of the week he will be joined by Mrs. Akerson upon the arrival here of her mother, Mrs. Frederick H. Blake, of Omaha.

Mrs. Blake will come to remain through the spring with the Akerson boys, George, jr., Frederick and Charles, who are attending school in Washington.

The wide circle of friends, who had feared the alliance of Mr. Akerson with the moving picture industry might beckon the couple to California or to New York permanently, welcome the decision of Mr. and Mrs. Akerson to retain their house in Washington and to continue calling the Capital their home.

Residents here since 1921, when they joined the large colony of Minnesotans living in Washington for one reason or another, Mr. and Mrs. Akerson have established a definite place in the official life of Washington's passing pageant. Since 1925 Mr. Akerson has served as secretary to Mr. Hoover. From all indications the Akersons are quite indifferent to the lure of Hollywood or to the jazz of New York or the beauty of Minnesota, land 'o lakes and wild flowers, for Mrs. Akerson declares their hearthstone here will continue to be the gathering place for friends just as it has been for a decade.

Following their stay in California Mrs. Akerson will return to Washington some time in the late spring. Mr. Akerson plans a hurried trip to Europe and probably will then institute a commuter's trek between the Atlantic and the Pacific.

ECONOMY
TOO..is sealed in its MONITOR TOP

YOU don't have to be a mechanic to realize the remarkable advantages of General Electric design—to appreciate the many reasons why this modern electric refrigerator has set a new standard in low cost of operation and maintenance.
Just glance at that gleaming Monitor Top. Scarcely larger than a hat box, it contains the simple unit that operates a General Electric for just a few cents per day. Hermetically sealed in a permanent bath of oil, the mechanism is safe from air, moisture, dirt or tampering. You need never even oil it. And it is as quiet as a whisper when running.
Because the General Electric refrigerating unit is on top, it takes advantage of natural laws—dissipates heat above the refrigerator, permitting the use of a smaller motor. All-Steel, heavily insulated cabinets—the greatest advance in 30 years of refrigeration—bar out heat, retain cold.
You know the savings in food protection, health, time and labor that electric refrigeration brings. Why not make your choice a General Electric and be sure of years of dependable service.
Drop in and look over the many attractive All-Steel models—a type and size for every home.

ACTION, NOT POLITICS.

President Hoover has dispatched a personal representative to the center of the drought area to make doubly sure that relief measures are adequate. The President has been in touch with the situation ever since last August. Representatives of the Red Cross and the Department of Agriculture are in a position to keep him informed on every new development. There is no actual need of sending a special investigator into the field, but the attacks in the Senate against the Red Cross and the President have discouraged public support of the Red Cross, and it is well that Col. Hodges should make a personal check on conditions. The effect of his mission should be to make assurance doubly sure that the relief system is adequate.

There is no question as to the dire need of some communities in the drought States. The President was first to recognize that need and to take steps toward alleviation of distress. Throughout the controversy he has been as sensitive to the distress of these people as any of the orators on Capitol Hill. But the President insists that the situation be met in the traditional American way.

Col. Hodges' presence in the drought area will tend to center attention on conditions as they are, not as politicians paint them in the Senate chamber. The work of the Red Cross will be brought to the front. The people will be better able to calculate the need for $10,000,000 which they have been asked to contribute. If the charged atmosphere can be cleared of the political smoke-screen belched forth by the Senate, and the attention of the people concentrated on the distress which has followed in the wake of the drought, there would be no want of funds for relief through the Red Cross.

President Hoover stands firm against a Federal dole. The House stands with him. So there will be no dole. Americans are attending to the needs of the distressed, as they always have done.

LAME DUCKS.

Senator Norris suggests that if the representatives elected last November were now in their seats, in place of hold-over lame ducks, the Democratic plan to set up a Federal dole would have passed the House before this by 33 majority.

This is the finest tribute to the sanity and experience of lame ducks that has been offered for a long time. This is not the first time, however, that the system set up by the founders of the Government has served to block foolish legislation proposed by demagogues who sought to capitalize a passing wave of popular hysteria.

The panic of 1873 caused a depression worse than that which now prevails. Wild demands were made for Federal relief, culminating in the crazy plan to issue greenbacks. Congress yielded to this demand, and Grant vetoed the bill. The Democrats had a walkover in the off-year election of 1874, taking advantage of popular distress and laying the blame upon Grant and the Republican party. The Republican majority of 110 in the House was turned into a Democratic majority of 73. There were 184 lame ducks in the last session of the Congress expiring on March 4, 1875. John Sherman introduced the resumption bill which had been prepared in conference, and it was passed by the lame duck majority. Not a Democrat voted for this return to honest money. Twenty-five Republicans voted against it, but they had all been reelected, and were not lame ducks.

If the greenbackers had had their way, and if there had been no lame ducks on the job to stand against the popular craze, American dollars would have gone the way subsequently taken by German marks after the World War.

It is a good thing that there are experienced legislators in the House of Representatives. If the House were filled with members fresh from the campaign, pledged to put through half-baked legislation at breakneck speed, the House would be almost as foolish and unreliable as the Senate coalition that operates under the leadership of Senator Norris.

FINANCIAL WASHINGTON.

The collapse of two mismanaged concerns in Washington has been seized upon by idlers and mischief-makers as an excuse for peddling absurd rumors concerning all financial institutions. If these crazy rumors could be collected in one lot and verified, they would show that the United States Government is tottering to destruction, and carrying with it the Treasury and all financial institutions in the country.

Nowhere else in the United States is the financial community as solid as in Washington. The fact that two grossly mismanaged institutions are in process of liquidation is proof that the Government and banks here are "on the job" in enforcing conservative and safe operations throughout the business community. The banking institutions of Washington are under the supervision of the United States Government, and are required to be maintained in liquid condition. The personnel of the banking directorates in Washington is an honor roll of the city's strongest business and professional men. Long habit and the requirements of the Government have established a conservative banking policy in Washington which insures solidity comparable with that of the Government's own policy.

CREATE JOBS, NOT BONDS.

Threats of an enormous bond issue to finance veterans' pay have become an impediment to business recovery no less serious than threats of an extra session of Congress. Congressmen who have introduced dozens of bills for that purpose seem to assume that the necessary funds can be supplied by magic. They have painted glowing pictures of how conversion of the adjusted compensation certificates into ready cash would stimulate business.

To stimulate business in this manner would be like using a hypodermic injection to restore health. The amount of long-term investment capital available is limited. During the depression there has been an accumulation of savings, but that is the country's working capital. Should it be diverted into Government bonds industry and business would suffer for want of credit. It is estimated that an offering of $3,400,000,000 in long-term securities would absorb one-half of the entire amount of capital coming into the market during the year. Flotations for industrial enterprise would have to be stopped. Business concerns would not have a chance to expand and thereby provide jobs.

Secretary Mellon testified that these proposed bonds could not be disposed of, except at a rate of interest that would be unjustified. George E. Roberts, an outstanding authority, says that a new supply of buying power would have to be manufactured in the form of bank credit. This would ultimately draw upon Federal Reserve banks, thus reducing the reserve available for business. If these veterans' bonds were issued at a high rate of interest there would be no market for municipal and corporate bonds and both public and private improvements would have to be deferred.

Mr. Roberts estimates that the shrinkage in the value of outstanding bonds would exceed the direct amount of the proposed bond issue. It is estimated on a sound basis that the mere agitation for an immediate cash bonus caused an aggregate depreciation of $1,110,938,000 in the value of outstanding bonds in five days.

The theory that redemption of the bonus certificates would be a stimulus to business is based on the assumption that the Government could furnish the cash with no difficulty. That idea has been exploded. An enormous bond issue at this time would eat up the capital that is waiting to revive business and create jobs. No group can consistently put itself in the position of demanding something that would postpone the recovery of business in this country. No business, no jobs.

STABILITY OF WAGES.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, asks that a conference be called to formulate a national economic policy. He would invite representatives of industry, business, labor and the Government to assemble and work out plans by which periods of depression could be avoided in the future. His aim is to bring together all interests into a "pool of prosperity out of which labor can draw its fair share, invested capital a reasonable return and the Government the minimum requirements for its operation."

Mr. Traylor's chief contribution to such a conference would be a proposal for a flexible wage scale. The American standard of living, he says, must be maintained. But there is no fixed relationship between the standard of living and wages in dollars and cents. He believes that the aim should be to preserve the purchasing power of wages rather than to maintain arbitrary wage scales. He says:

> Employers must be as quick to recognize the real wage in a rising market as labor must be to recognize the real wage in a falling market, if there is to be any stability in prosperity and employment hereafter. Business can not prosper if costs eliminate profit; and labor can not work as fully as it should if capital is denied a proper return.

In short, wages must rise in times of expansion and fall in times of curtailment.

This is an interesting thought, but its practicality is open to question. If labor is paid its share of return from industrial production, the domestic market for goods should remain on a fairly stable basis. Overexpansion takes place when the market is not equal to the output. But it is difficult to see how, when a crisis has been reached by overproduction, it could be adjusted by a falling wage scale. Inasmuch as wages failed to keep pace with expanding production and profits in the period immediately preceding the current depression, Mr. Traylor's suggestion is certainly not applicable to present conditions.

A flexible wage scale would tend to make the income of the masses conform to the fluctuations in business. Under these circumstances it could hardly be considered a stabilizing influence. On the other hand, a stable wage fixed high enough to allow the workingman to share the comforts of life and to maintain purchasing power on a level with producing capacity would tend to iron out the sharp angles of fluctuation in business. Stability of employment and wages must be the backbone of any project to eliminate waves of prosperity and depression.

PROSPERITY OF CRIME.

There were no hard times in the underworld last year. Compilations by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation, Department of Justice, show a general upward trend of crime during 1930. All the major rackets seem to have experienced a boom. The daily average of criminal offenses, including murder, manslaughter, robbery, burglary, assault and automobile theft, rose from 650 at the beginning of the year to a peak of 800 last November. At the close of the year the daily average of offenses for 58 large cities stood slightly below 700.

These statistics are interesting because they tend to confirm the general belief that crime increases in periods of hard times. Men who are out of work and in want frequently turn to crime. Unrest gives rise to crimes of violence. Robbery and murder show significant increases.

It is impossible to determine what portion of the year's crime is the product of syndicated rackets and what part represents individual offenses. Rackets, however, are on the increase. In some cities they have overawed the authorities, and in other cities the racketeers themselves are the authorities. Conditions in those cities must become worse before they will become better through the inevitable uprising of law-abiding citizens who will take the situation into their own hands.

COLLAPSE OF SILVER

By JOHN BRISBEN WALKER,
In the New York Times.

Leaders in British finance are awakening to the part which silver is playing in the conditions prevailing at home and abroad. It will be interesting to watch the rebound in England and on the continent of the address made by J. F. Darling last week before the Royal Empire Society. Mr. Darling, internationally known financier, a director of the Midland Bank, is reported as saying that the world's financial and economic crisis is very largely due to the fact that one-half of the world is unable to buy what the other half has to sell because "a large part of their money, which for many centuries has been silver, has been filched from them." Gold, Mr. Darling points out, has been accorded a value more than 60 times that of silver today despite the fact that the relative production of the two metals has been what it is now for the last four or five centuries. Over that long period only fourteen ounces of silver have been produced for each ounce of gold. That proportion has shown no change for the last five years, but in the same length of time the price of silver has fallen from 64 to 28 cents an ounce.

In its determination to put India on a gold standard the government, he says, has sold 100,000,000 ounces of silver at lower and lower prices until today she must sell 300,000,000 ounces more to carry out her plans. While the humbler fortunes of India are held in silver, the British government has reduced the fortunes of these people by more than half during the last five years. "The British government in India has struck down the wealth of India and destroyed the purchasing power of its subjects." In reply to the statement that "gold mentality" prevented the United States from cooperating with Great Britain in restoring the value of silver Mr. Darling said: "We are fools to put up with it. Common justice, common humanity and common sense urgently demand that the British empire take the lead in restoring the equilibrium of gold and silver, on which the economic structure of the world rests."

Has the time come when the British empire is about to return to a bimetallic basis? Herself in the midst of conditions so terrible that they could not have been dreamed of in the past; her great private estates being sacrificed at auction; her greatest dependency, India, in the throes of revolution and desperate need; Australia well-nigh bankrupt; in Mexico the interest on her investments, with those of the United States, postponed for two years because of the inconceivably low price of silver; her best customers, South America and China, in condition of revolution and widespread suffering of people, has the time come when she must retrace her steps and return to bimetallism?

Demonetization of silver by England was originally worked by a few powerful financiers who saw an opportunity to more than double the value of their personal fortunes if silver could be demonetized in England, Germany and the United States. They accomplished their purpose in the face of the opposition of many of England's ablest statesmen. * * *

The effect on India and China will never be known in their fullest horror. The immediate depreciation of their only stock of money, silver, stopped trade and starved whole provinces. It caused millions of deaths.

Now let us try to estimate what the future holds. It is difficult to speculate what will be the course of Great Britain. Day by day a greater number of financiers are coming to recognize that an increase in the value of silver is absolutely essential to her prosperity, to the prosperity of her dependencies and to her trade with China and South America. But in the condition of her political parties engaged on questions of providing a dole, of providing settlement of India's problems, of keeping Lancashire mills and the coal mines in operation, it does not seem likely that the subject will receive its due attention. There are no outstanding financiers among her statesmen. She has no great journal which recognizes the fundamental character of the question of exchange.

Ohio State Journal: Too bad that revenue collector out in Chicago, who lost $50,000 in a quiet little game of faro, couldn't put it on her expense account, as prohibition agents have done liquor purchases.

TELEVISION NEARER REALITY.

If we take the word of the youthful engineer, Philo T. Farnsworth, television is now a reality, says the Pathfinder.

This 24-year-old experimenter and one of the foremost television experts in the country has developed apparatus for television sending and receiving which works without mechanical aid. What other televisionists do with motors and scanning disks Farnsworth does electrically. In his system he uses special vacuum tubes—a "disector" and an "oscilight." The former, the transmitting tube, looks like a fruit jar and contains the equipment for scanning an image electrically.

The receiving tube or "oscilight" is pear-shaped and has a picture screen four inches square in the flat end. Like other systems, however, his method requires radio transmitters and receivers. But the pictures his system produces are said to be sharper than those of other systems.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE GOAL.

For years he'd had a goal in view,
Fought, schemed and struggled long to gain it,
Talked it with every one he knew,
Grew weary striving to attain it;
Keen disappointment set him back,
Failure along the way delayed him,
Briars and stones which strewed his track
A tired and footsore traveler made him.

But he kept on with purpose true,
He'd rest when all his cares were ended.
The distant goal he had in view
Glistened with charms which men think splendid.
There he would dream the hours away,
There waited for him days of pleasure
Where all untroubled he could stay
With naught to do but spend his treasure.

Came victory at last, and then
Full rested he began to sigh for
The thrill of setting out again.
He wished another goal to try for.
Still on and on he longed to go.
Boredom his carefree days was blighting.
He wanted once again to know
The weariness and pain of fighting.

No Rain Seems Destined to Last Forever if You Remember Previous Rains.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MUCH of the anxiety that troubles the ordinary mortal is caused by the fact that he hasn't a proper sense of values.

And the reason he hasn't a proper sense of values is because he hasn't developed a historical mind.

The fads and follies of today distress him because he lives only in the present. He sees every fault of his times as a permanent handicap to civilization. He lacks perspective.

If he would learn to judge the present by the past, he would remember that good and evil things come and go as the pendulum continues its eternal swinging back and forth, and the follies of today no longer would trouble and affright him.

Consider, for example, the strange ideas of sex that seem to threaten the stability of civilization since women were accepted as the equals of men.

The four philosophers who have won international prominence by their written discussions of sex problems are agreed that romantic love is doomed.

Apparently they are tricked by their environment. They measure the world in the half-bushel they find at home.

Being "high-brows," they associate with sophisticated women—worldly-wise, and perfectly poised women who have culture and charm and yet have seen so much and done so much that life has lost its savor.

They are fed up, burned out, bored. They have learned about Santa Claus and have seen the circus. They no longer believe in romantic love because they no longer have a capacity for it.

To reason that feminine nature has changed because these few women no longer dream of kisses in the moonlight is the weakest of logic; and even if all women of all classes should become like these, the case still would remain unproven, for the habits and beliefs of a generation effect no change in the nature of a species or a sex.

The capacity for romance and the hunger for it are as deep-rooted in mortals as the mating instinct in beasts.

The romantic love of boys and girls is a thing too long established for any thinking man to doubt its naturalness; and if it is natural, no power under Heaven can change it except by the slow process of evolution.

The boredom of those who have seen the circus many times is not inherited by their children.

PRO AND CON

Extra Session Filibuster.

Indianapolis Star.

Senator Watson is reported by E. C. Watkins, the Star's Washington correspondent, as being pessimistic over the chances of avoiding an extra session of Congress after March 4. A number of appropriation bills must be passed if funds are to become available for the operation of important Government departments. The remaining time would be sufficient if members of the Senate refrained from deliberately blocking the orderly consideration of the business at hand. Threatened filibusters and political trivialities have occupied an increasing portion of the daily sessions.

The Hoosier senator blames the Democrats for any responsibility attached to the summoning of an extra session which nobody wants. The charge, of course, is justified, since a display of some concern for the country's welfare rather than a desire to play politics would dispose of the important business at hand within the time now available. As the opposition party, the Democrats can not resist the opportunity to harass the administration. In an extra session the Republican margin would be reduced to a minimum. Even now it is at the mercy of the antiadministration coalition of Democrats and radical Republicans.

Chance for Patriotism.

Los Angeles Times.

Deaf, dumb and Blind World War veteran is cured by falling downstairs. Won't somebody please place some banana peelings on the steps of the Capitol at Washington?

Ex Post Facto Sorrow.

Indianapolis News.

There's a fairly good chance, too, that if the Democrats force an extra session they will wish they hadn't.

Will the Democrats Blunder?

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Will the Democrats of the United States Senate, under the leadership of Mr. Robinson, of Arkansas, persist in their threat to block the appropriations for the conduct of the Government and force an extra session of Congress unless their bill for $25,000,000 to feed the drought sufferers be agreed to?

That would be a grave blunder, coming so soon after the Democratic victories last November, and before the new Congress had begun to make a record. By this course they would saddle upon the Democratic party the responsibility for an extra session of Congress, which nobody wants and to which most people, for good reasons, are strongly opposed. The recent extra session played havoc with the Republicans, and it would seem that the Democrats should have brains enough to avoid a similar peril.

A Heedless Program.

Atlanta Constitution (Dem.).

Seldom in the history of the country has public feeling been more unanimous and outspoken against an extra session of Congress than it is now. The people have been undergoing an extraordinary and prolonged period of business depression. The halt, the slump, the "dumb panic," has affected almost every person in the Nation.

Public sentiment pleads for a breathing spell and a fair chance to recover strength of confidence and power to restore prosperous conditions. But neither result can be reached while the present Congress is threatening to impose outrageous burdens upon government and its taxpayers, and certainly there can be no stabilization of business, production and labor with a new and nearly balanced Congress engaged in a tug-of-war to see which can spoliate the public treasury most.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Washington Street Numbers Missing or Indistinct—Poor Directions in Public Buildings.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Stress is being laid upon the importance of having this city appear at its best during the bicentennial year, which will begin within a twelve-month. The many thousands of visitors should carry away the impression that "Washington is wonderful," and we hope they may. To insure such a result it should be the concern of every holder of real estate, so that his premises should be rendered attractive, for better values follow a well kept up appearance. Visitors are sure to have a good opinion of the city if they can easily and comfortably find their ways about, and reach the locations they wish to find. If the houses bear easily found numbers that are legible, even at night, the tourist is sure to repeat it to others ever afterward.

Chicago is the only city in the United States where the monumenting of the streets is worse than in this city. To drive by the street one wants (and possibly one or two more), and be compelled to go back, contributes to the visitor's profanity and does not raise the Capital City in his estimation. It is hoped that the city fathers will certainly give this matter prompt attention.

In office buildings the numbers are often so small and so poorly placed that in an illy-lighted hall it is often impossible to find the required number. And, strange as it may seem, our Uncle Sam is the worst offender, for he has more and larger buildings. The office buildings of the House and Senate are among the worst offenders. Figures of bronze (though large enough) are of the same color as the doors, and unless one is a Braile reader, one must light a match, even at midday, to decipher the number. In the Patent Office the figures are small and put so high that they are not legible, and many halls are poorly lighted besides.

Large figures in white metal or white paint (on colored doors) would greatly assist the visitor, and no doubt assist in his good opinion of the city as a whole. If present conditions prevail it is easy to see how resentful, perhaps disgusted, many tourists may feel who have come prepared to be pleased with everything.

Those in charge of the festal preparations for 1932 should begin in time. If no one is now charged with the necessary responsibility, some power should be invoked that will be energetic, persistent and effective.

ARTHUR GIBSON MORSE.

Historic Buildings Must Give Way to Public Convenience and Necessity.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Referring to the letter from a correspondent in The Post, advocating the preservation of historic houses in Washington, and praising the National Woman's Party for agitating the preservation of the Daingerfield House, at Second and E streets northeast, may I present a contrary point of view?

It is well known that a controversy exists between the majority of property owners on the block between First and Second and E and C streets northeast, who are willing to surrender their property to the Government for a site for the General Accounting Office, and the National Woman's Party who wish to retain the Daingerfield House as their headquarters.

The inevitable outcome of this controversy must be that the Government will take this block. Intelligent city planning and the convenience of the Government assure that. The main point for taxpayers to keep in mind is that this block, if acquired now, will cost them much less than if acquired later, after expensive hotels and apartment houses have been erected there.

Every one feels natural regret at seeing an historical dwelling torn down. But such sentimental considerations can not weigh more than practical considerations in such a case. There are literally hundreds of houses in Washington of far greater historical value than the Daingerfield home, whose importance is rather slight. In the district east of Sixth street, northwest, centering on Pennsylvania avenue, there are hotels and private houses which housed the greatest statesmen in our history. But no sentiment exists to preserve them. The hall in which Charles Dickens read his works, on G street, between Ninth and Tenth streets northwest, has long since disappeared. Even the house in which Lincoln died will some day be removed. (It is hoped it will be moved intact.)

STIRLING WILSON.

Wet Victories Mainly Defeat of Straddlers—New York Drys Reelected.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The November election was the first in ten years to give the wets any encouragement, and they are enjoying the great indoor sport of exaggerating their successes. But their victories were largely victories over straddlers or other wets. Said David Lawrence: "There is no conspicuous case of a clean-cut overturn of a dry State, for even in Ohio, where a Democratic wet won the senatorial election, a Democratic dry captured the governorship." In Illinois, Yates, an aggressive dry, was elected congressman; a truer index of public sentiment than the victory of the wet Lewis over a straddler. Michigan elected a dry governor and legislature. In New York a wet defeated a wet for governor. The Washington Post said immediately upon the nomination of Mr. Tuttle that he was defeated the moment he declared for repeal. Nearly every Republican congressman, senator and assemblyman who had a satisfactory dry record and who refused to repudiate his record or deny his principles was elected. Plainly, the lesson of the election in New York is that the Republican party can not hope to win on a wet platform.

BRITAIN SEES THREAT IN EUROPEAN NAVIES

France and Italy May Compel Added Construction, Says Admiralty Head.

LIMITATION IS SOUGHT

London, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—The statement that Great Britain might have to reconsider her naval construction program, in view of the fact that France and Italy are increasing theirs, was made in the House of Commons today by A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty.

"We are doing our best to get France and Italy to adhere to the principles of limitation," Mr. Alexander said. "If we are unable to do that we shall have to reconsider the position."

He stated that the British commonwealth now is building 46,145 tons in warships, of which 2,856 tons were for Canada. France, he added, has under construction 100,684 tons, and Italy 100,777.

Observers in Parliament did not regard his remarks as implying that the "Escalator" clause of the London naval treaty should be brought into operation at present. Rather they were taken to imply that Britain's building program might have to be increased, bringing it nearer to the tonnage allotted under the treaty.

Salt to Be Made By Indians Today

Police Prepare to Battle Gandhi's Followers as Leader Sees Victory.

Bombay, India, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Police are prepared for trouble tomorrow afternoon, for the Congress Party working committee announced today that its president and members of the war council intend to make salt at that time in the Great Maidan square.

It is the first act in the continuance of the campaign of civil disobedience announced by Mahatma Gandhi upon his release from prison. Salt-making is direct defiance of the law and if tomorrow's gesture is carried out those who participate are certain to be arrested.

Gandhi himself addressing 10,000 of his followers at Allahabad today, told them it was written in heaven that India's campaign for complete independence is to succeed. He urged his disciples to continue their nonviolent resistance and to shirk no sacrifice in their struggle for freedom.

Big Stores Listed As "Easy Marks"

Brooklyn Manager Urges Them to Stick to Newspaper Advertising.

New York, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Department stores were described today to the National Retail Dry Goods Association as "probably the greatest sucker list in existence."

Arthur O. Price, sales manager of the Namm store in Brooklyn, accused his colleagues of unprofitable and wasteful forms of advertising, and urged them to do away with such methods.

"Newspaper advertising," he said, "is the backbone of our publicity structure. We find it receiving 70 per cent of our total publicity expenditure in the large stores of today. The percentage should, I think, be higher—yet much of it is wasted. There is far too much dissipation of department store publicity dollars in frills and fads that can not hope to bring business."

Havana Peaceful In Protest Strike

Utilities Continue Functions While Other Unionists Desert Jobs.

Havana, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Members of twelve of the thirteen larger labor organizations in Havana were out on strike today as a protest against recent political developments, but public utilities continued to function and Havana and its suburbs seemed to be little affected by the walkout. Only one English newspaper, the Havana Post, appeared today, and all the Spanish language newspapers in Havana suspended publication. They were expected to resume tomorrow.

Linotype operators, carpenters, plasterers, cigar makers, stevedores, metal workers, builders and fishermen were included in the walkout. No disorders were reported during the day although police reserves remained concentrated at headquarters as a precautionary measure.

"Alfalfa Bill" to Quit If His Bills Are Passed

Oklahoma City, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Bitterly denouncing "lobbyists," Gov. William H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray today scored the legislators for failure to pass his entire tax relief program and offered to resign if the bills were enacted.

Shouting out charges against lobbyists and David Stovall, Hugo, former speaker of the House of Representatives, the governor warned legislators that he would "if necessary" call public meetings in every county of the State to put through his program, would destry lobbies and work for reduction of teachers' salaries if they oppose his salary tax measure. The remarks followed his second formal message to the legislature.

Fortune Being Developed By First U. S. Pearl Farm

Valuable Bed Transplanted 1,200 Miles Under Protection of Government; Tests Made Suggest Future Yield to Be Extremely Rich.

(Associated Press.)

The first pearl farm in United States waters is developing future fortunes under Government protection.

It has been transplanted 1,200 miles from Pearl and Hermes Reef to Kaneohe Bay, Island of Oahu, Hawaiian group, by the United States Bureau of Fisheries.

Ten years will pass, experts say, before there again can be a commercial garnering from these pearl beds, which already are believed to have brought great riches to traders who discovered and exploited them in secret.

But the Hawaiian beds were pronounced potentially rich by Dr. Paul S. Galtsoff, head of the shellfish division of the Fisheries Bureau, who spent six weeks at Pearl and Hermes reef supervising the transplanting process.

Dr. Galtsoff reported opening 150 oysters in his investigation, to ascertain their worth, and of extracting from them 50 pearls of varying grades and weight. This, he said, was a very high percentage of yield, much higher than in any other pearl fishery.

First intimation of the discovery in 1927 of the pearls came through their appearance on the New York and Paris markets, where some brought very high prices because of their unusual luster. Investigations by the territorial government of the islands disclosed the existence of the beds, and the Bureau of Fisheries was called in consultation.

Lack of harbor anchorage and remoteness of the beds made protection and harvesting difficult. Dr. Galtsoff undertook to transplant them to the more convenient location of Kaneohe Bay, where he had found seventeen specimens of pearl oysters, indicating it was a favorable habitat for them.

The Bureau of Fisheries scientists said the Hawaiian government probably would always protect a parent bed, and as other oyster beds grew to commercial proportions, fishing contracts likely would be let on the basis of the government being paid a percentage on the pearls harvested.

MORE LAWS ASKED ON RUSSIAN IMPORTS

HOUSE ACTION INDICATED

(Associated Press.)

The conclusion that additional legislation is needed immediately to prevent importation of convict labor products from Russia was reached at a conference yesterday of Treasury officials and a House delegation.

The present tariff law was deemed insufficient to prevent the importation of enforced labor products. Legislation similar to the Kendall bill, with reenforcing amendments, was considered necessary to protect the domestic lumber, petroleum and wheat industries.

Assistant Secretary Lowman, in charge of customs, pointed out that the Hawley-Smoot tariff act does not carry a provision of the Fordney-McCumber act, which requires importers to furnish the customs service with data on the source of their goods. Neither does it provide for the Secretary of the Treasury to send agents abroad to inspect the books of the producers of products for export to America, as did the 1922 act.

The conferees agreed legislation to strengthen the present law is needed. It merely provides for the exclusion of convict-made goods where the United States has the evidence.

Chairman Hawley, of the House ways and means committee, head of the delegation, indicated that the matter will be opened before his group early next week with a view to recommending legislation.

Besides Mr. Lowman and Mr. Hawley those participating in the conference included Customs Commissioner Eble, Assistant Commissioner Roemer, and General Counsel J. D. Nevius. Representatives Smith, of Idaho, Miller and Summers, of Washington, and Leavitt, of Montana, Republicans; Kemp, of Louisiana and Cox, of Georgia, Democrats.

GENERAL ELECTRIC Full Range Radio has brought to radio listeners an entirely new conception of performance—FULL RANGE performance.

Every radio has a definite range—as definite as the keyboard of a piano or the range of a singer's voice.

General Electric Radio possesses a Full Range—hence the name.

Not only in the greater ability to reach distant or low powered stations with the Full Range Sensitivity—nor in the completeness with which the Full Range Selectivity separates stations and prevents overlapping—but a "Full Range" in the musical sense. A Full Range Tone which brings you every note of music pitch-true and tone perfect. No "screeching" on the high notes—no "sour" low notes—but an even richness and tone-fidelity from one end of the scale to the other.

When you invest your money in radio entertainment, see that you get the best that radio can bring you. A visit to your local G-E Radio dealer will convince you of the superiority of that most modern receiver—the General Electric Full Range Radio. STRAUS' WILL GIVES NOTHING TO CHARITY

Man Who Donated Millions Explains His Stand; Children Benefit.

ESTATE IS $1,000,000

New York, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—The will of Nathan Straus, Jewish philanthropist, who gave away millions of dollars during his life-time, was filed for probate today. It disposed of an estate estimated to be about $1,000,000, and not a cent went to charity.

The omission was explained in the document in this language:

"I have always been deeply impressed by an old Jewish proverb which says: 'What you give for the cause of charity in health is gold; what you give in sickness is silver; and what you give in after death is lead.' Many of the rich do not even give lead."

The estate is divided among his three children, Nathan Straus, jr., Hugh Grant Straus and Mrs. Sissie S. Lehman, wife of Judge Irving Lehman, of the Court of Appeals.

The sum of $100,000 is set apart for persons who have been in the employ of Mr. Straus. The Distribution of this fund is vested in the three children and in the philanthropist's son-in-law, all of whom, the will says, have received detailed instructions about his wishes.

COUNTS ARE "SEVERE," AID TO BUTLER SAYS

Darrow Stock Rises.

It was reported last night that the prominent attorney in question was Clarence Darrow, who appeared as defense counsel in the celebrated Leopold and Loeb case and in the equally celebrated Scopes "monkey trial."

It also was reported that Representative James M. Beck, of Pennsylvania, would take the case. Mr. Beck is one of the country's outstanding attorneys, having at one time served as Solicitor General of the United States.

The indications last night were that the charge that has been preferred against Gen. Butler is "conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline." This charge carries with it a maximum sentence of fifteen years' imprisonment and dismissal. The minimum penalty is a reprimand and that is what naval officers are betting that Gen. Butler will get.

Document of 800 Words.

About the only alternative charge would be "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman." This carries a maximum penalty of dismissal, but does not carry a prison sentence as does the other charge.

The charges and specifications, which are contained in a document of 800 words, were delivered to the office of Maj. Leonard in the Wilkins Building by a Marine Corps orderly, attached to the office of Maj. Gen. Ben Fuller, commandant of the Marine Corps.

From the office they were taken to the secret rendezvous, whither the accused officer and his counsel had gone after they left the Metropolitan Club, the scene of their meeting in the morning.

Indifferent to Publicity.

Late in the afternoon, Maj. Leonard sent the following letter to the Navy Department:

"In reference to your telephone inquiry as to whether Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, United States Marine Corps, desires the publication of the charges and specifications preferred against him by the department, I have to advise you that at this time Maj. Gen. Butler neither seeks publication of such charges and specifications nor does he seek to avoid or prevent their publication, feeling as he does that this is a matter for determination wholly by the Navy Department.

"Permit me to express my appreciation of your courtesy in making this inquiry."

A spokesman for the Navy Department said last night that, in accordance with naval law Gen. Butler is presumed to be innocent until he is proven guilty, and that, therefore, the charges will not be made public unless he specifically gives his consent.

Maj. Leonard told reporters that both he and Gen. Butler were determined that there should be no "mud-slinging." He also stated that he and Gen. Butler would favor an open trial.

EINSTEIN DISCARDS CONCEPT OF UNIVERSE

popularly known as the universe running down.

Einstein, speaking in German, unfolded the development of his unified field theory. He said the foundation of the general principle of relativity was unsatisfactory and required further development. The equations were generalized to find a solution for the structure of space.

This resulted in the unified field theory in which equations accounted for the phenomena of electro-magnetism as well as gravitation.

An equation of distant parallelism of two infinitely small spaces worked out the solution in so far as weak fields of gravitation and electro-magnetism were concerned, he submitted.

"No methods are known of investigating in an indirect way without integration," Einstein said, commenting on his unified field theory.

"I offer it to you like a closed box, and as one who doesn't know what is in it."

"While it appears like a closed box, we hope to have the cover off soon and see what's in it," replied Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of the Mount Wilson Observatory. It was he who established one of the astronomical proofs of the relativity principle.

"Now, what can you tell us of the applications of the unified field theory to cosmology?" Adams asked.

Einstein replied with his momentous announcement that the old symmetrical spherical space concept of the universe could not exist.

In the general excitement, the professor found he had exceeded his time by half an hour and rushed off to another engagement.

"There is some real meat in that," said Dr. Adams, as the astronomers and physicists made plans for further conferences with Einstein.

One interpretation of his remark was that it [illegible] no "closed space" for the [illegible] could exist.

With NELSON B. BELL

A SMALL, gray-haired man, last of America's silent movie stars, sole defender of pantomime on the silver screen and playmate of the world's greta, gives the impression on his cross-country trek from Los Angeles to New York, on his way to his native London, and perhaps around the world, of one who is not quite sure which way he may be called upon of jump.

In a Kansas City interview he denied that he is pledged even in his own mind to pantomime, as against dialogue, in the films. It all depends on what sort of gnereal reception his much-discussed new picture, "City Lights," is accorded by the public. If the public doesn't seem to care for it in a big and important (money) way, he will try his voice in the next one—if it turns out that he has a voice. Eetc., etc., and cetera.

All of which sounded as if Mr. Charles Spencer Chaplin might not, after all, have been completely overwhelmed by the mass reaction to the Hollywood premiere of the comedy that has taken a million and a half of his dollars and two or three years to make.

Perhaps one of the chief delights of "The Royal Family of Broadway," current at the RKO-Keith Theater, is occasioned by the element of surprise.

I have never heard of Frederic March, either on stage or screen, in the capacity of impersonator, yet it is he who contributes the only real impersonation in the picture of another living artist—John Barrymore, whose mannerisms and facial paly he mimics to perfection in many of his scenes.

Ina Claire, on the other hand, for years was rated as an impersonator only a shade less skillful than Cissie Loftus and Elsie Janis among the faminine players in vaudeville and musical comedy. With the late Clifton Crawfird in "The Quaker GGirl" she paraded an extensive gallery of clever imitations of her associates in the theater. Yet, in "The Royal Family of Broadway" there is only one brief scene in which she assumes, and then only momentarily, the voice and manner of Ethel Barrymore.

How come?

It may have seemed odd to Charlie, but hob-nobbing wtih the stars is no novelty for Dr. Einstein!

Speaking of "City Lights," Mr. Meakin, at the Fox, is taking advantage of the probable hullabaloo that will be raised in the eastern press after the Friday night New York premiere of the picture, by slipping in "Girls Demand Excitement," as his next attraction, instead of "The Seas Beneath," originally announced.

Virginia Cherrill, the young Chicago beauty discovered by Chaplin and featured in his film, is leading woman opposite John Wayne, of "The Big Trail" memory, in "Girls Demand Excitement." Thus her Washington debut will be at the Fox rather than wherever "City Lights" is shown when it plays here—something no one knows as yet.

It takes a lot of buying to land a film held at such prices as Charlot demands for this one. He estimates "City Lights" will gross around $6,000,000 and he wants half of every dollar.

By the time he had reached Chicago, his viewpoint had wholly changed.

"I am more convinced than ever," he said, "that my proper medium is nondialogue pictures. Talking pictures are all right for others, they have done a lot of good in vitalizing the screen, but I don't think I shall ever give up pantomime. That is my forte."

Chaplin said further that what he enjoyed most at the Hollywood premiere was the way in which his picture was received by his guest of the evening, Dr. Albert Einstein, famous German scientist.

"He just sat back and laughed like a boy," Chaplin said. "He seemed to enjoy it immensely. He is a very delightful man. No, he didn't talk about relativity—there was no use, for I wouldn't have understood it. What struck me as unusual was that there we were together—the great scientist and the clown!"

As surmised in this column on Tuesday, when the matter was still undecided, the premiere of "Cimarron" at RKO-Keith's will take place at a special Friday midnight performance instead of at 9 o'clock. The usual scale of prices will prevail and no seats will be reserved.

And if you are interested—whether you are or not, as a matter of fact—the complete line-up for the new week in the downtown, first run houses will be as follows: RKO-Keith's, Richard Dix and Irene Dunne in "Cimarron;" Palace, Grace Moore and Lawrence Tibbett, in "The New Moon," and "Rackets of 1931," stage revue; Earle, Winnie Lightner and Joe E. Brown, in "Sit Tight," Kate Smith headlining the vaudeville bill; Fox, John Wayne and Virginia Cherrill, in "Girls Demand Excitement" and Fanchon & Marco's "Wild and Woolly" idea on the stage; Rialto, Lupe Velez and John Boles, in "Resurrection;" Columbia, Ronald Colman, in "The Devil to Pay;" Metropolitan, Charles Ruggles, in "Charley's Aunt," Saturday through Tuesday.

To allay the anxiety of the palpitating army my mail leads me to believe are still eager to receive word from him, I shall quote a few lines from the less personal portions of a letter dated February 2 at the Lambs Club in New York, over siganture of Allan Rogers, recently master of ceremonies at Loew's Palace.

"A severe attack of the jolly little bug known as the flu laid me low in Rochester, and only for one performance was I able to tread their boards up there. After a day and a night I was able to be helped on a train and here I am back in my old room at the club, sitting propped up in bed, typing a few important letters.

"I don't know what my plans are now; this illness has probably canceled the four or five weeks I was to have had in Rochester. However, I shall carry on—I saw a likely looking corner today for an enterprising apple merchant. I shouldn't do so badly with the experience I've had as an M. C. I've had to sell a lot of acts that weren't as good as a lot of apples I've seen. Sincerely (Signed)

"ALLAN ROGERS."

Hey, you, Mike Cullen, whyn't you get the boy back here, where they want him, and give me and my postman a respite. As Collins and Peterson would say—may the gods forbid—"be a wise gu-u-y!"

There is a letter from Tom Olsen, too—former tub thumper at the Fox, if you remember—rhapsodizing in great glee over the manifold joys of taking command of the Fox Fifth Avenue Theater in his home town of Seattle, Wash., where the watering trough has been painted and there is a new hitching post since he left the village, six years ago.

And you have no idea how surprised my esteemed friend and helpful associate, Mr. Don E. Read, was when he learned from the heading that he had written the column I sent down from the house for Tuesday. To be sure, he had generously performed all of my other official duties over the week-end, but that is no reason why he should be blamed for everything!

U. S. Navy Dirigible Sails for Panama

Lakehurst, N. J., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Just as the sun was setting at 5:30 p. m. today the Navy dirigible Los Angeles, with 48 men aboard, took off from the Naval Air Station to join the United States fleet in war maneuvers off Panama.

Aside from the thirteen officers and crew, only two others accompanied the big ship, Lieut. Comdr. R. S. Berkey, aid to the flying secretary and commander of the fleet, and Charles R. Walker, representing the Associated Press. Berkey was not in uniform.

The Los Angeles carried almost its capacity load, taking 20,000 pounds of gasoline and 500 pounds of food. The flight had been postponed two days because of poor weather, and the take-off was delayed until late today to assure almost perfect flying conditions.

4 Months' Dictatorship Is Entered by Chile

By vote of 14 to 11 the Senate approved a bill previously passed by the chamber, which puts into the hands of President Carlos Ibanez complete legislative powers while Congress is in a four months' recess.

Greek-Bulgarian Clash Reported.

Athens, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Greek and Bulgarian soldiers engaged in a skirmish at an isolated portion of the Greco-Bulgarian frontier today following upon the alleged killing of a Greek by a Bulgarian. The fight lasted an hour, but no one was reported injured.

LUCKIES are always kind to your throat

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why the "TOASTING" process includes the use of the Ultra Violet Rays. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING"—that extra, secret process—removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing.

The advice of your physician is: Keep out of doors, in the open air, breathe deeply; take plenty of exercise in the mellow sunshine, and have a periodic check-up on the health of your body.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

BELGIUM'S FOG.

EARLIER in the winter the cables carried stories of a wave of death which was sweeping over the valley of the Meuse in Belgium. Some attributed the wave to the atrocities of some modern demon who was loosening gases and bacteria from some laboratory somewhere. Some said German war gases pent up in forgotten chambers, or long held in soil, were finding their way to the surface. Some thought some supernatural devil was loosing his vengeance on the people.

It is now accepted that the cause was not supernatural and not very much out of the ordinary, for that matter. A heavy fog was hanging in this valley at the time of the scare. The death rate may have risen slightly above the normal for this season of the year, but it was not particularly above the normal for heavy fog weather at this particular season.

The death rate of the people who were in vigor a few weeks prior to the fogs was about normal. Such increase of fatal illness as was found to exist was practically all among those who were infirm from age, or from chronic organic diseases, such as heart disease and diseases of the arteries and kidneys. It has long been known that people of these groups are apt to die on foggy days.

The relationship between weather and health has been under study in Europe especially for a number of years. One of the first discoveries resulting from such studies was the fact that heavy fogs were associated with increased death rate.

It was found in London that on the days of dense fog, and for a few days thereafter, the number of reported deaths jumped up. When this was analyzed it was found that it was the old and the infirm from disease who passed on as a result of something associated with dense fogs. On the other hand, it has not been proved that dense fogs initiate disease or promote the onset of acute illness. So far as we know, fog was the sole cause of the Meuse scare.

KIDNEY STONE AND DIET.

Mrs. L. M. writes: My husband had a large kidney stone removed. It was the size of a peach kernel and had little sharp points all over it. Since then he has repeatedly passed small stones. What diet should he have? Should he drink hard water? Should he drink distilled water?

REPLY.

There are at least three kinds of stones and there may be more. The one most frequently found is composed of urates. An important variety is the oxalate stone. Limestones are the least important of the three. You should have a chemist examine one of these stones and tell you what is the principle ingredient. Proper dieting is based on knowing which kind of stone is forming. Without this information dieting is guesswork.

The description you give causes me to guess that this stone is what is called oxalate stone. If so, the diet should consist principally of meats, eggs, fats and breads. The best vegetables are potatoes and corn. The foods to be avoided are rhubarb, sorrel, pepper, spices, condiments, cocoa and chocolate, tea and alcoholic beverages. Foods to be eaten rather sparingly are spinach, other salads and greens, cranberries, plums, prunes and pineapple.

It is safer to drink distilled water and to avoid hard waters. If the stone is not due to oxalates this diet is all wrong.

THE performances of Roxy and His Gang this afternoon and evening at Constitution Hall will not be broadcast. Even if they were, fans would want to attend in person for the following reasons:

First, it will very likely be the last chance for them to see Roxy and members of his original Gang, including such old standbys as "Wee Willie" Robyn and Frank Moulan. Roxy is soon to take over direction of the great Rockefeller City and this may be his farewell tour. Second, there will not be many more opportunities to see Schumann-Heink.

Third, the proceeds will help complete the memorial chapel for the buddies at Walter Reed Hospital. Fourth, the presence of the fans would be a deserved tribute to one of the most self-sacrificing organizations in the United States, the Gray Ladies of Walter Reed, who are sponsoring the show and who have worked so hard to make it a success.

When the Gang goes to Walter Reed this morning to visit the soldiers unable to attend the downtown performances, there will be a warm reception for "Wee Willie" Robyn, one of the first two members of the Gang to visit the hospital, in response to a plea from a wounded soldier. These visits resulted in Roxy's equipping the entire hospital with radio.

Willie will call on Tommy Cushing, invalid soldier, whom "Amos 'n' Andy" made a special trip to the hospital to see when here.

AS predicted in this column more than a year ago, the voice of Pope Pius XI will be heard not only in the United States but throughout the world.

Radio listeners will visit a mythical "night club of the Arctic" when the Eskimos begin a new type program tomorrow evening (WRC, 9 p. m.).

This orchestra, about the third oldest now entertaining, will continue with Harry Reser, banjoist. A new character will be "Bill Borealis," assisted by Mary McCoy, soprano.

"When Some of Us Were Twenty-One," a new WBAL feature, may be heard tonight at 10 o'clock.

A trio of comedians will inaugurate a new afternoon series from WMAL today under the title, "Three Doctors."

JOHN M'CORMACK, Irish tenor, will make his first appearance before the microphone in more than a year tonight (WJZ net work, 9:30 p. m.). He will introduce a new song, "What an Irishman Means by Machree," written by Ernest Torrence, motion picture actor. He will sing five other English songs.

Secretary Stimson will make an important pronouncement tomorrow evening of the administration's policy on South American countries, particularly those in which revolutions have recently occurred (WMAL, 10:30 p. m.).

Paris fashion showings will be described for American women in an international broadcast tomorrow evening from the Edward Molyneaux salon (WMAL, 10 p. m.).

"AMOS 'n' Andy may broadcast a half hour program once each week, starting in a month or so, according to reports from Chicago. The new program will probably be a half-hour old-fashioned minstrel show, with a 25-piece orchestra as background. The boys will write their dialogue, using their own names—Correll and Gosden.

As a measure to relieve the listener of excessive advertising, the NBC is said to be attempting to limit new advertisers to 3½ minutes of sales talk per hour.

The discordant duets by Mocha de Polka and Prof. Musclebound in the "Nit Wit" hour are carefully planned and patiently rehearsed. They declare developing the off-key performance is an art in itself.

A CONDUCTOR tells this one: An ambitious soprano was having an audition in a small station.

"How about this air?" she asked. "shall I——?"

"Yes," replied the manager, "you can sing it if you like. But I'd rather you'd take it!"

Jane Interprets the MODE

Paris, Feb. 4.

THE asymmetric line in clothes is something like dynamite, in the estimation of a Haute Couture. One can play around with it, and all too often one does, and achieve nothing but conflicting lines and unbalanced results.

The business of cutting pieces of cloth so that they give play to the body beneath which the dress is worn began as a protest against the straight one-piece frock of no comfort or chic at all. It was primarily to give something to both the dress, or coat, and the wearer, not merely to give some cutting and sewing to the dressmaker.

But too many people do not realize this, which is the only reason that every woman is not as smartly dressed as every other, and why, too, one can not go about making a dress today without due study and practice.

A dress or coat must stand alone as a dress or coat, have form of its own whether it is on a figure or on a hanger. It must balance and be a work of harmony when it is not worn, as well as when it is. It must be constructed architectually, as modern and very ancient buildings were constructed.

And it must be and do all of these things, or else it is just not a smart, stylish dress or coat!

Oscar Wilde somewhere wrote "one must either be a work of art, or wear a work of art." How does that strike you?

• • • •

The most interesting leaflet you can imagine! Yes, enough ideas in it with which to furnish an entire apartment or studio, on absolutely nothing, my deahs, nothing! We make a couch, a wardrobe, a bookcase and a table out of packing cases—a lot of things to sit on in place of chairs, oh, much more artistic, out of empty coffee cans; wall coverings that look like tapestries in the modern manner; and a couch cover with curtain drapes, wardrobe curtain, and table cover to match out of monk's cloth and ordinary colored crayons! All these and some others we tell you how to make in this week's illustrated leaflet, for which you can send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post.

• • • •

Silks and satins are all very well for beach wear, but your practical and comfort-loving "sandmaid" has decided in favor of lightweight woolens and serge for her beach pajamas. They are chic, and more comforting, you know. Her favorite color combination is surely blue and white, with the trousers in blue "marine" and the top in white. The lady on the right adds a red star to her blouse and hat for chic!

While the other little lady sports a sweater top and scarf for grace and extra warmth and wears white flannel pajamas—or trousers, if you will!

Lots of interesting and helpful suggestions are to be found in Dare's weekly fashion letter. You should look for it in The Sunday Washington Post every week.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

SUGAR FOR INFANTS.

(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

Three kinds of sugar are commonly used in feeding babies; cane sugar (common granulated sugar), malt sugar and milk sugar. For most babies cane sugar is perfectly satisfactory. One tablespoon of cane sugar weighs one-half ounce. One and one-half tablespoons of malt sugar or milk sugar weighs one-half ounce.

Young babies need more sugar added to their food in proportion to the amounts of milk than do older babies. During the first week of the average 7-pound baby he will need one level tablespoonful of cane sugar added to the whole day's allowance of milk mixture. During the first month this may be gradually increased to two level tablespoonfuls, during the second month to two and one-half level tablespoonfuls and during the third and fourth month to three level tablespoonfuls. The average baby will not require more than three tablespoonfuls of cane sugar a day at any time. If malt sugar or milk sugar is used, it must be remembered that one and one-half tablespoonfuls of either of these is the same in weight as one tablespoonful of cane sugar. When the baby is 7 months old the amount of sugar should be decreased gradually, until by the time he is 9 months old no sugar will be added to his milk.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Should Women Think?

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD: I read that article of yours urging women to use their brains—if any.

As a man who loves the ladies, I can not see that they would be any better off for using their brains. As it is, they cover the ground pretty well, it seems to me, without resorting to all that effort. True, they do not know what is happening around them, and seem to not to care. But we who do know what is happening can not change things, so what use for a few more to be in the know?

And then they might become argumentative. And, oh, my soul's right eye, is there anything worse than the argumentative woman? I went with a school teacher once and how I know! A woman who knows anything about anything has to tell the world or bust. I think it a downright boon to man that women can be so happy in their ignorance. The less they know the better?

And take the strong-minded gal. Isn't she a sight? You know the type. They want to be on juries. Yes, sir, they insist upon their right to sit on a jury and hear every last word of every sort of crime. Now, what do they want to be on juries for? Just to show their strong minds. To show they can live through anything. I tell you, Frances McDonald, you should be very careful about telling these women to go do things with their brains. Send 'em to beauty parlors instead. They will get a lot more out of it and so will the world. If a woman is pretty and gets a kick out of it that is all I ask of her, and I bet that goes for 90 per cent of all men. How about it, brothers? Let's have a show-down on this. Is it necessary or even advisable for women to start to think?

BIG BOY.

And in other words Rosemary says about the same thing. Her letter follows. What is your opinion?

Dear Frances McDonald: There was something said in your column today about a girl using her brain. In theory it is good, but in practice what can it lead to but anguish? I pity any woman who can think, to have to silently endure men assuming so many incorrect things about them, for instance that every woman wants a son, when I and all my girl friends who want a child at all—want a girl more than any one thing life offers. Not that I'd expect a man not to want a son, but why shouldn't he assume that I want a daughter, and whichever it is one would surely be pleased.

And if a girl has developed her brain it is dreadful to have to see so many tiny girls go around insufficiently clad on the coldest winter days. To remember that in childhood by brothers had warm woolly "store" clothes while I had "makeovers" of women friends of the family, yet I was sent on errands and to go alone in dark places—often shivering, while the boys played.

If a girl's brain is active she will grow restless at plays mostly about men and men's affairs or love. She will want to see her sex doing other things than falling in love, not because she is contemptuous of love, but because when one's mind grows, love becomes just one of many things instead of the only thing.

But dear Miss McDonald, who wants in this short interval called life, to invite the slings and arrows that hit a woman or girl who thinks.

ROSEMARY.

Must a woman be morbid because she thinks? Must she be a virago shouting for jury duty and a policeman's badge? Can a woman not think in a woman's way?

The Boy hardly regards woman very highly we would say. All he asks is that she be pretty and like it. Is that the sum of woman's possibilities? We would like to know ourself. Particularly we would like to know whether "90 per cent of mankind" agree with Big Boy who sounds a bit unintelligent himself. A man who does little thinking naturally seeks those who do even less, but is Big Boy a fair spokesman for his sex? Or for any sex?

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

WILL you please tell me how to get rid of small black flies which this winter are ruining all my house plants? They are thick on the soil and I can also see them flying about the rooms. Two years ago my plants were entirely killed by these pests, even though I sprayed constantly with a mixture of strong lime and weak nicotine. I now have the soil white on the surface with lime, but as the flies creep over it I can not see how the lime does any good.

MRS. WILLIAM B.

The best way to get rid of black flies is to spray your plants constantly with nicotine or, if this isn't practical, to dip the tops of the plants into the solution, holding them in for three minutes. You will have to repeat this treatment three times before you notice much improvement. Spraying with lime was no doubt what killed your plants. Better remove the lime you now have on the soil, as it has no effect on the insects.

Please tell me the name of the inclosed plant and tell me if it is likely to bloom indoors. Will rhododendrons transplanted from a stretch of woodland on my land into a sunny place in my garden be likely to bloom? Do wild varieties have as beautiful flowers as the large-flowered vasieties you see at the spring flower shows? H. J. M.

Sorry, but I can not identify the plant from one leaf. The leaf resembled the leaf of plantain, a weed which infests a lawn in summer. A rhododendron, if lifted carefully, can be successfully transplanted. Rhododendrons require a soil that is free from lime. In soils slightly alkaline it is necessary to dig out the soil to a good depth and fill with silica sand mixed with tanbark and sawdust. You can further improve the soil for the plant by adding one-half pound of aluminum sulphate to the square yard.

There are no varieties of rhododendrons with such large flowers as the French hybrids. When growing in exposed locations rhododendrons stand a great risk of being severely injured. This is usually detected through the burned foliage and the killing back of the young branches. Often the entire plant turns brown in early spring. Any plant in an exposed location should be protected in January by a wind break. Rhododendrons do best when planted so that their tops are shaded by tall trees, and the roots should always be mulched with dead leaves, pine needles or peat moss.

Please tell me whether it will injure my rubber plant to transplant it at this time when it is just starting to grow. MISS MOLLIE M.

No.

Is asparagus springerii a wise choice for a hanging basket which will be always in the sun?

MISS EMILY L. O.

Yes. An asparagus should do beautifully in such a location.

Please tell me why my Jerusalem cherry does not bloom. I have it on a cool, inclosed porch; in fact, a really cold location. Do you think this might be the reason it does not set fruit? MRS. C. P.

While a Jerusalem cherry tree does best in a rather cool, well-ventilated place, it must be a sunshiny one. It would never do on a cool porch which faces the north. Better remove it to a warmer, sunnier place and give it water every day. Also at this time give it some stimulation in the form of liquid manure.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 5 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 8 p. m to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 2 p. m. and from 6:30 p. m. to 7:30 p. m.

Astrological influences affect the business world on this date more than other phases of life. There will be an element of surprise in business interests—unsuspected difficulties occurring on the one hand and entirely unforeseen advantages on the other. Emotionally, the influences stimulate both great love and great hatred.

The child born on this February 5 will have an original mind and will be mentally positive and combative. It will be hasty, erratic and brusque in speech or without consideration. It will have a love for educational or scientific work. Determination and energy combine to win it success.

You have a very gentle nature, but a very stubborn one. For you a page turned is a page turned. An idea absorbed is never disgorged. It is seldom that you change your attitude toward anything. You love new things when they are made up of matter; mentally you stick to the old. You have a religious temperament, one which is incapable of imagining spiritual wants in others that can not be satisfied by what satisfies yourself.

You are never an alarmist. If anything, you err on the side of not being alarmed until it is all over and there is no longer anything to be alarmed about, or when remedies are useless. Your imagination does not easily take fire, and you do not see farther than is absolutely needful. You have that kind of stoicism that will die with its head up rather than live with its tail down. You have the power of accepting the inevitable, and nobody is more determined to make the best of a bad job than you are.

You take a reformer's interest in people, and you would sincerely like to remedy some of the economic ailments of the world. Your purse strings are not drawn tightly, and your hand often reaches into your pocket for the material aid of some unfortunate. You hate to be "done," however, and you like to feel that the recipients of your help are both worthy and grateful. Cupid will not leave your heart untouched, and you will taste both the joys and disappointments of a great love.

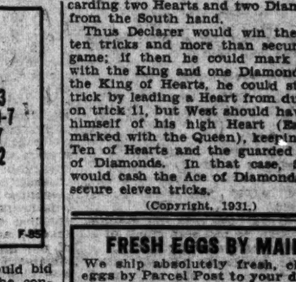
WORK ON BRIDGE



At Aution Bridge South would bid one No Trump and obtain the contract; but at the Contract Bridge duplicate game where the hand was played South at every table bid two, being a little short of the 21-count which justifies the bid of three. North, however, was there with the strength to raise two to three, and that was the final contract.

West led the Six of Hearts and Declarer, seeing in his two hands the four Hearts smaller than the Six, knew that a four-card suit had been opened and that each adversary had four Hearts. Therefore, there was no advantage in holding up and South's Ace took the first trick. Some Declarers then led the Queen of Clubs, and when West's King covered were obliged either to let it win or to block the suit.

Those Declarers who blocked the Club suit failed to get game; those who let West's King win had three Hearts reeled off against them but just made their games; those who played their cards to the best advantage made eleven tricks. South should have played as follows:

Lead the Ace and King of Spades to tricks 2 and 3, then the Club Queen to trick 4. When West's King of Clubs covers, win with the Ace in dummy and lead dummy's Queen and Jack of Spades; discarding South's Jack and Ten of Clubs. Then run dummy's four established Clubs, discarding two Hearts and two Diamonds from the South hand.

Thus Declarer would win the first ten tricks and more than secure his game; if then he could mark West with the King and one Diamond and the King of Hearts, he could steal a trick by leading a Heart from dummy on trick 11, but West should have rid himself of his high Heart (East is marked with the Queen), keeping the Ten of Hearts and the guarded King of Diamonds. In that case, South would cash the Ace of Diamonds and secure eleven tricks.

The Life Story of Gen. Wood

By HERMANN HAGEDORN

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Gen. Wood reached England late in December, 1917. In London he had a conference with Field Marshal Lord French and Sir William Robertson, chief of staff, with the chief of operations and the chief of the intelligence section.

"Lord French is very strong for a war council which will contain the chiefs of staff of the four principal armies, or carefully selected senior officers, also the prime ministers; in other words, a council whose orders shall be effective, and, while not having a general in chief, will be composed of a body of men who will lay down the policy," he wrote in his diary.

"Sir William Robertson seemed to be (although he said nothing specific) not so keen about this feature of it, but very much interested in getting men over, and said that even if they could not come as organizations to send them anyway and use them to fill up the British organizations.

Small Units at First.

"I told him I thought we could send our divisions into reserve positions and gradually work them into the line in small units without disintegrating them, and, when they were veteranized, they could take a section of the front. I also said that while I agreed with his policy, doubted the practicability of sending large numbers of individual men without arousing great opposition at home; that is, unless they were to serve under their own officers."

Gen. Wood arrived in Paris on the last day of the year. The news of his coming caused uneasiness at the general headquarters of the American Expeditionary Forces at Chaumont. Reports of the welcome he had received in the war office in London had preceded him, by way, it was said, of Washington. The first echo, indeed, of Wood's London visit was a report that the British government intended to confer a high decoration on Wood, and an order from Washington that American officers were not to accept foreign decorations. From the point of view of Pershing and his friends, in America and in France, Wood constituted a distinct menace. There was at the moment sharp feeling against Pershing among American expatriates in Paris, who were inclined to take the French and British point of view of Pershing and call him stubborn where other Americans called him merely firm. Nothing would be more natural than that the British and French statesmen, annoyed with Pershing, should desire Wood, whom they knew and liked.

Maps Plans with Joffre.

Among the first, indeed, who greeted Wood in Paris was Gen. Brugere, who had been chief of staff of the French army in 1918 when Wood had attended the French maneuvers. Brugere held the kind of devotion to Wood which certain American officers felt, and begged him to accept his son as aid.

Wood's first call was on Marshal Joffre, whom he had seen much of in New York the preceding spring.

"Had an interesting talk with him," Wood wrote in his diary on January 1. "No one else present except us two. He speaks no English and my French was decidedly labored. He wants men at once and many of them. He feels that the next six months are liable to be very busy ones and that it is very important men should be got in. He is of the opinion that we could send in smaller organizations (battalions, regiments or possible brigades) under French command.

"I told him, while there was no doubt of our being able to do rapid work by sending men straight into the French ranks, it was impossible to seriously consider it because of the reluctance which all people have (and properly) to giving their troops over to others to be handled as individuals; that they would have to be under their own officers and be veteranized by being sent in small numbers. I suggested first a division on the third line, with a brigade at a time, say, on the first line, and by this means finally getting our troops into such shape that we could take over our part of the line."

Word Travels Fast.

By means of a system of communication which was almost too perfect, word reached Chaumont within a few hours of Wood's arrival in Paris to the effect that he was seeing a great many of the notables. Col. Frank McCoy, who was with Pershing as secretary of the general staff of the A. E. F., and Gen. Harbord, the chief of staff, were troubled by the possibilities of the situation, and agreed that something must be done to put Wood on his guard. McCoy asked Pershing for permission to go to Paris. Pershing gave it with a cordial word of greeting to Wood. "I wish that you would tell Wood to come down here and be my personal guest." Other American generals had been relegated to the headquarters guest-house.

On the morning of Wood's second day in Paris, McCoy arrived. He drew Maj. Williams aside. "I want you to tell me," he said, "whether the general would be willing to serve under Pershing in France."

"There is only one man to ask that question of," Williams responded, "and he is in the next room."

Wood was indignant that any one should have thought it necessary to ask him the question. "Of course I will serve under Gen. Pershing. I will serve under any one the President puts over me."

Starts for Front.

After two days in Paris Wood started for the British front. For a week he made his headquarters with Maj. Gen. A. B. E. Cator, commanding general of the Fifty-eighth Division in the East Ypres salient. He was impressed by the alert appearance of the troops and noted in his diary every detail of equipment and method of training and attack, the discipline, the condition of the animals, the repair shops, the rolling kitchens. The British officers urged rifle training and study of open warfare.

The middle of January he was back in the maelstrom, which was Paris, avidly gathering information and impressions, seeing everybody (regardless of friendly advice), talking freely and damning the torpedoes.

"I'm fearful for Gen. Wood," an American officer said to a friend. "He is too frank in the expression of his views. They are almost sure to be taken as criticism. Sometimes I think he's the poorest politician in the world."

He had, indeed, no adequate sense of self-preservation. It was easy to be impatient with him, to declare that a man who could not hold his tongue in Paris in war time was out of place there; but he revealed no trade secrets, and the consternation of a friend here and there was due less to any recklessness of Wood's than to the hypertimidity which warbreeds behind the lines. There was the possibility, too, that the times were grave enough to permit plain speaking. There was, indeed, something not unattractive in Wood's refusal to purchase favor without niceness in speech which, for good or ill, was foreign to his nature.

Still Remains Himself.

He remained incorrigibly himself—eager, intense, tireless, inquisitive, candid—and saw whomsoever he wanted to see. Clemenceau told Wood's friend, Jules Cambon, that he wanted to meet Wood, and Cambon arranged this interview.

"Had an interesting talk with him on conditions in America. He, like all other Frenchmen, is anxious for us to hurry along and get into the war. They all feel the need of men very much—not that they are exhausted, but they feel we should begin to bear our burden of the war from the standpoint of men."

Wood's conference with the leaders brought rumors of jealousy and expressions of apprehension that Wood might be in France for some ulterior purpose. Stories that he had been indiscreet in attacking the administration gathered color as they went and involved finally the King and Queen of England. Wood had his enemies in Paris as elsewhere. His old friend, Bishop Brent, who was in Paris, questioned his wisdom in keeping himself so frankly in opposition to the powers in authority in Washington, saying that if he were a little more politic he would stand a better chance of being given an opportunity for effective service.

Wood looked him in the eye. "Bishop," he said, "are you accustomed to compromise with the devil?"

Returns to Front.

After three active days in Paris, Wood was off again to the front to the headquarters of Gen. Madelon, commander of the Sixty-first Division of the Sixth French Army, 5 miles outside Soissons.

Wood was impressed by the thorough organization of every phase of the work; the extraordinary attention to detail, the evidence he saw of the reaction of the human intelligence to a great emergency.

"Petain is a man of about 60 years of age," Wood wrote in his diary, "well preserved, active; speaks very directly and simply; blue eyes, a very collected manner and understands perfectly how little we have done thus far. He said very frankly it was most advisable for us to send over our troops as fast as possible; that, in the first place, they could get their instruction here much more rapidly than at home and that the French could loan us artillery while ours was being trained—by this he meant artillery regiments. * * *

"We had some discussion about our troops going into the line and I told him I thought we could send a division in at a time. * * * I told him I didn't believe our country would stand for sending in small units, such as battalions, but that we could send a division in with the French at different points, and after they had had a period of practical training the division could then be assembled and we could take over a definite part of the line and our instructed division would be able to take up and carry on the instruction of our incoming divisions. There is apparently a good deal of conflict over this matter, but it now seems to be in a fair way of being settled."

Visits Arms School.

On the morning of January 27 Wood visited the School of Automatic Arms of the Sixth French Army at Fere en Tardenois. The commandant of the school assembled his guests in a semicircle some ten yards in the rear of two three-inch mortars set in a trench. He would show them, he said, how the short range could be secured with the ordinary projectile; and, by attaching increased rings of cordite, demonstrate how it was possible to secure additional range. His men fired first the ordinary projectile; then one with an accelerating ring of cordite attached to its base; two accelerating rings; three. The officers were proud of their gun and of the things they could do with it; proud, too, of the fact that in all their experimentation they had had no accidents. They would now, they said, demonstrate rapid fire with four rings attached. The projectile in the first mortar justified their pride, but the projectile in the second detonated in the gun.

Instantly the place was a shambles. Four French officers and four French soldiers were dead or dying. The commandant of the school, who had been touching elbows with Wood on his left, had been decapitated by a piece of the exploding gun; the assistant commandant, standing on Wood's right, had had his heart literally torn out. Wood had six holes in his raincoat and a piece of shell in the biceps of his left arm near the main artery and the principal nerve. Killbourne and another American officer, Kenyon Joyce, were badly wounded.

"The explosion was so violent," Wood wrote in his diary, "that it stunned us all for a time. * * * My right sleeve was torn by the piece which killed the man on my right. One man was disemboweled and another had an ugly wound from which he afterward died. I found the front of my coat covered with the brains of the man on my left."

Tourniquet is Applied.

Williams, who had not been hurt, applied his pocket handkerchief to Wood's wound with a stone for a tourniquet. Wood seemed entirely oblivious of his injury, absorbed in grief for Kilbourne, who, with a wound in his right eye and the right upper portion of his brain, was apparently dead.

A number of cars were hastily brought up and Wood was urged to let himself be taken to the nearest hospital. He demurred. There were others, he said, more seriously wounded than himself who must be taken care of first. He walked a half mile or more to the nearest road, where he finally consented to let himself be taken to the first-aid hospital at Fere en Tardennois, but he refused to go on the operating table until he had been assured that the more seriously injured had all been attended.

At 5 o'clock next morning Wood waking from a sound sleep, turned to Henzman, his faithful orderly, saying: "What do you say if we have a shave?" Henzman held the glass while Wood shaved himself.

Takes Own Temperature.

The French surgeons, arriving at 8 or 9, found him, with breakfast over, dressed and taking his own temperature. That morning Wood was taken to the Ritz Hospital in Paris.

While Wood was lying wounded in a hospital in Paris his name, it happened, was once more starting reverberations in Washington.

A long, lean senator from Illinois, Medill McCormick, just back from Europe, declared before a Senate committee that the leaders among the allies were wondering whether the American administration had brought into the Government all the able men who were available. "Lloyd George," said McCormick, "was especially anxious to know what had happened to Leonard Wood, where he had been 'buried,' and why he was not in Washington or Paris. He wanted him on the allied war council as our representative. He was very insistent on that point."

Demand for Wood Grows.

The press carried Lloyd George's demand for Wood in large headlines, and the news of Wood's wounding gave it added force.

"It was thoughtless of me," Wood wrote Mrs. Wood, "to be cut up the very day after Lloyd George's statement appeared."

There was poetic justice, and something ominous, too, if the men most concerned had not been too blind to see it, in the way in which at every turn the figure of Leonard Wood rose up to plague the administration. As the new storm rose, the powers responded in characteristic fashion. No reference was made to Lloyd George's demand; but Secretary Baker, testifying before Congress, insinuated that Wood was responsible for some of the shortcomings in the camps. The New York Times, strongly Democratic, sharply retorted that the country did not know that Gen. Wood had so much influence with the head of the War Department. With the general lying wounded in France, too far away to give his own version, passing the blame to Wood did not seem a delicate way of excusing omissions and blunders.

Old Technique Employed.

The oblique attack having failed, the administration fell back upon its established technique. A "hint" was "conveyed" to the correspondents in Washington—nothing embarrassingly definite—that Gen. Wood was at last to have his place among the leaders.

"It was inferred from what was said," reported The New York Times, "that Gen. Wood, who is now in France, would be consulted by representatives of the Government with reference to the best means of employing the American forces abroad. * * * The general statement was made today that the administration contemplated keeping Gen. Wood in Europe and giving him a prominent place in military councils."

This made soothing reading for friends of Wood in Congress and in the press. But Wood, at the Ritz Hospital, remained unaware of any efforts of those in authority to consult him. The "hint," apparently having served its purpose, was heard of no more.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Roy Sarnoff

BREAKING EGG SHELLS
SOME PEOPLE ARE ALWAYS CAREFUL TO BREAK THEIR EGG SHELLS INTO FINE PIECES, AFTER EXTRACTING THE MEAT. THIS IS A SURVIVAL OF MEDIEVAL BELIEF THAT THE DEVIL USED EGG SHELLS, IN SERVING FOOD TO WITCHES WHO RENDERED HIM SERVICE.
GOOD WINE NEEDS NO BUSH
IT WAS A CUSTOM IN OLD ENGLISH HOUSES TO HANG OUT SMALL BUSHES TO NOTIFY TRAVELLERS THAT "GOOD CHEER" MIGHT BE PURCHASED WITHIN. SOME OF THE "CHEER" WAS SO GOOD THAT PATRONAGE GREW TO SUCH A POINT THAT THE HOST DID NOT NEED BUSHES TO ATTRACT CUSTOMERS.
WHY CANARY BIRDS
WHEN THE KING OF MAURETANIA VISITED THE CANARY ISLANDS CENTURIES AGO, HE NAMED THEM CANARIA, AFTER THE LATIN WORD "CANIS" FOR DOG, BECAUSE OF THE PRESENCE OF LARGE DOGS FOUND THERE. THE LITTLE BIRDS, NATIVES OF THE ISLANDS, THEREFORE DERIVED THEIR NAME FROM DOGS.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

The family name "Tyler" (also spelled "Tylor," "Tiler" and "Tilor") is the modern form of the Middle English "Tygheler," and corresponds to the German "Ziegler" and the low German "Tiggeler." These names all mean "the brick-maker" or "the tile-maker," and obviously indicate the occupation of the persons who were first so called. The English spellings with "y," as is the case with the names "Smyth" and "Smythe," do not at all indicate a more aristocratic ancestry, in spite of the popular belief to the contrary. A thirteenth century English record bears the names of Adam le Tyghelere, Hugh le Tygheler and Geoffrey le Tylere.

The family name "Wyman" has come down to us from three English sources. It is frequently a modern shortened form of the Anglo-Saxon "Wigmann." "Wigmann" was an old personal name meaning "soldier" and "warrior." Sometimes "Wyman" is a corruption of "Wymond," which, in turn, stands for "Wigmund." "Wigmund" was an old Anglo-Saxon personal name, which may be translated "war-protector." However, perhaps the commonest source of "Wyman" is the northern English and Scottish "Whyman," which means "the heifer-man," that is, the man who raises or guards heifers. Various forms of these names are found in English documents even before the time of the Hundred Rolls (1273).

The family name "Gehrig" is of German origin. It is one of many diminutive forms of "Gero" (also spelled "Kero"), which is an old Teutonic personal name meaning "the spear" or "the lance."

Hollywood Screen Life

Hollywood—A gentlemen's agreement of some years' standing apparently was broken when Warner Brothers signed three of Paramount's top-notch players to long-term contracts.

RUTH CHATTERTON

Ruth Chatterton and William Powell, stars, were the first taken in the raid. Kay Francis, who recently became Mrs. Kenneth MacKenna, was the third.

Studios long ago agreed unofficially that the organization developing the player had first the full rights to his services as long as it wanted them. Options usually took care of that.

The Warner move was somewhat of a surprise to Hollywood. The Warners were badly in need of starring material, but no one expected them to invade the ranks of a friendly competitor.

There is talk that the Warners are not through yet. It is known that their agents tried hard to get Lew Ayers, who was borrowed from Universal to play in "The Doorway to Hell."

"Loan" Price Rises.

Another (so-called) gentlemen's agreement, one having to do with loaned players' salaries, is off. Originally 25 per cent above the salary was paid when a studio borrowed a star or featured player from a rival.

In the last few months, for some unaccountable reason, the market value of borrowed actors and actresses has jumped astoundingly.

Constance Bennett, who makes as many pictures for other studios as she does for her own, Pathe, is said to be worth $100,000 a picture. She gets a percentage of the "bonus." When Ann Harding is loaned out she is said to bring as much.

Presto—A Star.

Formerly a player with good possibilities was never loaned for fear he might be ruined by a rival's picture. Today, however, a studio may loan a featured player and get back a star.

Ruth Chatterton's first big success came in "Madame X," for which she went to M-G-M from Paramount. Robert Montgomery came strikingly forward in "Three Live Ghosts," for which he was borrowed. Phillips Holmes was considered sensational in "The Criminal Code," and through it his value to Paramount was almost doubled.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

VISITING.

Changes in the modern home—the absence of any relative to care for the children when mother wishes to go out, and the prohibitive cost of hired help—often make it necessary for a present-day mother to choose between staying home with the children or taking them with her wherever she goes. Obviously, it is better for the children to stay home.

But if young mothers are never to go out, never to have a good time themselves, their children will surely suffer.

Either such mothers will become irritable and depressed, when they should be cheerful and serene, or they will see themselves as martyrs to their motherhood—a role in which they will not fail to exact tribute from all members of the family.

Perhaps, after all, there are times when it is best for children to be taken about to grown-up parties. What then can be done to make such visits as harmless as possible?

Resist the temptation to encourage your child to show off and hold the center of attention. Your friends will make a fuss over him only if they think you expect it.

If there is opportunity for him to play out of doors while you are visiting, by all means see that he does so. Take along some outdoor plaything if possible.

In any case be sure to provide entertainment by taking along some sort of toys—mosaic blocks, a pair of scissors, puzzles, sewing or weaving materials.

Youngsters under 4 will play happily with nested blocks, animals and picture books. Busy with his toys, the child will neither make a nuisance of himself through bids for the attention of adults, nor become tired and overstimulated by their attentions to him.

AUDIENCE CHARMED BY ROSA PONSELLE

Metropolitan Diva's Voice Is Displayed to Fine Advantage at Musical.

WOMAN CELLIST HEARD

Rosa Ponselle, prima donna of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, and Beatrice Harrison, cellist, pleased a capacity audience yesterday at Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's last musical morning of the season at the Mayflower.

The diva's coloratura tones made the ballroom ring with melody as she sang difficult operatic arias, a group of German songs and songs in Italian and French. Massenet's "Elegie," with Miss Harrison playing the obbligato, was given superbly.

The opera star displayed the same artistic instinct and grasp of technic which brought her to the fore. Her opening number, the aria "Pace, pace, mio Dio," from Verdi's "La Forza del Destino," aroused an enthusiasm which continued throughout the concert.

Selections from Sammartini, Old Brittany folk song, and Irish reels were among the numbers with which Miss Harrison found favor. Her renown was fully justified by her playing. The olden tones of her instrument and her skill in handling it added much to the concert.

GALLAUDET ALUMNI TO HONOR FOUNDER

Deaf Are to Commemorate Birthday of Philanthropist This Morning.

PLAN $50,000 MEMORIAL

The late Edward Miner Gallaudet, for 46 years the president of Gallaudet College, the only institution for higher education of the deaf in the country, will be honored at exercises commemorative of his birthday at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the college.

The convention will be the climax of a campaign led by the deaf alumni to raise $50,000 for a memorial building in honor of Dr. Gallaudet. Presentation of the memorial fund will be made at the exercises by the Rev. Franklin C. Smielau, president of the Alumni Association, and Pref. Harley D. Drake, treasurer of the special fund committee. Percival Hall, president, will respond.

Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, will speak. There will be also a memorial address by Dr. Francis Fox, principal of the New York School for the Deaf, and a paper on "What Gallaudet Has Done for Its Graduates," by Walter J. Krug, of the Gallaudet faculty.

An honorary degree will be conferred on Knight Dunlap, professor of psychology at Johns Hopkins, for two years chairman of the National Research Council's committee on problems of the deaf. The invocation will be made in signs by the Rev. Mr. Smielau, and orally by the Rev. Herbert D. Gallaudet.

Other exercises will be the placing of a memorial wreath by Chester Dobson and Josephine Beesley, of the class of 1931; a poem, "Edward Miner Gallaudet," to be read in signs by May Koehn, of the class of 1933, and orally by Elizabeth Peet.

The name of Gallaudet has been associated with the education of the deaf since 1815, when Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet sailed for England to learn the methods of instruction used there. He founded the first free school for the deaf in this country at Hartford, Conn. Edward Miner Gallaudet, his son, in 1857, founded the first school for the deaf in the District.

'Roxy' With 'Gang' To Be Club Guests

Two Concerts Today to Aid in Construction of Memorial Chapel.

The National Press Club will tender a luncheon to "Roxy and His Gang" today, at which the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Frederick H. Payne will be ranking guests. The concerts to be given by the group and orchestra this afternoon and evening in Constitution Hall are for the benefit of the Memorial Chapel of Walter Reed Hospital. The Gray Ladies of Walter Reed are erecting this chapel as a memorial to all service men.

Roxy and his party will arrive this morning, and a special police escort will accompany Roxy to Walter Reed Hospital at 10 o'clock. He will pass through the wards and greet disabled men. During his stay in Washington Roxy will find time to give a concert at the Hospital, which will be carried into every ward by radio from the Red Cross House.

The Press Club luncheon will be under direction of Lee Poe Hart, chairman of the entertainment committee. The president and board of governors of the club will welcome the guests.

Man, 64, Is Missing.

Police have been asked to search for Harry Frank, 64 years old, of 3145 P street northwest, missing since January 27. His disappearance was reported yesterday by George N. Darcy, of the same address.

Don't neglect a COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy—jars and tubes.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1931. 13

NAVY QUINT TRIUMPHS OVER GEORGETOWN, 45-32

U. S. Netmen Open With Mexico

U. S. Team Favored in Trials Despite Loss of Stars.

By THOMAS T. TOPPING.

PARKS, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—The annual forecast of another Franco-American duel in the final round of the historic Davis cup play was made again on all sides today as President Doumergue, of France, and the diplomats of more than a score of nations gathered around the famous silver tennis trophy for the 1931 draw.

President Doumergue presided over the function, staged in the Elysee Palace with all the ceremony of great affairs of state, in the presence of the representatives of most of the 30 nations entered for the international play. The luck of the draw pitted the United States against Mexico to start the North American zone series with the winner meeting Canada in the zone finals.

Great Britain Plays Monaco.

Ambassador Walter Edge, representing the United States, drew the first name from the cup in pairing the rivals of the European zone. Great Britain and Monaco clash in the first round while Switzerland is paired with Ireland, Austria with Greece, Czechoslovakia with Spain and Hungary with Italy.

Second round pairings bring Japan into action against Jugoslavia, Egypt against Finland, while Belgium opposes the winner of the great Britain-Monaco preliminary. Holland's bye in the first round pits the Dutchman against the winner of the Hungary-Italy match. Denmark meets Roumania, and Norway battles poland.

The zone finalists meet for the right to challenge France for the cup and once more the United States, which first engages the winner of the South American zone, previously drawn, is an outstanding favorite to challenge the French defenders again in the final.

President Picks U. S. Slip.

President Doumergue created a mild sensation as he picked the first slip from the depths of the Davis cup, read off the name "United States" and then said:

"This is the last time I shall have the honor of presiding at such a pleasant function."

The French delegation seemed astounded that the president of France should imply there was the slightest chance of losing the trophy, but it suddenly dawned on them that Doumergue's term of office ends in June, 1931. So even if France is victorious again this year, another president will preside over the Elysee Palace function in 1932.

"It looks like another United States-France final," Pierre Gillou, head of the French delegation, told the Associated Press. All the European experts feel the United States team will brush aside Mexico and Canada, defeat Argentina, favored as the South American zone winner, and again sweep through the interzone finals with the European winner. Even without the services of Big Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter, who have turned professional, the United States team, with George Lott, Wilmer Allison, John Van Ryn and the youngsters, Frank Shields and Sidney Wood, as a nucleus, is considered here the most powerful outside of France.

Dates for the interzone finals and challenge rounds alone have been fixed, although first-round play must be complete by May 5, second round by May 17, third by June 8, fourth by June 19 and zone finals by July 12. Interzone matches are scheduled for July 17, 18, 19, with the challenge round at Paris July 24, 25 and 26.

SAVOLDI'S MAT DEBUT FEB. 17

Kansas City, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—"Jumping" Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame gridiron star, will make his professional wrestling debut here February 16, Gabe Kauffman, American Legion match maker, announced today.

An opponent for the 220-pound Savoldi has not been selected.

Golf Match to Settle Argument Of Merits of 4 Different Sports

MILLVALLEY, Calif., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—This one will be a "mixed foursome," and how? Four substantial citizens of this city who argued over their favorite sports will compete in a match Saturday at the Millvalley Golf Club as follows:

It will be a nine-hole match with the golfer sinking all putts. The others will be conceded the "putt" if their missiles fall within 4 feet of the hole.

BURGESS ACE OF G. W. U. VICTORY

By BOB CONSIDINE.

WHATEVER qualms Coach Jim Pixlee might have entertained in the past over the "out-in-front" status of his club was severely put to rout last night at George Washington University Gym when the Colonials wrested a 38-to-33 decision from Wake Forest in one of the most vitally played games of the local collegiate season.

It was a manly game, if ever there was one, the players sprawling about in general confusion as the play quickened in the second half.

The Colonials went into the second half on the briefer end of a 24-17 score. The North Carolinians, a big, fast crew of marksmen, had shown generally all-around form to keep ahead of G. W. from the start. Only the inspired shooting of Forrest Burgess, leading local scorer, kept G. W. a respectable distance behind.

Burgess Starts Action.

Burgess, it was, who started the fiery second half rally, by making good on two free shots. The tempo of the game, already fast, quickened perceptively as Otta Zahn came through on a long pot. Then things broke loose when Burgess streaked down the length of the floor poking the ball before him, stopped dead in his tracks and sank an inimitable Burgess pot from the free toss stripe. Pandemonium reigned as Zahn put G. W. ahead on a brilliant one-handed shot from the sideline, 28-27.

With the bit in its teeth G. W. spurted, never to be headed. The team play of the Colonials knitted more closely and they presented a brand of passing and shooting which knew no master.

Five Stars Ineligible On Unbeaten Quintet

Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Wittenberg College's basket ball team was virtually wrecked today when five varsity players were declared ineligible because of poor scholastic grades during the first semester of the present year.

They were ordered benched by the faculty. The action probably ruined the hopes of Wittenberg in its quest for an undefeated season against all college opponents. The quintet will be permitted to continue their class work, but they are through as varsity athletes.

Thunderer, Stallion, Drops Dead at 18

Thunderer was 18 years old and had sired many winners, among them Traymore, winner of the Breeder's Futurity at Lexington under the colors of C. T. Worthington.

It had been planned to ship Thunderer to John Hay Whitney's Virginia farm in a few days, but now he will join Whisk Broom II, Prudery and other Whitney immortals in the horse graveyard on the Whitney Farm.

WIND BALKS AUTO SPEED TRIAL

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Capt. Malcolm Campbell, ace of the world's car drivers, was prevented from making an attempt to raise the land speed record today because of a high wind that swept the beach speedway here.

Whistling out of the north at a velocity estimated by the driver at between 35 and 40 miles an hour, the wind blew a steady stream of white sand across the 9-mile course from the nearby dunes, which would have made steering difficult at high speed.

Had he taken his huge racing machine to the beach today, he said the sand also would have lodged in his air intake valves and probably damaged his motor.

The wind, too, held the ocean's waves in fairly high on the course, and even at low tide the beach was too narrow.

Awaits Low Tide Today.

Given a good beach and ideal weather, Campbell hopes to be able to make his assault upon the record of 231 miles an hour tomorrow afternoon. Low tide then occurs about 3:45 p. m., but he probably would be able to get his car to the course an hour or two before that time.

The highest official speed Campbell has attained on practice runs is 194 miles an hour, recorded yesterday over the measured mile, although he claims that before he entered the mile he reached a top speed of 205. At that point his car slipped out of gear, and he was forced to slow down.

Coast Loop Unlikely To Adopt New Ball

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—While the question of whether the Pacific Coast League will adopt the new baseball is a matter in the hands of the directors, Harry A. Williams, president of the circuit, today said he believed no change would be made.

"The type of ball used last season was satisfactory," he said.

As for the possibility of the winner of the Pacific Coast League championship this season participating in the little world series, Williams said it had been discussed by several club owners. To play a post season series with the winners of the International League and American Association is the privilege of the winning club in the Pacific Coast League. The league leaves that for the champions to decide.

NORTHWESTERNS VICTORS.

Northwestern cagers annexed their fourteenth straight triumph of the season last night by trouncing the Imperials, 21 to 18, in a well-played contest staged on the Macfarland floor. The winners had to come from behind to cop the final verdict, as they trailed by 2 points at the half.

Scadde, of the Northwesterns, topped both teams in scoring, sinking four field goals. Cossette, a teammate, and Petridge, of the Imperials also stood out.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Announcement was made tonight by Maurice Fishman, treasurer of the Arena Corporation, that articles of agreement had been signed by Benny Bass, junior lightweight champion, and Bud Taylor, of Terre Haute, Ind., to meet in a ten-round nontitle bout at the arena February 16.

C. U. Defeated By Gallaudet Five, 41-17

Cosgrove Scores 22 Points as Blues Triumph.

Boys Club Tossers Victors Over C. U. Frosh, 19-15.

THE impression that Gallaudet College basket ball players lose their high-scoring ways when absent from their own bandbox gymnasium was dissipated last night when the Boys in Blue invaded that massive indoor inclosure at Catholic University and came away with a 41-17 triumph over the Cardinal varsity.

At the trigger of the Gallaudet machine gun last night was Del Cosgrove, one of the District's leading scorers. Cosgrove enjoyed the big "hot hand evening" in the full meaning of the parlance of the court. He sent a continuous flight of basket balls toward the Cardinals' ring and had the extreme pleasure of seeing nine of them complete the journey.

Gallaudet Plays Smoothly.

Despite the fact that Cosgrove dominated the scoring, Gallaudet did not lack in team play. Wurdeman, Hokanson and Ringle all aided materially on both the offense and the defense, while the guarding of Monaghan and Bradley was of high order.

On the contrary, Catholic U. could not get organized. Team play was ragged for the most part. Coach Gagnon used every available player in a search for a clicking combination.

Gallaudet gained a 16-11 lead in the first half. With the start of the second session, Cosgrove found the range and there competition ended.

It was Gallaudet's second victory in three years over Catholic U. More than 500 fans saw the game.

In a preliminary George Lassise, former Tech star, led the Boys Club Five to a 19-15 victory over the Catholic U. Freshmen.

LYCEUMS TRIUMPH.

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria Va., Feb. 4.—St. Mary's Lyceum piled up a 16-6 lead at the half-time whistle here at the armory tonight and then coasted into a 26-15 win over the strong Washington Aces in one of the best played games seen here this year.

It was mostly a battle of centers, with Genamer, of the winners, coming off with 12 points to lead his team, while Clifford attended to most of the losers' individual scoring.

Alpha Delta Omega Fraternity cagers, of Alexandria, are anxious to book some strong unlimited quintet for a contest to be played next Sunday at Schuler's Hall, Alexandria. Manager Ralph Scrivener can be reached at Alexandria 1700, between 6 and 7 p. m. The Fraters have been victorious in 23 out of 27 starts so far this season.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

CLEOPATRA, the "dark queen of Egypt," was a Greek, and though the popular conception is that she was a brunette and very dark, it is possible that she was a blonde. There is just as much evidence of either complexion. She was Egyptian by birth but so far as is known, did not have a single drop of Egyptian blood in her veins. Ptolemines remained pure Macedonian Greeks and their capital, Alexandria, was the center of Greek rather than Egyptian culture. They even dressed as Greeks except for certain ceremonial occasions. Shakespeare alluded to Cleopatra as tawny.

If extra legs contribute to speed, the eight-legged foal born near London, would stand an excellent chance of growing up to be the fastest horse the world has even known. The horse is now in the Royal Veterinary College of England.

Any reader wanting further proof of anything depicted here should address John Hix, care The Washington Post, and inclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply.

Baltimore Poly Gets Tech Football Date

Tech High early season 1931 grid schedule points to the school's clearing itself of a football deficiency bill which has been hanging over for two seasons. Taking into consideration the failure of Tech's cut of the high school series gate for 1930 to cover the grid expenditures made during the season, the amount is now in the neighborhood of $300.

Tech is listed to meet Baltimore Poly here on Friday night, September 25, at Griffith Stadium, if plans now formulating go through as expected. In any event, the Baltimoreans, who defeated Tech last fall, 7-0, will be met at Tech Stadium that September Friday afternoon. Other games scheduled by Tech to take place before the opening of the high school series include contests with Episcopal and Swavely.

AZTECS ERASE BLUE STREAKS

Woodward Upsets Gonzaga Five, 20-15

Woodward School's basket ball team gained revenge over Gonzaga yesterday in eminent fashion by taking a 20-15 game from the Purple at the Y. M. C. A. Gonzaga defeated Woodward by an overwhelming score early in January.

Woodward showed a revised style of defense yesterday, deserting the zone system for man to man play, and against this Gonzaga could do little in a scoring way. Woodward led from start to finish, holding an 11-7 lead at half time.

Fall Grid Practice At Pitt Cut in Half

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Fall football practice at the University of Pittsburgh, extending over four weeks in past seasons, is to be cut in half. Decision to reduce the period to two weeks was reached at a meeting of the university's athletic council. The council left to the discretion of the head coach, Dr. John B. Sutherland, the extent of spring practice, but it is believed in some quarters this program also is to be curtailed.

Recently Carnegie Tech decided to dispense with spring training entirely.

Reichman, of Tech, To Defend His Title

Al Reichman, Tech's matchless half-miler, will defend his title won last winter at the scholastic division of the annual Meadowbrook Games in Philadelphia, it was announced yesterday by Hap Hardell, coach of the Manual Trainers track and field squad.

Reichman, once more the outstanding member of the Tech track fraternity, has been working out well and appears capable of at least equaling his last year's mark of 2:00, by which he beat Frank Nordell, rated about the best high school half-miler in the East.

Hardell also will take two minor speedsters, both sprinters, to the games for seasoning.

Eastern and Central In Court Frays Today

Eastern and Central, powers to be reckoned with in the high school series, take on outside foes today to tune up for the series games due to be played tomorrow afternoon at Tech. Eastern has a hardened foe tonight in Georgetown Freshmen, to be played at Tech preliminary to the G. U.-Johns Hopkins game. The schoolboys will be fortunate to come through with a win.

Middies Win Contest in First Half

Hilltop Five Matches Rivals in Second Half Play.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 4.—Court representatives of Georgetown University were unable to match Navy's pace in the first half of the annual game here today when the Middies led 23 to 10 and as a result, were finally beaten, 45 to 32. The second period was deadlocked in scoring, however, each side tallying 22 points.

Play was rather listless, frequent fouling slowing the game down at stages. The Middies had all the better of the free tosses, being awarded 26 charity flips, on 15 of which they registered. Georgetown made good on 8 out of 10 tries.

Georgetown players committed most of their fouls under the Navy basket and two free shots resulted on a majority of the penalties. Navy's fast-cutting attack bewildered the Georgetown defense and the Hilltop players were overzealous at times in preventing field goals. Most of Georgetown's points from the strip were one pointers.

The Hilltoppers, unable to work the ball in, shot wildly from long range except late in the game when Maczee made four field goals in less than 5 minutes. This individual effort by Maczee was outstanding for the visitors.

Three G. U. Players Forced Out.

Three Georgetown players, Dillon, Leavey and McHale were removed via the personal foul route. Dillon was ejected 8 minutes from the finish, while Leavey followed 4 minutes later and McHale just before the final whistle. Two Navy players with three fouls apiece were replaced.

The Georgetown delegation was below the standard of former years and the rival cheering was missed. Despite the many fouls play never became rough, most penalties being for overguarding and backing.

Shea opened the game for Georgetown with a field goal and Leavey followed with a foul. The count was 6 to 6 when Navy tied it up, and with Kastein outjumping Dillon, Navy had little trouble attaining a 13-point margin midway. The Navy attack men followed their rebounds well for numerous field goals in the initial period, while Georgetown was being held to three double-deckers.

In the second half, Georgetown showed more pep and outscored Navy from field. Bedell, Navy guard, ran wild in the second half with four field goals and two fouls which added to his first half summary, made him high scorer of the game with 15 points. Loughlin, Navy forward, with 11 points, was the runner-up. Shea, who played but a short while in each period, and Maczee were outstanding for the invaders.

British Women Change Style of Title Golf Play

London, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—The British women's golf championship, to be held at Fort Marnock, Ireland, the week of June 8, is to be competed on the basis of a qualifying round and match play, an innovation in British women's golf. Heretofore the championships have been decided at match play only.

The British Ladies Golf Union, governing body for the British Isles, today announced acceptance of a challenge from the United States for an international women's team match in 1932. The match will be played in England.

Added Weight Worry To Workman, Now Idle

Miami, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Raymond "Sonny" Workman, who received a double fracture of his lower left leg in a fall from W. S. Kilmer's Suntica yesterday, is worrying whether he will be fit to ride C. V. Whitney's Equipoise in the Preakness and Kentucky Derby.

Although Sonny's injury is expected to heal in time for the first of the big 3-year-old stakes on May 6 and the impost of 126 is easy to make, the popular little rider needs plenty of work to keep in condition. He takes on weight easily and will be unable to give his best unless he can get in plenty of saddle work before the time comes for his shot at fame.

Tom Healey, trainer of the Whitney Stable, had planned on having Workman leave Florida next week for a short vacation and report to the Whitney farm in New Jersey on March 1 to help prepare the Blue and Brown runners for the spring campaign.

MONTROSE FIVE TO PLAY IN POST TOURNEY AGAIN

1930 A. A. U. Champions Prepare

Club May Compete in 145-Pound Class This Season.

Player Registration in 2 Classes to Close Saturday.

DESPITE the absence of eight of the ten players which carried it to the unlimited championship of the 1930 A. A. U. tournament, the Montrose A. C. will enter this year's tournament which starts March 9 at the Tech High Gymnasium under the auspices of The Washington Post and the District of Columbia Association of the A. A. U.

Whether or not the club will defend its unlimited title, or step down a class and enter the 145-pound division, depends on the result of a meeting to decide that question which will be held tonight at the home of Ike Scheele, 2807 Q street northwest, starting at 7 o'clock.

Smith and Scheele Are Veterans.

Capt. Johnny Smith and Ike Scheele are the vets around which the 1931 Montrose quintet has been built. Bob Freeman, Jimmy Thompson, Herbert Thompson, Andrew Scheele, Everett, Buscher, Bill Payne and Tommy David, other members of the 1930 team, are missing this year from the club's player roster. In their stead, however, has come Joe Buscher, Ken Kenny, Len Harrington, Bill McPherson and Ike Rabbit, who are carrying on with Smith and Scheele until the close of the public high school championship series, when three members of the Western High School five, Anthony Latona, Roy Yowell and Speed Fox will be available for service with the Georgetown quintet.

The 1931 Montrose Team so far has won eight and lost four contests. Included in their victories have been ones over the Y. M. C. A., St. Mary's Lyceum, of Alexandria; Pullmans and McLeans.

Saturday Deadline For 2 Classes.

With next Saturday's deadline for registration of unlimited and 145-pound players in the District of Columbia Association of the A. A. U. rapidly approaching, many teams are making last-minute efforts to comply with this registration, a procedure which is absolutely necessary for participation in the tournament. Registration blanks may be secured at the sports department of The Post or from William E. Russell, 1505 North Capitol street. These blanks must be filled out and submitted to Mr. Russell at the above address by Saturday, February 7.

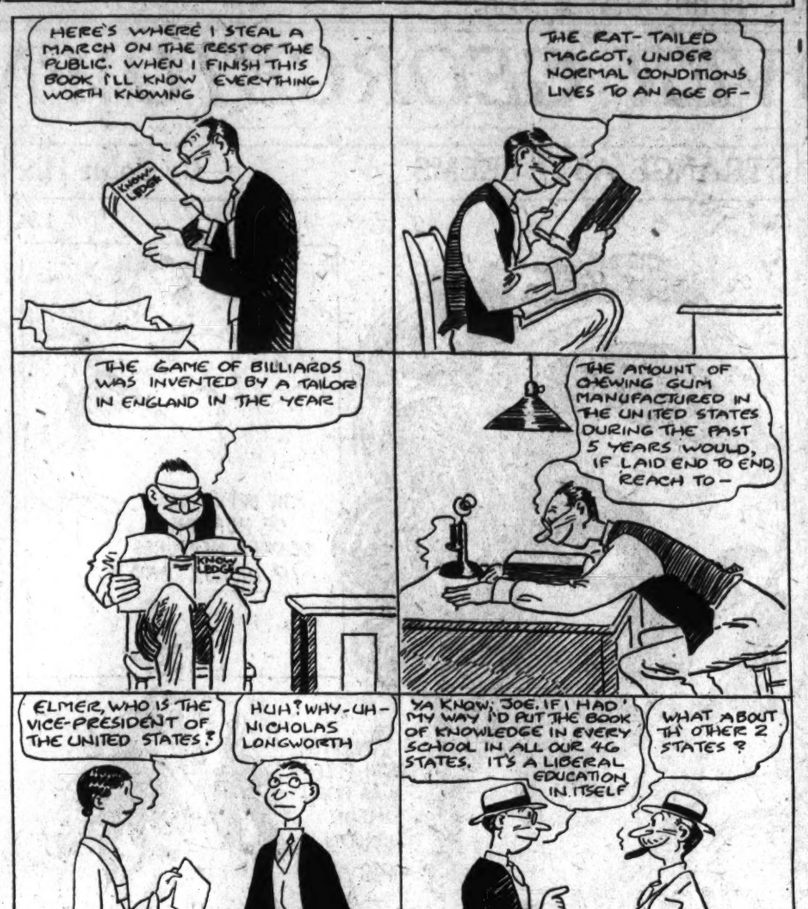
Living in a Fool's Paradise —By H. T. Webster



Boots and Saddles

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Miami Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

THE attendance at Miami has fallen off during the past few days and this condition can be attributed to the unsettled weather. With the track in poor shape today, the races will be run over a track fetlock deep in mud. Seven claiming events make up the card.

In the absence of a feature event, the fifth heat, which has attracted a field of eight 3-year-olds, appears the best race on the card. CYNIC, a consistent plater in the W. E. Scott Stable, is picked to lead this field home. The Scott color bearer weakened in his last start at a mile and a sixteenth, but over the heavy going figures best of this band at the shorter distance. LITTLE COVENTRY, a fast-stepping mud-lark, is well suited by the conditions and should furnish the opposition. VOLTABUSH turned in two clever performances and has shown improvement each time. The Nevada Stock Farm filly is given the show selection.

FIRST RACE—STELLA NOVA, a speedy sprinter in the J. E. Widener string, should graduate against this field. FOURTH WARD showed a high turn of speed the other day and should improve off that effort to gain the place here. ONRITO set the pace in his first start, but tired and should last to take down the show award.

SECOND RACE—BAD AXE ran an impressive race last out and on that effort is favored to land the major portion of the purse. CHINKEE figures to save the place. BONNETT appears best of the others.

THIRD RACE—MADELON stands out as the most solid selection of the entire program. DEA has raced with better company and figures to finish in the runner-up position. BROWN GOLD is due for improvement and should hold the others safe.

FOURTH RACE—VALLEY, a clever mud-runner, is given the call in this open event. OJIBWA, a stout stretch runner, will appreciate the three-quarter distance and is given the place call. MINERALOGIST fits in well with this class and is favored for the show.

SIXTH RACE—ESTIN, a superior mudrunner, is the logical choice against this field and should lead from the drop of the flag. STURDY has shown a return to his best form but may falter in the rough going. However, he is favored for the place. SCARLET BRIGADE should take third money.

SEVENTH RACE—GLENNO disappointed at odds-on in his last effort but is given the opportunity to redeem himself in this heat. BORIS, from the Harned Brothers' stable, has been raced into condition and is ready to contest the issue. MY SCOOP was weakly ridden last out and with better handling may prove dangerous.

RACOON WINS MIAMI RACE FEATURE

Sidney Grant Passes Replevin in Final Stretch Drive.

HIALEAH RACE TRACK, Fla., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—The Brookmeade Stable's Raccoon, 4-year-old Wrack gelding, scored a hard earned victory in the Tamiami Trail Handicap, which headed a lean card here this afternoon. Sidney Grant and Replevin followed the winner home, there being only three starters over the mile journey through heavy mud. Raccoon was played down to favoritism and rewarded his many backers with $5.20 for $2.

Replevin had the early foot of the small field, leading Raccoon up the back stretch by a length. Passero brought Raccoon around the outside on the bend and, racing in the middle of the track, took command entering the stretch.

Dr. Parrish Scores In Fourth.

Passero had to punish his mount to get clear of Replevin and, at the end, the choice was a length and a half in front. Replevin tired in the final drive and Sidney Grant, finishing with a rush, took the place by a length.

Dr. Parrish, carrying the colors of R. Wingfield, was much the best of the three starters in the claiming dash of six furlongs, fourth on the card, leading Hacky H and Black Watch to the wire with little effort. He was well played, paying $5.50 for $2.

Dr. Parrish followed the pace of Hacky H. to the far turn, where he slipped through on the inside, drew clear, and won by three lengths, while Hacky H. beat Black Watch ten lengths for the place.

SAKS CLOTHIERS PLAY.

Saks Clothiers are out after their twenty-fifth straight win tonight at the Silver Spring High School when the crack Washington Aces are met at 8:30 o'clock.

NOMINAL ADVANCES SCORED BY STOCKS

Trend Registers Distinctly Firm, Despite Negative Business News.

RAILS IRREGULARLY OFF

New York, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—The stimulating example of a rallying bond market prompted stocks to extend their week's gains today. Advances, except in a few pool favorites of the moment, were rather nominal but the tone was distinctly firm.

The abrupt turn in United States Governments, accompanied by a strengthening of other domestic bonds, was taken as the reflection of a belief in financial circles that earlier fears of a maximum bonus payment were unjustified. At its best price of the day one of the Treasury issues was about a point and a half net higher and closing quotations in the entire group represented gains of ¼ to nearly ½ a point.

Share trading on the stock exchange was largely a repetition of yesterday's session. Again, the top quotations and the most activity appeared in the final hour. The total turnover of roughly 1,500,000 shares was 300,000 larger than that of either Monday or Tuesday.

Amusement Shares Improve.

Amusement and merchandising groups improved and some of the utilities came forward with fair gains. Rails cast a light shadow over the list with their irregularly lower prices, but there was considerable pool support for a handful of specialties. Privotal industrials, with a few exceptions, confined their net gains to fractions. American Can, however, as well as Westinghouse, Johns Manville, J. I. Case, Allied Chemical and American Tobacco "B" closed 1 to 2 higher.

Eastman Kodak profited from professional accumulation to the extent of more than 4. Vulcan Detinning, Radio preferred "B," Kelvinator, Superheater and U. S. Pipe were other favorites. Woolworth's January sales increase of 4.5 per cent was favorably received and led to a cautious demonstration in store shares, notably Macy, Best and Sears Roebuck.

Directors of Rock Island and Frisco railroads did the expected and deferred until March action on the common dividends. Both stocks sagged. An estimate of $7.20 a share for New York Central in 1930 made that issue a soft spot for a time, but it more than recovered a drop of 1½.

Business News Negative.

The rise in stocks received little aid or comfort from the day's business news, the bulk of which was negative. Two oil companies cut their dividends and General Motors voted a quarterly payment that had not been earned. Steel mill activity in the last week rose 1 per cent, which meant that operators had been increasing for six weeks, but Iron Age said demand had lost momentum and was "increasingly uneven," although tin plate, rail accessories and pipe orders continued to give production the best support. Both freight car loadings and electric power production, two reliable business indices, declined in the most recent week for which statistics were available.

A small cut in copper prices carried the domestic quotation back to 9½ cents, the low of last year, and little demand for the metal was reported. Lead prices were also shaded for the second consecutive day, but bar silver on the other hand, steadied, rising an eighth of a cent here.

Foreign exchanges were almost uniformly firm, led by sterling. The rally of 5-32 in cables, carrying the quotation to $4.85 31-32, reflected the drawing power of the stronger London money markets on American funds.

Neither of the principal grains could add much, if anything, to yesterday's advances. Wheat closed ⅛ lower to ½ higher, influenced partially by the tone of Winnipeg, while corn sagged half a cent net. Cotton, however, rallied 13 to 18 points.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—An abatement of buying fever in grains late today accompanied likelihood of moisture relief in much dry drought territory southwest. Reports said foreign buyers of wheat refused to follow price advances. Slackness of Eastern demand for corn was also a drag on values.

Wheat closed irregular at ½ cent decline, to ½ cent advance; corn ½ to ¾ down, oats unchanged to ¾ up, and provisions 10 to 20 cents off.

All first all grains showed decided upward momentum and increased activity. Widespread need of moisture, especially throughout the winter wheat belt, had been officially confirmed, and reports suggested that a sudden drop in temperatures would cause crop damage. Talk was also heard that Liverpool quotations represented wheat at only 45 cents a bushel in export countries, a discount unlikely to be duplicated in a generation. A further stimulus was 32,000,000 bushels increase in estimates of world import requirements of wheat.

Prospects, however, of a break up of drought conditions tended to illustrate a-new how fickle a weather market could be, and early price gains both of wheat and corn were more than wiped out as the day drew to an end. A contributing bearish influence was word that other principal market centers were offering corn to Chicago in liberal amounts, and that Ohio corn was tendered East lower than Chicago's basis. Selling to realise profits for recent buyers added to the weight on the corn market. Oats were upheld by scantiness of receipts.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—July, 67@67½; September, 65¾; 67¾. Corn—May, 64¼; 66¾; July, 65¾@65½; 67¾@67¾; September (bids), 65¾.

BONDS BOLSTERED BY BUOYANT TONE

U. S. Governments Lead in Better Price Trend of Entire Market.

MONEY MARKET IS EASY

New York, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Bond prices were bolstered all along the line today, as the buoyant tone of United States Government securities was reflected in an improved demand for other obligations.

Government's again held the spotlight, as the strong comeback that got under way yesterday as the financial community's worst fears concerning the soldiers' bonus were allayed, continued through the second successive session.

Sizeable advances that compared favorably with the declines last week were registered by the group. Most of them closed at the top for net gains ranging from 13-32ds to ⅜. A spectacular performer was the Treasury 3½ issue which at the height of the day's advance sold 1-16 above the previous close.

The source of the support was not learned in Wall street but in banking circles it was said that the market's absorptive powers were still weak. It is expected that the weekly statements of the Federal Reserve Bank will show little change in its Government holdings.

The tone of the money market was very easy and bankers said that it would not be disturbed by the payment of $60,000,000 to the Treasury on its short-term notes yesterday and today. Corporate investment issues that are influenced in the main by money market conditions firmed although the volume of trading was little changed. Second grade issues and stock privilege bonds responded to the better tone in the share market and it was these groups that gained the most.

Liquidation in Latin-American issues subsided and foreign bonds were steadier as a group. Peru 7s and the first 8s recovered a point or two from the second lows reached yesterday.

Curb Review

New York, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Curb stocks were rather backward in participating in the upturn in other security markets today, but managed to close slightly higher. Trading expanded to a turnover of 410,000 shares, or 160,000 more than yesterday's.

The market mustered sufficient strength to discourage short selling during the early hours, and under the leadership of oils and utilities made some progress on the upside. The activity of the buying side, however, attracted little enthusiasm and prices at the close were off somewhat from the day's peak.

Vacuum attracted attention in the oil group, which virtually ignored the dividend cut by Standard of Nebraska and appeared to be influenced by the favorable statistical reports on the state of the industry. Vacuum advanced 2¼ points, closing at the day's high, and Gulf moved up a point. Standard of Indiana closed ¼ higher and Humble ⅝. Cities Service, after early firmness, was ½ net lower. Nebraska was inactive.

Utilities displayed a firm tendency, but moved forward at a slow gait. Electric Bond & Share appreciated ¾, and gave about the best performance among the active shares. United Gas, American Superpower, Middle West Utilities and American Gas & Electric were just barely higher.

The industrial list was sprinkled with some comparatively extensive gains. Aluminum of America rallied 2½, A. O. Smith 2, and advances of a point or more were registered by Aviation of America, Fajardo Sugar, General Aviation and Empire Fire Insurance. Franklin Manufacturing Co. dipped 5 points to a new low at 34.

NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

New York, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Call money easy; 1½ per cent all day. Time loans easy; 60 days, 1¼@1½; 3-4 months, 1¼@1½; 5-6 months, 2¼@2½ per cent. Prime commercial paper, 2¼@3. Bankers acceptances easier; 30 days, 1½@1⅝; 60-90 days, 1⅝@1¾; 4 months, 1¾@1¾; 5-6 months, 1¾@1¾. Bar silver, 27¼.

OIL QUOTATIONS.

YOUR INCOME TAX

NO. 4.

If husband and wife should each have a net income in excess of $4,000, but neither a net income in excess of $8,000, it is to their interest, in filing separate income-tax returns for the year 1930, to divide the personal exemption of $3,500 between them, as shown by the following illustration, in which the husband claims $3,000 and the wife $500:

Net income, husband	$7,000
Personal exemption	3,000
Taxable at 1½ per cent	4,000
Husband's tax	60
Net income, wife	4,500
Personal exemption	500
Taxable at 1½ per cent	4,000
Wife's tax	60
Total for husband and wife	120

The normal tax rate being 1½ per cent on the first $4,000 of net income in excess of the personal exemption and other credits, 3 per cent on the next $4,000, and 5 per cent on the balance, any other division of the personal exemption would have subjected part of the husband's or wife's income to the 3 per cent rate. The computations do not include the 36 per cent credit on earned incomes.

Aside from dividing the personal exemption, husband and wife often may further decrease the amount of their total taxes by filing separate returns and reporting their separate income therein, providing their joint income is sufficiently large to be subject to the surtax, which applies to net incomes in excess of $10,000.

Husband and wife may elect each year whether to file a joint return or separate returns. Where, however, a joint return or separate returns have been filed for a particular year, neither husband nor wife may afterward file an amended return or returns on a different basis for that year.

General Motors Net Income Down

New York, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—General Motors Corporation directors today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock. Net income for the year ended December 31 was $151,098,992, including equity in undivided profits of subsidiaries not consolidated, compared with $248,282,268 in 1929.

Earnings of $3.25 a share for the year indicated net of 40 cents a share in the final quarter as compared with the dividend requirement of 75 cents. Earnings in the preceding quarter amounted to 53 cents a share.

Sales to dealers, including Canada and overseas, totaled 1,174,115 cars and trucks against 1,899,287 units in 1929. Sales to dealers in the United States last year were 1,035,660 cars compared with 1,535,153 in 1929. Dealers in the United States delivered to consumers in 1930 a total of 1,057,710 cars against 1,498,792 in the previous year.

4,000 TO GET WORK THROUGH $3,000,000 HIGHWAY PROGRAM

$640,000 Is Available at Present for Projects Within Capital.

BIDS OPENED ON FIVE JOBS BY WHITEHURST

15 Contracts Will Be Let; District Appropriation Bill Includes Sum.

Several thousand men will be given employment early this spring with the early launching of the District's highway improvement program, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, chief engineer of the highway department, announced yesterday as five road projects, the first of three groups, were advertised for bids.

Total expenditures for the work, encompassing fifteen contracts, will approach $3,000,000, according to Capt. Whitehurst, and will provide employment for approximately 4,000 men.

Included in Pending Bill.

The greater part of this money is included in the pending District appropriation bills, but preparations are being made to advertise for bids so that all will be in readiness to let the contracts as soon as the funds are available.

About 80 per cent of the estimated $800,000 for the first five jobs is available under the current appropriation, however, Capt. Whitehurst explained, and will enable the District to let contracts before Congress acts on the 1932 appropriations. These bids will be opened on February 16 and 17. The work includes the laying of sidewalks, the paving of roadways and alleys, the former with both concrete and asphalt.

Projects Costing $1,500,000.

Bids will be asked on six other highway projects March 1 and they will be opened March 22. This work, the estimated cost of which is $1,500,000, is similar to the first class, but more extensive. Both are for new developments.

Four repair jobs will be advertised about April 1 and the bids will be opened April 20. The estimated cost is $500,000.

Officials of the National Zoo will act today on the bequest of Victor Justice Evans, prominent patent attorney, who died Sunday, of all animals, birds and reptiles now housed at Acclimation Park. It is expected that the National Zoo will accept the gift of the collection, which includes some rare specimens of birds and one of the finest privately owned exhibits of pheasants in the country.

Under the terms of Mr. Evans' will, filed for probate yesterday, the collection at Acclimation Park, his 25-acre private zoo, and also a number of animals now at the National Zoo are given to the United States. If the National Zoo does not want them the executors are to offer them to the Philadelphia Zoo, and if refused by that institution, to the New York Zoo.

The bequest does not include animals which are classed as pets, which are given to the widow, Mrs. Karen G. Evans, who may make her own selection.

Dr. William M. Mann, director of the National Zoo, was in Baltimore yesterday when the will was filed, and no action on the offer can be taken until today.

While the National Zoo is already cramped for space, many of its own exhibits being crowded, it is expected that the Acclimation Park animals will be accepted.

Some of the specimens of pheasants at Acclimation Park are not now included in the National Zoo.

Among the birds are giant cranes from Africa, Victoria pigeons, large fowl which rank next to the extinct Dodo in size, and several varieties of pheasants, both beautiful and rare. There are Impian pheasants from Mongolia and Argues, from Borneo, which would be a notable addition to the National Zoo. Among the most highly colored pheasants at Acclimation Park are a pair of Lady Amhurst pheasants, cultivated by the English peeress of that name.

Included in the Evans collection is Toto, a young chimpanzee, about 2½ years old. Chimpanzees are always avidly sought by zoos, and Toto, which has resided at Acclimation Park for about eighteen months, is a highly educated young primate.

He is quite fond of his keeper, Russell Morrison, and it is not certain how the pair will bear separation. Toto likes to have Mr. Morrison fondle him, and obeys the keeper's word implicitly.

Acclimation Park also has several varieties of monkeys, Elands, a fine pair of zebras and a young zebra, beavers, and other animals to be found at any properly conducted zoo.

The will also stipulated that Mr. Evans' Indian collection and other records be given to the National Museum and designated as "The Victor J. Evans Collection."

All employes who have been with his law firm, Victor J. Evans & Co., are to receive $1,000 each. Several other specific bequests are made, after which the widow and a brother, Arthur L. Evans, are to share in the residue. They also were named as executors.

Mrs. Evans, however, is to become half owner of the firm, while the brother is to receive the other eight-twentieths which he owned. The firm was composed of the deceased, his brother and a nephew, Merlin M. Evans.

SERVICE TO HONOR MRS. M'DOWELL

TRIBUTE BY MINISTERS

Washington and Baltimore Methodists tonight will meet in Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and P streets, to hold a memorial service for Clotilda Lyon McDowell, wife of Bishop William Fraser McDowell. Mrs. McDowell died recently. She was an outstanding figure in the world-wide work of the Methodist Church and for more than a dozen years was the president of its Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. For fourteen years she lived in Washington.

At this evening's service personal tributes to her work and worth will be read from President and Mrs. Herbert Hoover and, from Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. The music will be by a choir composed of Mrs. Mary Sherier Bowie, soprano; Miss Ritchie McLean, contralto; J. F. M. Bowie, tenor; J. E. Kinsella, bass, with George Wilson at the organ.

The memorial addresses will be made by Miss Florence Hooper, of Baltimore, and Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, of Foundry Church, who was Mrs. McDowell's pastor.

Other ministers, who will take part in the services, are the Rev. Benjamin W. Meeks, district superintendent, Washington District; the Rev. J. Phelps Hand, pastor, Wesley Methodist Church; the Rev. Robert F. Coates, district superintendent, Washington Conference; the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives; the Rev. Harry Earl Woolever, editor of the National Methodist Press, and the Rev. H. Wilson Burgan, of Baltimore. The organ recital of memorial hymns will begin at 7:45 o'clock.

Labor Representatives Call on Unemployment Bureau for Action.

The District of Columbia committee on unemployment was asked by a delegation of labor union representatives yesterday to assist in getting work started on several governmental projects so as to help relieve unemployment. The delegates talked with George J. Adams, secretary.

Among the jobs mentioned are the House Office Building, the interior of the new Department of Commerce plant, and some work on Columbia Island in connection with the Arlington Memorial Bridge. The committee was also asked to urge householders to do their spring repairing and painting now.

The labor delegation comprised Howard T. Colvin, president of the Central Labor Union; Patrick Scoles, of the Journeymen Stone Cutters; S. F. Terry, of the Electrical Workers; Frank M. Biggs, of the Reinforced Concrete Rod Workers; William J. Gallagher, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers; Richard H. Burdette and John I. Swarthout, Carpenters' District Council; H. Buie, Painters Local Union; J. B. O'Connor, Stone and Marble Masons; Opie Lindsay, Wire and Metal Lathers; John Locher, International Association of Bridge Structural and Iron Workers; and J. M. Botts, Steam Fitters and Helpers Association.

PITTS DENIED BOND IN PENDING APPEAL

HABEAS CORPUS BLOCKED

In an opinion handed down yesterday by Justice Frederick L. Siddons in District Supreme Court, G. Bryan Pitts, convicted chairman of the board of the F. H. Smith Co., was denied his liberty on bond pending action of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals. The opinion was handed down on a petition for habeas corpus recently argued by Pitts' new counsel, Attorney T. Morris Wampler.

Pitts was convicted in District Supreme Court before Justice William Hitz shortly before Christmas and was sentenced to serve fourteen years in jail. He was convicted jointly with C. Elbert Anadale, former vice president, and John H. Edwards, jr., former treasurer. Neither Anadale nor Edwards are appealing, and the latter now is serving the three-year sentence imposed on him. Anadale is under a nine-year sentence, but has not yet gone to Occoquan, being held at the jail pending further investigation of certain additional charges against Pitts. Anadale turned Government witness after his conviction.

Justice Siddons, in his opinion, held that Pitts' case is now before the Court of Appeals and explains that that tribunal has the power to release him on bail, if it so desires.

Attorney Wampler in obtaining a writ of habeas corpus contended that Pitts' trial was illegal, contending that his trial on a conspiracy charge was held by the District Supreme Court sitting as a criminal court and not as a Federal district court. Justice Siddons, however, held that never in the history of District of Columbia courts had a criminal trial been held in a court sitting as a district court of the United States.

The justice stated that he will shortly sign an order quashing the writ of habeas corpus on which Pitts was brought into the court.

Personality Lectures To Begin on Monday

A series of six lectures on "Present-Day Problems of Personality and Character Development" will be presented, beginning Monday, under the auspices of the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene, Miss Jessie La-Salle, chairman of the committee on publicity and education, announced yesterday.

Dr. Thomas V. Moore, of the Providence Hospital clinic, will open the series Monday night with a review of the field to be covered by all of the speakers. Others who will lecture are Dr. James Plant, of Newark, N. J.; Dr. Phyllis Blanchard, of Philadelphia; Dr. E. C. Lindeman, of New York, and Dr. Paul Ewerhardt, of the Washington Child Guidance Clinic.

Passing of B. F. Saul Mourned by Rotarians

Resolutions of regret at the passing of B. Frank Saul here last Sunday were adopted yesterday by the Washington Rotary Club, of which he was a member, at a meeting at the Willard Hotel.

"In the community he was honored and respected as a sterling and noble citizen," the resolution stated. "In the business world his word was trusted and his judgment sought after." The resolution was presented by Arthur May, who was called on by President Henry N. Brawner, jr. The club adjourned without the usual entertainment program.

Heart Attack Is Fatal.

George R. Conley, 42 years old, stricken with a heart attack yesterday afternoon in the hallway of his home, M street northwest near Twenty-second street, died before medical attention arrived. The Fire Rescue Squad attempted vainly to revive him. He was pronounced dead by an Emergency Hospital physician.

CHANGES PROPOSED IN DECREE PETITION BY UTILITIES BOARD

Hartman Makes Suggestions for Bride to Incorporate if He Sees Fit.

DOCUMENT AS DRAWN MAY BE DISCARDED

Plan Desired by Some Is to Put Burden of Proof on Traction Lines.

The Public Utilities Commission is understood to be changing its method of attack on the electric rate consent decree following several days' consideration of the petition for modification which Corporation Counsel William W. Bride drafted in accordance with its instructions and contrary to the advice he gave the body. The document, it is believed, will either be discarded or greatly revised.

The whole matter yesterday was in a state of doubt following the transmission of a suggested proposal by Harleigh H. Hartman, legal member of the commission, for insertion in the petition if Mr. Bride saw fit. Another threatened rift between the utilities body and its counsel over the manner in which the communication was delivered was averted at a conference, and Mr. Bride later in the day announced that he and the commission were practically in accord.

Before Meeting Today.

While neither the commission members nor the corporation counsel would reveal the contents of the proposed insertion in the petition, nor would disclose what new action was being discussed, it is expected that the matter will be discussed at the regular meeting of the utilities body today and some announcement may be forthcoming.

Attorneys outside the controversy have freely expressed the opinion that the petition would likely be thrown out of the District Supreme Court if it were presented in its original form either upon the initiative of the court or upon application by the Potomac Electric Power Co.'s counsel or other parties. Richmond B. Keech, the people's counsel, who sponsored the plan for abrogation of the decree, as advised by Mr. Bride, has been maintaining a policy of watchful waiting, and it would not have been surprising if he should move for dismissal if the commission insists upon its original plan.

Both Mr. Bride and Mr. Keech have maintained that the utilities body has the authority to set any electric rates they deem just and revise the consent decree accordingly or else declare it no longer valid because it failed to operate equitably between the public and the power company. Under this scheme no application would have to be made to the court, but the commission might inform it of the action.

Would Shift Burden of Proof.

Should the commission adopt this or a similar plan in place of their modification procedure, the burden of proof, it is pointed out, would be shifted from the shoulders of the utilities body to those of the power company. Thus, instead of the corporation counsel having to convince the court that the utility's 10 per cent rate of return is unfair to the public, the power company would have to prove that any new rates the commission set would be confiscatory.

Such a change in position by the commission would serve to coordinate the people's counsel, the corporation counsel and the utilities body in their efforts to lower the electric rates, and, in the opinion of Mr. Bride and Mr. Keech, this plan would be much more likely to achieve success.

Shrine Temple to Hear Plans for Year's Work

Robert S. Regar, potentate of Almas Temple of the Shrine, will outline plans and policies of the Shrine for the coming year at a meeting this evening in the clubhouse.

Entertainment and refreshments will follow the session. Invitations have been extended to all Shriners in Washington.

World-Famous Figures in Aviation Enjoy Dual Affair Here.

BREAKERSS OF MARKS GIVEN CERTIFICATES

Col. Lindbergh, Miss Earhart, Chamberlin and Van Orman Are Present.

Between 500 and 600 air-minded Washingtonians last night paid their respects to 1930's famous airmen and airwomen at a reception and ball given in honor of the latter at the New Willard. The affair, sponsored by the Aero Club of Washington, was marked by the presentation of certificates to such noted figures as Miss Amelia Earhart, Miss Elinor Smith, Lee Shoenhair, John and Kenneth Hunter, Mrs. Marion Eddy Conrad, Dwight S. Zimmerly, Paul Clough and Lieut. Apollo Soucek.

Only the latter was unable to receive his certificate in person. In the absence of Lieut. Soucek, the official document of his world's altitude flight was accepted by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, head of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics.

Emblems Are Official.

Quite as distinguished as those especially honored were many of the other aeronautic figures present at the reception and ball. This group included Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Lieut. Alford J. Williams, Clarence Chamberlin, Lieut. James Doolittle, Miss Ruth Nichols, holder of the woman's transcontinental speed record, and Ward T. Van Orman, famous balloonist.

The certificates, official emblems of world records established during 1930, were presented by Senator Hiram Bingham, president of the National Aeronautic Association on behalf of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, world's record governing body.

Elinor Smith Honored.

The awards to Miss Earhart and Miss Smith were made, respectively, for speed and altitude records. The certificate of the former set forth that her mark of 181.15 miles an hour over a 3 kilometer course at Detroit last July 5 was officially recognized as a world's record.

Miss Smith was honored for her establishment of an altitude record of 27,418 feet at Roosevelt Field, New York, on March 10, 1930.

The third woman, Mrs. Marion Eddy Conrad, became the official holder of the world's record for altitude for class C seaplanes. She reached a level of 15,461 feet in a flight at Port Washington, N. Y., last October.

Lee Shoenhair was the recipient of the greatest number of certificates. Five of his records for speed-with-load established last February were recognized as official world marks. The records ranged from a speed of 185.49 miles an hour for a 500 kilogram load to 152.72 miles an hour with a cargo of 1,000 kilograms weight.

Stimson Pays Tribute To Memory of Chilean

Secretary of State Stimson paid tribute yesterday to the memory of the late Jose Toribio Medina, Chilean hostorian and bibliographer, in presenting a resolution extending the condolences of the governing board of the Pan-American Union to the Government of Chile, Ambassador Carlos G. Davila and the family of Dr. Medina.

Mr. Stimson referred in glowing terms to the lifetime devoted by the man of letters to the advancement of knowledge and development of culture which made him an outstanding figure in the intellectual life of the American continents. Senor Davila acknowledged the eulogy.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE GARBLE SISTERS.
(They discuss the happenings of the day.)

"I SEE by the papers that they're going to court-martial Gen. Smedley Wickersham."

"What for?"

"He made a speech in which he said that Daisy De Boe ran over Clara Bow and didn't stop to see how badly she was hurt or sumpin."

"Oh, I remember reading about it. It's all got something to do with that fight in Congress over a relief fund for the sufferers from the George Butler commission's report on prohibition, ain't it?"

"I think so. Wasn't it the silliest report you ever read?"

"It sure was. Imagine half the commission coming out flat for repeal or modification and the other half saying it was all right for us to keep troops in Haiti!"

"It was so contradictory nobody could follow it. The more I read of the report the less I could make out whether the commission had reached any definite conclusions on Mussel Shoals or whether they left it to Hoover to decide whether we should go into the World Court."

"I thought the way Mr. Hoover jumped in and repudiated his own investigators was terrible."

* * * *

"SO did I. After eighteen months deliberation they came out with a $500,000 report on their investigation and the President sat right down and wrote a statement in which he defended the tariff and apologized to Mussolini."

"It was such poor politics. I thought Mr. Hoover should have waited at least a few days until the jury decided whether the De Boe girl really stole any of Clara's money and jewels or not."

"How so?"

"Well, if they really prove that Mr. Lucas sent those mushy telegrams to Clara Bow and that she bought him that slave bracelet, the public will be pretty indignant."

"I think the disgraceful thing about it all was the way Mr. Lucas tried to blame it all on Al Smith."

"So do I. Mr. Lucas circulated those cartoons in Oklahoma showing Al and Clara running over Mussolini in a taxicab and not even apologizing!"

"Mussolini is having troubles of his own as president of Cuba without any outside annoyances."

"THE whole world is nervous and jumpy. I'm glad England freed that fellow, er, what's his name? The one they had in prison in India?"

"Mahatma Kemal?"

"That's the fellow! They put him in prison last May for not carrying out a reconciliation with Queen Helene when he returned and claimed the throne."

"What ever became of their son, Michel?"

"He went to Soviet Russia under the five-year plan."

"Well, these are certainly trying times, but I hope everything turns out for the best and that Congress and the Red Cross come to some agreement on fixing up that big hole in Niagara Falls."

"So do I. It will be a proof to the American people that business has turned the corner and that no country really wants to see another war, whether Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., loses his post at Quantico or not."

SAFEGUARDING THE BENCH.

WELL, the New York court holds that a judge may indulge in heavy stock market operations without cheapening the bench. It is understood, however, that the use of tickers as standard equipment in any court is frowned on.

"Six Rear Admirals and Major General to Try Butler."—Headline. Surrounded!

Chicago has notified all city workers that it has no money to pay their salaries this week. How about getting a loan from the police?"

President Hoover is urging that steps be taken at once to prevent further breaks in Niagara Falls, but it will be just his luck to get up some morning and find they have disappeared entirely.

By the way, how does it happen that nobody has so far blamed that Niagara Falls break on the "Reds?"

An American woman has ordered the largest private yacht in the world. You can get an idea how business is by observing whether or not J. P. Morgan and Vincent Astor let her get away with it.

Man Fells Armed Intruder In Store With Candlestick

A friend in need is a friend indeed, especially if he be a man of action who understands the use of a candlestick as an offensive weapon.

So thinks Felice D. Caprino, proprietor of a delicatessen store at 1256 Ninth street northwest. Yesterday a Negro came into the store and flourishing a pistol demanded money. He forced Caprino into a rear room. And then the stage was set for the entrance of the friend, Stepano Biancanello, and his 18-year-old son, Frank, of 5525 Illinois avenue northwest.

Dropping in just to say hello, Biancanello saw the store empty and heard Caprino protesting with the alleged robber. He ran into the room, grabbing a metal candlestick en route, and smote the Negro lustily on the head—so lustily, in fact, that the holdup man slumped to the floor unconscious. His son called police.

They arrived to take the Negro into custody as he was becoming conscious. He was booked at the Second Precinct on a charge of investigation. He gave the name of William Brown, 27 years old, no address.

STATUE TO OCCUPY NEW SITE

Congress has authorized the removal of this statue of Maj. Gen. John C. Rawlins from its present location near Ninth street and Pennsylvania avenue to Rawlins Park, south of the Department of Interior Building, as one of the steps in conjunction with the Federal construction program.

ALIEN KINDERGARTEN IS BACKED BY BOARD

OPPOSED BY SIMMONS

Continuation of the kindergarten at the Americanization school for children five years of age and under will be requested of the Senate District committee by school administrative officers. The school officials were instructed to do this yesterday by the Board of Education on motion of Henry Gilligan.

There is a proviso in the 1932 appropriations bill for the District to discontinue attendance of underage children at the Americanization school kindergarten. The boards wants this proviso eliminated so that foreign-born mothers may attend Americanization school and leave their children in the care of the kindergarten while they are in class.

Determination on the part of the board to continue the underage kindergarten at the Americanization school has been a thorn in the side of Representative Simmons, chairman of the subcommittee of the House District committee.

Mr. Gilligan reported to the board that Washington schools will not be affected by the reduction of military instructors.

A study of twelve recommendations for improvements in vocational schools by the advisory committee on vocational education by a group of school officials was submitted to the board.

3 Autos in Collision But No One Is Hurt

Three autos, one a police car, were damaged but no one was injured in a triple crash which occurred yesterday at Thirtieth street and Bladensburg road. Fred S. Rully, of H street near Fifth northwest, was driving south on Bladensburg road when he allegedly ran into a Twelfth Precinct car operated by Policeman L. M. Laughton.

The police machine rebounded into the path of an auto being driven by Miss Daisy N. Shepherd, of Bristol, Md. The police car was the worst damaged. No one was arrested.

Woman Is Poisoned In Mistaking Medicine

After she had swallowed a dose of poison, mistaken for a common medicine, Eva Monroe, 30 years old, of Vermont avenue northwest near Q street, yesterday became violently ill at the New National Museum, where she is employed as a clerk.

Fellow workers summoned Casualty ambulance, in which she was removed to the hospital and treated by Dr. Louis Jimal. Physicians there said her condition was not serious. She remained at the hospital.

Hambleton Concern Is Cited Into Court

Hambleton & Co. must appear today in District Supreme Court, under an order signed by Justice Jesse C. Adkins, which requires that it show cause why its local properties should not be placed in the hands of receivers.

Fellow workers summoned Casualty ambulance, in which she was removed to the hospital and treated by Dr. Louis Jimal. Physicians there said her condition was not serious. She remained at the hospital.

The order specified that by agreement of counsel it had been agreed that no books or records of the firm would be removed. Robert E. Funkhouser, of 5315 Colorado avenue northwest, is the petitioner. He is represented by Attorneys Crandal Mackey and Jesse C. Duke.

Civic Service Winner To Be Named Tonight

The Cosmopolitan Club, of Washington, tonight will announce the winner of its annual award to "the citizen of Washington who performed the outstanding civic service for Washington during 1930," at the ladies' night meeting of the club at the Shoreham.

The medal was awarded last year to Martin A. Leese, former president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce. Dr. J. Rozier Biggs, who originated the award, is permanent chairman of the medal committee. The judges are Dr. Biggs, Judge Michael M. Doyle, William D. King, Gordon Bonnette, president of the club, and J. Fred Rice. The presentation exercises will be broadcast over WMAL.

Former Marine Is Held in Assault

Police Declare Confession Secured After Prints Are Identified.

Cline Roy Teegarden, former marine, 21 years old, of Fifteenth street southeast near South Capitol street, yesterday morning admitted that he attacked William B. Lumsden, 26, of Raleigh, N. C., on a lonely road in the Southeast section of the city Monday night, police say.

After police had conducted a search through fingerprint files of the Marine Corps, they found that his prints corresponded to those found on a pistol at the scene of the attack, and a confession was secured, they said. He is being held at the Sixth Precinct.

Police are still searching for the woman who is alleged to have aided in the attack of Lumsden. One was arrested but subsequently released when Lumsden could not identify her. Lumsden is in Casualty Hospital in serious condition. He told police Monday morning that he took a man and a woman for a ride in his car. Going to a lonely road on their suggestion, they both set upon him and he was beaten into unconsciousness, he said.

Congressional Club Names Mrs. Dyer Head

Mrs. Leonidas C. Dyer, of Missouri, yesterday was elected president of the Congressional Club at a meeting at 2001 New Hampshire avenue. Mrs. James V. McClintic, of Oklahoma, was chosen first vice president.

Other officers elected, all of whom will serve two-year terms, include Mrs. Edward E. Eslick, of Tennessee, second vice president; Mrs. Robert G. Simmons, of Nebraska, third vice president; Mrs. Edwin S. Broussard, of Louisiana, fourth vice president; Mrs. Charles Brand, of Ohio, fifth vice president; Mrs. Frank Clague, of Minnesota, recording secretary; Mrs. John C. Schafer, of Wisconsin, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Carl E. Mapes, of Michigan, treasurer.

Drama Guild to Stage First of Tourney Plays

The Community Drama Guild will present the first of a series of tournament plays next Wednesday night, February 11, at the Wilson Teachers College, Eleventh and Harvard streets northwest. The plays will be given before the committee of judges of the preliminaries.

The groups to appear will be the Marjorie Webster Alumnae Players in "The Slave With Two Faces," the Women's City Club Drama Unit in "Two Crooks and a Lady," the Orange and Blue Players in "The Kelly Kid," and the Woodlothians in "The Under Dog."

New City Directory Lists Names Famous in History

Prolific in names of famous Americans from George Washington to Woodrow Wilson, Boyd's new directory of the District of Columbia, issued yesterday by R. L. Polk & Co., publishers, might well be a catalogue of the great names in American history as well as an up-to-date index to Capital residents.

The roster informs one that George Washington and his wife, Martha, reside here, to say nothing of 38 others who bear the cognomen of the great patriot. There are six Thomas Jeffersons, eleven James Madisons, nine James Monroes and fifteen Andrew Jacksons. Thirty-one bear the name of John Adams, two of whom are listed as John Q. Adams.

Other names associated with United States history which can be found in the 2,408-page volume, include William H. Harrison, John Tyler, James K. Polk, Zachary Taylor, James Buchanan, Andrew Johnson, Ulysses S. Grant, James Garfield, Chester Arthur, Benjamin Harrison, William McKinley and Woodrow Wilson. One learns that a second Herbert Hoover, not the President of the United States, lives at 4707 Connecticut avenue.

REMOVAL OF RHEEM AND SWARTZELL AS TRUSTEES IS ASKED

GRAND JURY TO PROBE INTO BANKRUPT FIRM

Embezzlement Charges Also May Be Aired Before Body Next Week.

Three suits seeking removal of Edmund D. Rheem, vice president, and Luther A. Swartzell, president, of the bankrupt firm of Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey, as trustees of property were filed in District Supreme Court yesterday. Property involved is at 3520 Sixteenth street northwest and at 1457 Park road northwest. Plaintiffs are Mary Stuart Hardesty, of the Argonne Apartments; F. Louise Schirmer, of 1434 Harvard street northwest, and Elisabeth Stuart Moore, of the Northumberland Apartments. All of the plaintiffs own notes on the property involved, the petitions set out.

Ayoob B. Rizik, proprietor of the women's wear establishment at 1213 F street northwest, through Attorneys H. Winship Wheatley, sr., and H. Winship Wheatley, jr., filed a suit to set aside trustees and a petition to recover notes totaling $25,000 left with the bankrupt firm.

In the suit to set aside trustees, Rizik names Rheem and J. Newton Brewer, of 3223 Macomb street northwest. He claims the men were trustees for mortgage notes on the Widemere Apartments, at 1825 Connecticut avenue northwest.

At the time the suit was filed Rheem and his codefendant agreed that the substitute trustee be named.

Name Adams Codefendant.

Mary Stuart Hardesty and F. Louise Schirmer sued in connection with the PaPrk road property, naming James H. Adams, of 1631 Euclid street northwest, as codefendant with the two Swartzell, Rheem & Hensy officials. Adams signed the notes on the property involved, according to the petitions.

Elisabeth Stuart Moore brought her action in connection with Sixteenth street property. She names David L. Stern, of 1412 I street northwest, said to have signed the notes, as a codefendant with Rheem & Swartzell.

Attorneys J. S. Easby-Smith and F. W. Hill, jr., appear as attorneys for the three women.

Later in the day, Justice Jesse C. Adkins signed a rule requiring the receivers to show cause within 10 days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, why they should not remove the trustees.

Investigation Goes On.

Investigation of the affairs of the bankrupt investment house continued yesterday with prospects that charges of embezzlement against Rheem, executive vice president, would be aired before the grand jury next week. At the same time, it was understood, the grand jury also would delve deeply into the affairs of the company.

Coincidentally, Justice Jesse C. Adkins signed an order permitting the bankrupt firm to file its schedule of assets and liabilities on February 25. Under the bankruptcy laws the petitioner has 10 days in which to file the schedule.

Although there was considerable court action yesterday in the case, the Department of Justice marked time. There also were no new developments in regard to the arrest of Rheem, who is now at liberty under bond of $25,000 pending a hearing February 17 before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage. Rheem is alleged to have stepped outside the law in protecting his father's estate. He is specifically alleged by Department of Justice investigators, who swore to the warrant, to have embezzled $162,000.

Must Inform Tomlinson.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins signed an order requiring the receivers, Henry P. Blair and Julius I. Peyser, to furnish Frank Tomlinson information as to who holds his notes. Tomlinson, in a petition filed Monday, explained that he had borrowed $200,000 from the bankrupt firm and had given a second deed of trust on valuable property and had made 370 notes, which he believed the firm had disposed of to various persons. He said he had received only approximately $75,000 from the firm and that the remainder still was due him.

Alice Sweetser, through Attorneys Henry C. Hall and Alexander M. Bull, filed a petition requiring the receivers to show cause why they should not return notes totaling $10,000 which had been left with the concern for collection. Justice Jesse C. Adkins signed the rule to show cause.

A petition for the return of notes aggregating $9,950 was filed by Laura A. Bradley and Marie B. Menley through Attorneys Frost and Towers. Justice Adkins also signed a rule requiring the receivers to show cause tomorrow why their prayers should not be granted.

Margaret G. Barber, through Attorney Duvall, filed a petition for the return of notes aggregating $500.

British Relations Topic of Zionists

National Council Will Hold Two-Day Session at Jewish Center.

Political relations between the British government and the Jewish people will be discussed Saturday and Sunday by 150 of the country's leading Zionists attending sessions of the National Council at the Jewish Community Center.

The meeting will be the first held by the council since the national Zionist convention in Cleveland last June. The executive committee of the Zionist Organization of America will meet jointly with the council during the two days of the session.

The Passfield White Paper and the Sir John Simpson report on Palestine, which aroused world-wide Jewish protest, will be up for discussion. Residents of Washington who are members of the council are Isidore Hershfield, Mrs. John M. Safer and Lewis Spiegler.
